WHIP outlines preliminary platform for village race

by LYNN ASINOF

About 20 members of the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP) gave tacit approval Tuesday night to a basic eight-point outline of their party platform for the upcoming village elections.

Campaign manager Sheila Schultz said the outline, which stresses increased community participation in government, will be used to prepare an expanded platform in coming months. "On each issue we can come up with many, many items," she said.

The platform outline is generally divided into three areas, including: a more responsive and trustworthy government, planned progress, and economy in government. The candidates said these are areas which are not presently being handled as well as they could be.

The WHIP candidates pledged to create a more responsive government by holding frequent and regular open meetings. At the suggestion of one WHIP member, the candidates said they would consider setting aside a portion of each village board meeting for residents to address the board on any subject.

HAROLD FAGAN, candidate for trustee, said this set-up would be more suitable than holding informal sessions for residents, because the conversation would be part of an official meeting.

The platform also calls for setting village priorities according to the needs of the village residents. The third plank of the platform pledges the candidates to use the village commissions more effectively. WHIP members Maureen Pitt said this might include involving apartment and condominium dwellers in local government.

The WHIP program for planned progress includes stopping all building in the official flood plain. Otis "Skip" Hedlund, candidate for village president, said present building policies are increasing Wheeling's flooding problems.

"We've been downstream of the problem for so long, there is no reason to aggravate it," he said.

Fagan indicated that building in the flood plain might be allowed if developers took the proper precautions in their building. "Before we jump in with both feet again, let's make sure we know what we're doing," he said.

THE WHIP candidates also said they would limit construction of all multiple-family dwellings in the village. Fagan said this might be one way of encouraging single-family development. He said he hoped to change the present lot size requirements in the village to allow homes to be built on smaller parcels of land.

As part of their plank on planned progress, WHIP candidates advocate the establishment of a committee on ecology. This was also an issue in the 1971 village election campaign.

The WHIP plank on economy in government calls for increased tax revenue through responsible industrial and business development. The candidates explained this meant stressing revenue producing development over increased construction of apartments.

FINALLY, THE candidates said they would work to eliminate excessive governmental costs. Hedlund said this plank meant the WHIP candidates wanted good planning, to avoid "government by crisis." He added, however, that this would include the elimination of certain village jobs that are not crucial to local government.

Campaign manager Sheila Schultz said the WHIP campaign would not begin in earnest until March 1. She said that until that time the party members and supporters would organize campaign workers and staff and set up home-headquarters throughout the village.

Mrs. Schultz said the campaign would consist mainly of coffee and door-to-door canvassing, but that other events such as fund raisers would also be conducted. She said WHIP election expenses would be kept at rock bottom because the entire campaign is being financed by contributions.

Other candidates on the WHIP slate include Constance Heitkotter and Don Jackson, who are running for trustee positions, and Marlene Bokina, who is seeking election as village clerk.

MAKING THE POLICE CAR into a classroom is the idea of Sgt. Frank Harth of the Buffalo Grove Police Department. Harth has developed a way of teaching policemen while they patrol the village streets, with the help of an eight-track tape recorder. The policemen listen to the tapes to supplement their classroom training, and then take quizzes on the lessons. They also have the option of listening to music when not using the tape deck for training.

Area-wide meet seeks way to preserve environment

Representatives from several Northwest suburban communities are attempting to find a common solution to their major environmental problems.

Solid waste disposal ranked as the number one common problem among the villages represented at an informal idea session. Environmental board members from Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Palatine, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Park Ridge formed the group Tuesday night in Arlington Heights.

Although the recent meeting was limited to an exchange of ideas and programs in the various communities, bigger things may be in the works if the local governments begin coordinating their environmental efforts.

Incinerators and landfills, projects frequently considered too costly for individual municipalities to attempt alone could be prime targets of the young environment coalition.

"Everybody's landfill seems to be filling up faster than they thought it would. It would behoove all villages to get together and consider a joint project on solid waste," said Shirley Gibbons of Hoffman Estates.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS recently dropped plans for an incinerator north of the village due to high cost and potential pollution. While such an incinerator would have eased Arlington Heights' problem, Buffalo Grove residents protested that it would have created a critical air pollution problem for that village.

The formation of the area-wide committee may help ease tensions between villages when one town's solution turns into another town's problem. And repetitive research could be avoided when the governments share the results of their own special research committees with neighboring villages.

Car tape players keep village police on right (8) track

by RICH HONACK

Imagine riding in a police car and listening to the latest in eight-track stereo tapes.

Impossible? Not really — as long as the cars belong to the Buffalo Grove police. All four of the village's police cars are being equipped with tape decks and speakers.

But the real reason is not for the enjoyment of listening to stereo music while riding around the village looking for crime. The main purpose is training.

THE BUFFALO GROVE Police Department is the first in the Midwest to have its policemen learn various aspects of law enforcement by listening to lectures on tape. The lectures cover subjects in all areas of the police profession.

Police Chief Harry Walsh first saw the idea in a magazine article about the Beaumont, Tex., Police Department, using a separate radio frequency to broadcast training messages to its men.

Walsh gave the article to Sgt. Frank Harth, who thought the same idea could be modified to work with tapes that policemen could play while on patrol. Harth is the department's training officer.

The chief bought the idea and the department ordered the tape decks mounted in the squad cars. Harth, meanwhile was busy getting a Northwestern University professor to tape lectures on "Disturbance Calls" and "Police Vehicle Operations."

"RIGHT NOW these are the only lectures we have. However, we have several dozen more ready to run off," explained Harth. "We also have plans to change the format a little to break up the boring nature of the tapes."

As the tapes are now, they contain anywhere from 30 minutes to an hour of straight lecture. In the future they will contain 10 minutes of lecture, followed by music and then more lecture.

Harth said several tapes will have skits recorded so all the training is not just plain, dry instruction. He added that policemen will be quizzed on certain tapes after they have listened to them for a week.

"The shift commander will determine which tapes will be distributed to the men on his shift and will issue a pretest and post-test. It will be his duty to see that each man is given all tapes and then enter the test results in his personnel file," Harth explained.

THE SERGEANT was quick to point out that the new training method is only a supplement to regular classroom training and school courses.

"It will be used to keep policemen refreshed on things they learn in class as well as keeping them up on local policies," Harth said.

As training officer, Harth credited the program to Walsh. "Without a progressive police chief this program would not get off the ground. Since he has taken over as chief the training has improved greatly," he said.

The men of the Buffalo Grove Police Department have reportedly taken to the new system very favorably. However, one policeman said, "We haven't taken any quizzes yet, and that could change the opinion."

THE POLICEMEN don't feel that the new system will interfere with their work, and compared listening to the tapes to listening to a car radio. Also, with the speakers mounted in the back, the tape doesn't interfere with normal radio communications heard from the front.

Harth said several Northwest suburban police departments have contacted Walsh and asked for more information on the program. Harth said he feels the reason

by BARRY SIGALE

The president of the Chicago and North Western Ry. said yesterday the "Chinese Wall" separating Chicago and suburban mass transit systems must be torn down if the continuing financial crisis facing them is to be solved.

Larry S. Provo said neither the city of Chicago nor the suburbs will be able to financially support its mass transportation systems unless they voluntarily coordinate and consolidate services required by the public.

"The city and the suburbs, the rail operators, bus lines and the CTA have got to stop each going their own way. The existing parochial walls of jealousy and mistrust must be dismantled," Provo said.

"In our view, a single mass transportation agency charged with complete management and operation of all public transportation in the six-county metropolitan area is an urgent necessity and is, in fact, the only way the public will realize the enormous benefits which they have a right to expect," he added.

"We believe the CMATS bill will accomplish this and urge each and every one of you to give your support to help ensure its prompt enactment."

PROVO AND other officials of private and public mass transportation systems, state and local government officials and representatives from business and industry participated in an all-day conference sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry. The seminar, entitled "What's Ahead For Public Transportation?" was held at the Pick-Congress Hotel.

Provo stressed the public split between the city and suburbs, saying the City of WAITING FOR THE TRAIN: "If we get squeezed, there is always the possibility of a reduction in service," said a spokesman for the Chicago & North Western Ry. yesterday as transportation experts mulled over the mass transit plight of metropolitan Chicago.

Chicago and Chicago Transit Authority officials feel it is the state's responsibility to "rush to the (financial) aid of the CTA" while the suburbs are being "illogically parochial" by proposing a regional authority excluding the CTA because it would result in what they claim would be unfair and inadequate treatment of suburban interests.

Both views, he said, would "retain a Chinese Wall between the city and suburbs which is totally contrary to the reality of the movement of people. Mass transportation simply does not stop at political boundaries," he said.

PROVO REPEATED that a single operating agency to coordinate both city and suburban systems is necessary and added that if the two entities do not join together, "then the city and suburbs alone should bear the responsibility of supporting their respective operations" and not expect money from other sources.

"We are convinced that with the al-

"We are already doing planning," she said, "and I don't understand why we now have to go to all the work of putting our plans into a form acceptable to the state."

Miss Marks said the Dist. 54 board may decide to take a stand favoring a position of the Decatur Public Schools opposing implementation of the new standards. Decatur has asked that the standards be held up until the legislature forms a state board of education that would take over the responsibilities of Bakalis's office.

The Decatur school board has been at odds with Bakalis's office since 1971 when the state superintendent took court action to end a school strike there.

Reservists deliver left-over sale books

Army Reserve 1st Field Artillery, 7th Battalion, Battery B, Ft. Dearborn, 6540 N. Mannheim Rd., Chicago, picked up 200 cartons of books from Woodfield Mall, the site of the recent book fair.

The books were delivered to Northwestern University Settlement House, 1400 W. Augusta Blvd., Chicago. Reserve units are devoting time to community service projects now that the war in Vietnam is ending, according to a public relations spokesman for Woodfield Mall.

tractive alternative of a sound, regional transit system, thousands of Chicago metropolitan area citizens, who are now forced to spend agonizing hours each day on congested highways, will choose mass transit," Provo said.

"We wholeheartedly agree that the CTA must be saved. The Chicago Transit Authority is vital to the continued orderly functioning of commerce, industry and government in the City of Chicago. Indeed, to the future of the city itself and all of its residents.

"But a one-shot, ball-out fix, such as is currently being sought, isn't going to save the CTA. If the history of the last few years concerning mass transit in this area teaches anything, it teaches us that the quick ball-out is anything but one-shot.

"IF NOTHING is done other than to provide the CTA with some quick cash to keep it tottering along, does anyone in this room seriously question that in a few months, certainly within a year, we'll all be right back here again trying to cope with the same affliction, only in a much more advanced state?"

"By that time, however, it very likely won't be just the CTA crying desperately for $40, or $50 or $60 millions of dollars. By that time, perhaps a suburban bus line or two . . . or three or four or more . . . will have been pushed over the brink. Perhaps by that time, one or more of the commuter railroads will have experienced losses of such magnitude that it will have been forced to apply for abandonment of its service.

"And make no mistake about it, rescuing what is left, picking up the pieces, is going to cost more, a lot more. And the longer we wait, the more costly it's going to be."

Top employee named at Alexian Brothers

Muriel Smith, 48 Grange Rd., Elk Grove Village, has been named Alexian Brothers Medical Center employee of the month for February. She is admitting supervisor for the hospital in Elk Grove Village.

Although Mrs. Smith has served as a hospital volunteer since 1964, she joined the staff officially in September 1968 as an x-ray receptionist. Mrs. Smith is still active in the hospital medical auxiliary and is chairwoman of this year's annual ball committee.

Mrs. Smith, a Massachusetts native, received her nursing diploma from St. Luke's Hospital School of Nursing in New Bedford, Mass. During World War II, she served in England and Germany with the U.S. Army Nurse Corps.

After returning to the United States, she completed a course in surgical nursing at Yale University in Connecticut and then worked for the Veterans Administration in Boston.

Mrs. Smith gave up her nursing career to raise a family of five children who now range in age from 13 to 21 years old. Her husband is assistant vice president at the Bank of Elk Grove.

North Western rail line sees rate hike coming

Despite the threats of a service cut-back if a breakthrough in the metropolitan mass transit dilemma is not found, a spokesman for the Chicago and North Western Ry. said the suburban railroad has managed to avoid any cutback in service to Northwest suburban commuters . . . but must seek a rate increase.

Jim MacDonald, director of public affairs for the railroad, said yesterday the company decided against curtailing services and instead asked for a fare increase from the Illinois Commerce Commission. The increase of seven per cent was asked for in December.

MacDonald, pointing to higher costs inflation, competition from the CTA and the fact that the company received no subsidies, said the railroad decided against cutting back its services.

"We're proud of the services we have built in 15 years," he said, "so we decided against cutting back. We decided we would reduce our costs.

"If we continue to get squeezed there is always the possibility of a reduction in service. We're doing everything we can to avoid this. Obviously we have to do something if this continues, including service cuts during the late night and off-peak hours."

MacDonald repeated the recurring theme at the seminar when he suggested that a single operating agency must be formed if the C&N and other mass transit systems are expected to exist.

"This is a labor of love with us. I don't want to see us go down the tube."

Suburban schools protest state rules

by WANDALYN RICE

School officials from the Chicago suburbs made it clear Tuesday they are unhappy with new standards for state recognition handed down by State School Supt. Michael Bakalis.

The standards call for each school district in Illinois to submit a "program plan" for improving their schools systems to the state superintendent by Sept. 1. The plan must be developed with community involvement, according to the guidelines.

Officials from Bakalis's office explained to more than 500 school officials gathered at Arlington Park Towers Hotel that the required plans "do not impose any educational program on school districts of the state, but at the same time they require careful and systematic planning."

The explanation, however, was greeted with questions about why the guidelines were adopted without participation from local educators, why the plans must be handed in by Sept. 1 and why "you are telling us this will free us to chart our own future and then tell us how to chart our own future?"

THE NEW guidelines will become effective on July 1. They will replace old guidelines used since 1959 by the state office to grant recognition to school districts.

The state superintendent must each year grant recognition to each school district in that state in order for the district to receive state school aid.

State officials explained the state will judge the form of the plan, but will not judge its content in determining whether a school district will receive recognition.

Richard Small, the state director of recognition and supervision, said, "It will not have any effect on your recognition whether you set your goals very high or very low. Your accountability on that will be to your community. The only thing that will affect your recognition is if you do not submit a plan."

FOLLOWING THE meeting, local officials had varying reactions to the new rules. One official, who asked not to be identified, said, "The words that are spoken at the meeting are soft and conciliatory, but the words in the guidelines are hard and demanding. One fear we have is that this could be the first step in forming a rigid and unyielding state-controlled system of education."

Bruce Allergott, associate superintendent of High School Dist. 211, had a different view of the situation. Allergott said, "I think the new guidelines are a very real attempt to improve education in Illinois."

He added Dist. 211 is now involved in almost the same kind of planning required by the state and "it's just a matter of putting it in the format they want." The only problem, he said, will be for the district to speed up the planning process to meet the Sept. 1 deadline.

"If I part ways with them," Allergott said, "it's over the limited time they've given us to do this. We would prefer to take more time and come out with a more fully developed plan."

DIANE MARKS, president of the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 board, said she understood the hostility of many of the educators to the new guidelines.

Percussion ensemble to perform at fair

The Malco West High School percussion ensemble, under the direction of Jake Jerger has been invited to perform at the Junior Achievement Fair which will be held at Chicago's International Amphitheatre Feb. 17 and 18. The fair will feature outstanding high school talent from the Chicago area.

The students will perform two selections at the fair, a "A Taste of Brahms" which was arranged by Tom Davis and Frank Bjorn's "Alley Cat" arranged by Anne Deizner.

Bike registration setup to be revised

Wheeling officials are in the process of revising the village bicycle registration program so owners will only have to register their bikes once.

Presently the bicycle registration must be renewed each year, creating extra paper work for the village. Roger Stricker, director of public safety, said the revised program would mean residents would only have to register when they buy new bicycles.

The bicycle registration program was designed to make it easier to return lost or stolen bikes to their owners. A bicycle will have to pass a safety inspection before it is issued a sticker with a registration number.

Stricker said the one-time registration also will enable the village to buy better identification stickers, so they will last longer. There is no charge for the bicycle registration program.

Senior Citizens elect officers

Members of the Senior Citizens Club of Wheeling recently elected Hazel Steinke the 1973 club president.

Other newly elected officers include Jean Giampietro, vice president; Olga Stack, treasurer; Leona Madden, secretary; K. Marie Hansen, corresponding secretary; Martha Thomas and Marie Spears, program chairmen, and June Papineau and Hazel Willis, hostesses.

The club will meet today from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Chamber of Commerce Park for lunch and card games. Members are asked to bring their own lunches.

On Feb. 8, the club will have its monthly business meeting. Featured speaker will be Max Ulrich of Van Driels Drugs in Mount Prospect, who will discuss health for senior citizens.

Jaycee Jills plan babysitting clinic

The Wheeling Jaycee Jills are completing plans for their annual babysitting clinic for junior and senior high school students.

Interested students who complete the nine-week series will be certified as qualified babysitters.

The clinic will meet on nine consecutive Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 8:45 p.m. at Jack London Junior High School, Wheeling. Registration and orientation will be Wednesday, Feb. 20.

Included in the nine sessions are lectures by a doctor, teacher, policeman, fireman and a mother. Final classes will include testing and awarding of certificates indicating that the students have adequately met requirements of the course.

Additional information is available from Mrs. George Bellwoar, 537-3867, or Mrs. James Bronson, 537-4777.

Northwest Opportunity Center seeks $32,000

Officials of the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows are seeking $32,000 in contributions from local municipalities to help finance the center for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

Letters have been sent to 14 area municipalities seeking permission for center officials to make a presentation to the governing board and request financial support.

The first presentation was made Monday to the Arlington Heights Village Board. The board agreed to contribute $4,600.

The municipal contributions are needed to offset the difference between the center's total operating budget of $130,000 and the projected $62,000 the center will receive from the federal government.

IN ADDITION to the municipal contributions, the center must raise another $36,000 locally. Center officials hope to do this through their annual "Hike for Hunger," contributions from churches and other local organizations and a cash balance at the start of the new fiscal year on April 1.

The 1973-74 budget represents an increase of more than $35,000 over this year's budget. Bruce Newton, center director, explained the increase is necessary to finance a full-time employment person at the center, hire a third outreach worker and finance the Operation Nutrition program for seven months after federal funding is cut off.

Of the center's budget approximately $80,000 will be used for personnel and the remaining $50,000 for non-personnel expenses.

The center also hopes to establish a $15,000 contingency fund this year. This would be used if federal funds are cut off during the year to help phase out programs gradually or until programs could be taken over by other agencies, said Newton.

NEWTON EXPLAINED the $62,000 in federal funds will be allotted to the center by the Cook County Office of Economic Opportunity provided the money is there. President Richard M. Nixon in his budget message has stated he would like to phase out all OEO funding by July and make this a local responsibility to be taken care of through revenue sharing funds. The budget is now before Congress.

"We are really in a crisis position," said Newton.

Newton said if the federal funding is cut off the center would probably go to the six townships it serves and municipalities in those townships and ask them to make up the difference.

In determining how much to ask from each municipality the center divided the number of families served by the center this year, more than 1,700 into $32,000. This came out to $19.06. The number of families from each municipality was then computed and multiplied by $19.06.

THE FUNDING requests are: Arlington Heights, 241, $4,593.46; Wheeling, 137,

$2,611.2; Barrington, 36, $686.16; Palatine, 274, $5,222.44; Hanover Park, 58, $1,105.48; Roselle, 26, $495.56; Schaumburg, 25, $476.50; Streamwood, 90, $1,715.40; Des Plaines, 183, $3,487.98; Hoffman Estates, 66, $1,257.96; Rolling Meadows, 129, $2,458.74; Elk Grove Village, 65, $1,238.90; Prospect Heights, 14, $266.84; Mount Prospect, 105, $2,001.30; and other, 250, $4,765.

Last year the center attempted to raise $25,000 from area municipalities served by the center. Arlington Heights and Hoffman Estates were the only villages to contribute directly but Palatine officials set up a fund for the center. Approximately $5,000 was contributed by municipalities last year.

Newton is optimistic that municipalities will be more responsive this year because of the additional funds they have received from revenue sharing and because federal funding for the center is in jeopardy.

Among the services the center offers are adult education, legal assistance, operation nutrition, emergency food, family planning and income tax aid.

Merger of unit school studies urged?

by FRED GACA

The Citizens' Reorganization Study Committee for School Dist. 59 may get a recommendation to drop its unit district feasibility study and join a similar study being done by High School Dist. 214.

Reportedly the recommendation will come from the citizen's group state and legal aspects subcommittee. The recommendation is expected to be contained in the subcommittee's report to be given at a general committee meeting at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

George Coney, chairman of both the citizens group and the subcommittee, refused to comment on the report that a recommendation will be made to join the Dist. 214 survey.

Coney would only say that the subcommittee has completed a report and that it would be presented to the general committee tonight.

WHEN ASKED how he thought the general committee would react to a recommendation to stop its work and join the Dist. 214 study, Coney said he "had no idea."

Last week, Coney said that at tonight's meeting the general committee will be polled on the question of whether or not to continue studying a unit district for Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59. If the general committee agrees to continue its study, four boundary alternatives will be presented to the group.

The committee will then be asked to decide which of the four is feasible, and a final report will be submitted to the school board on the possibility of forming a unit district.

Doberman Club match set at Wheeling High

The second annual Illini Doberman Pinscher Club match will be Sunday, Feb. 25, at Wheeling High School. The event is a sanctioned A-OA conformation and obedience match.

Match hours are 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., with judging beginning at 11 a.m. Persons interested in entering dogs for competition must register by Feb. 14 with Bert Fontana, Palos Park. Fontana's phone number is 448-0006. The match is open to the public.

The school board had set a March 1 deadline for the final report to be submitted from both the citizens' committee and a professional consultant service also studying unit districting for Dist. 59.

THE FOUR alternatives that will be considered for a unit district if the committee votes to continue study are:

- Elk Grove Village unit, formed by splitting the present Dist. 59 along the Northwest Tollway.

- A unit of the present boundaries of Dist. 59.

- A unit of the attendance boundaries of the four southern high schools in Dist. 214: Elk Grove, Forest View, Rolling Meadows and Prospect High schools.

- Making Dist. 214 a unit district.

Tape-players offer in-car training plan for the enthusiasm is the low cost of the program.

It cost the Buffalo Grove police $4 per unit to buy and mount the tape decks and speakers. The Texas operation costs more than $250,000 to operate and needs special licensing from the Federal Communication Commission.

When asked what the policemen do with the tape decks when not listening to training tapes, Harth said, "They slip in tapes of rock music — what else?"

Weather has eased strain

Fuel oil prices on way up

by LEA TONKIN

Warm weather continues to ease the strain on Midwest power supplies this week, report industry experts. Higher fuel oil costs and prospects for a humdinger of a springtime as gasoline supplies dwindle could give consumers mixed reactions to the report, however.

Herbert Hugo, Midwest Bureau chief for Platt's Oilgram, a petroleum industry publication, reports price increases in light and heavy fuel oils are taking hold this week. It's the first upward movement in fuel oil prices since Phase I began in 1971.

The trend toward higher home heating oil prices began on Tuesday of this week, increasing 7-8 per cent at the wholesale level. This will mean an added 1.3 or 1.4 cents a gallon charged for home heating oil, boosting the average cost to 19 cents a gallon.

Heavy oil used in industrial and apartment building heating has gone up 1/2 cent per gallon this week. Hugo reported that heating oil supplies are still short in the Midwest. However, the relaxed Phase III controls allow increased prices to narrow the price gap between fuel oil and heating oil and other fuels, an incentive for greater fuel oil production, he said.

GASOLINE PRICES in the Chicago metropolitan area are generally at the normal price level of 40.4 cents a gallon for regular gas, but prices are down as much as six cents a gallon in a few areas, Hugo continued. "This spring, though, the gasoline supply situation could be a humdinger," predicts the oil industry expert. "Some gasoline stations are already closed down in the Twin Cities area of Minnesota," he said. This is a reflection of short gasoline supplies, a problem which Hugo predicts will probably hit the Chicago metropolitan area at least by this spring.

Commenting on natural gas supplies, a Northern Illinois Gas Co. (NI-Gas) spokesman said this week, "We'll get through this winter without too much trouble. Warm weather took care of that." The utility serves the northern third of Illinois except for the City of Chicago and the North Shore. NI-Gas would like to have even greater reserves than the current supply, the spokesman said. The company asked for Illinois Commerce Commission approval of a plan to cut off Commonwealth Edison Co. as a natural gas customer as of Feb. 1.

Edison filed an intervention on this petition, and is currently awaiting hearings for the NI-Gas cutoff proposal, said George Rifakes, manager of fuel resources. "It would affect us," said Rifakes, "because our substitute for natural gas is fuel oil or jet oil, which are both in short supply."

WARM WEATHER has helped Edison cut back its power loads, according to Rifakes. In addition, Edison has temporarily deferred maintenance programs in which "peaking type machines" are used. This curtails oil consumption but could affect reliability at a later time. "If the weather turns cold or we have a machine breakdown, we could have a problem," Rifakes said.

Edison has an emergency plan in which steel plants would be asked to shut down and voltage reductions up to 5 per cent could be imposed if power shortages became critical. Delays in operation of the two nuclear units at Zion station near Waukegan could force Edison to take these steps during next summer's peak loads, Rifakes said.

Hearings before the Illinois Pollution Control Board were slated to start this week on an Edison petition to allow operation of certain coal-burning units during shortage periods. The utility wants to be able to run the units, which do not meet state pollution control standards, before the peaking units have to be operated, in order to conserve oil.

The ICC energy task force reported continuing short supplies of diesel fuel and fuel oil in Illinois, early this week. An updated report will be issued today, said ICC engineer Gene Shutt.

POWER SHORTAGES are not limited to the Midwest. For the first time since World War II, the U.S. faces the possibility that it may not be able to routinely supply all the fuel needed by its armed forces, a Pentagon spokesman said this week. Richard T. Mathew, a Defense Department petroleum expert, told a jet fuel symposium in San Antonio, Tex., that the Pentagon was unable to buy enough jet fuel in December to meet its requirements in the Pacific area, including the Indochina zone.

The administration budget announced this week allocated $25 million to the Interior Department as for a new energy planning and development fund. The Atomic Energy Commission may get some of the funds to explore potential energy sources. This could alleviate the problem of fragmentation in energy supply regulation, a problem often cited by power industry experts.

Specialist: airport ground radar 'unreliable'

by RICH HONACK
A specialist in maintaining the Airport Surface Detection Equipment at O'Hare Airport has testified that the equipment always receives ground clutter when in operation.

Hugh Weeks, an ASDE specialist at O'Hare, disclosed the information for the first time Tuesday before a National Transportation Safety board of inquiry. The board is investigating the cause of a two-plane collision at the airport Dec. 20.

Weeks was the third witness called before the board in its seventh day of the hearing. It was the first day the hearings were in Washington, D.C., rather than Chicago.

EARLIER IN THE day Vincent Mellone and Walter Rusch testified before the board as to operations in the airport control tower the night of the crash. Ten people were killed aboard a North Central Airlines DC-8 that collided with a Delta Airlines Convair 440 in a heavy fog.

According to an NTSB spokesman, Mellone, who was the tower chief the night of the crash, concurred with his controllers on procedures used in the tower. Mellone reportedly told the board that many of the procedures are unique to O'Hare.

He added, however, that he would have sought more specific information from the Delta pilot as to where he was in relation to the tower when he said he was clear of his landing runway.

Until now the chief testimony in the hearings is the fact that the Delta pilot radioed to the tower that he was "inside the bridge" after clearing his runway. Inside the bridge means he was heading south between the bridge route and the tower.

THE GROUND controller receiving the call testified he did not hear the phrase. He thought the Delta jet was near the 32R holding pad and directed the pilot to "just pull to pad 32."

The pilot thought the controller meant the 32L pad and continued south across an active runway and was struck by the DC-8 as it was taking off.

Rusch agreed with Mellone on the directions of the controller but reportedly added that pilots also ask for clarification of directions. The Delta pilot did not.

When it came Weeks' turn to testify, the questioning centered on the ground radar equipment (ASDE), which all the controllers and supervisors have testified "is not reliable."

Weeks explained that the equipment does have some drawbacks, one of which is the fact that the buildings at the airport cause ground clutter. He said the clutter blocks the impression of aircraft as the pass buildings or other obstacles on the airfield.

AN NTSB SPOKESMAN said yesterday that to his knowledge, this fact has never been recorded before this hearing.

He said that Weeks testified this clutter automatically makes certain areas of the airport unclear or unable to be seen by the controller in the tower. Weeks also agreed with the controllers that the equipment is not always in perfect working order and is unreliable at times.

The O'Hare controllers, who testified in Chicago last week, said the equipment is "erratic and is never used."

Weeks added that the only adjustment a controller can make to the screen of the ASDE is to adjust the brightness for a better view of traffic movement on the airfield. When asked why a controller would have to adjust the intensity of the picture, Weeks reportedly asked his interrogator, "Why does your wife adjust the color on the television set?"

When he investigated the ASDE shortly after the accident on the night of Dec. 20, Weeks said it was good enough to pick up the activity in the area of the collision.

The NTSB has yet to hear from 12 witnesses and hopes to conclude the hearings by the weekend. A majority of the witnesses to testify include evaluators from several aviation services.

Environment groups hear EPA speaker

"Noise starts instantly and stops instantly. It is the only form of pollution that does," remarked James C. Reid of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency.

Manager of the surveillance division of noise pollution control, Reid spoke at a joint meeting of Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates environmental committees this week.

Known as the "enforcement arm" of the state EPA, Reid's staff is responsible for gathering data, looking for violations, preparing and presenting cases to the Illinois Pollution Control Board. Presently they are engaged in a series of public hearings prior to IPCB adoption of state noise control regulations.

"Right now we are interested in educating people to the dangers and annoyance of noise and we try to get them to do something about it," says Reid.

Coming from North American Aviation to the EPA on its establishment in 1970, Reid claims he was "in the aircraft industry when the big move was to mis-

REID SAYS every complaint received by the EPA is investigated but he also noted his division has yet to bring action against violators. Correspondence, he reports, has produced results in most cases.

"To the complainants we sit at the right hand of God; to the defendants we sit at the right hand of someone else," he quipped.

Reid considers many noise problems not difficult to solve if those involved assume responsibility of investigation.

He believes large international airports, such as O'Hare and Los Angeles, are bothersome in the area of noise but are nonetheless necessary. Rather than closing down large air terminals "and disfiguring the economy," Reid recommends looking to other solutions.

"Maybe the Russians have the right idea in a no takeoff until the plane is full policy," he suggested. But, Reid insists safety can never be sacrificed for noise control.

CLASSIFYING intermittent, rather than constant, noise as more annoying, Reid admits he has no ready solution to O'Hare area problems.

He personally favors a system of careful flight scheduling during "sensitive night hours." Proposed state regulations differentiate between day and night air operations and recommend a reduction in traffic between 10 p.m. and 6 or 7 a.m.

"We have to assume the probability that the Federal Aviation Administration preempts the EPA in the air but we do have control on the ground," Reid said.

Control might be achieved by telling airport operators what type of planes can be used, Reid feels.

AN ALTERNATE measure, after extensive research, could call for setting up a "bank account" for each airport in the state in which a sum of money for penalties would be deposited. Fines for violating recommended noise levels would come from this fund.

Reid thinks this approach could provide a workable solution "because when you hit someone in the pocketbook you usually get action."

He encouraged attendance at EPA public hearings as well as letters to the ICPB urging adoption of noise control regulations.

"There is nothing more effective in testimony than a person's own words," he said.

Medicare changes may cost aged, disabled $1 billion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration wants Congress to make major changes in the Medicare program that could end up costing the 23.1 million aged and disabled beneficiaries more than $1 billion annually.

The aged already shell out an estimated $4.7 billion a year for out-of-pocket health expenses, including hospital and doctor bills, drugs and other services.

Administration Medicare legislative proposals mentioned in budget documents sent to Congress this week would increase the amounts beneficiaries pay toward their hospital doctor bills by an estimated $516 million for the half year period beginning next Jan. 1, the proposed effective date for the changes.

Over a one-year period the charges would surpass $1 billion.

IT IS UNLIKELY Congress will approve such sweeping changes in one of the last decade's major pieces of social legislation. But if the legislation were approved it would:

REQUIRE HOSPITALIZED Medicare patients to pay the first day's charge for room and board and 10 per cent of the daily charges for all services thereafter, instead of the current $72 initial payment with no further charges until the 61st day. For patients hospitalized 13 days, the cost could increase from $72 to a minimum of $158.40, depending on geographical differences.

Require patients to pay the first $85 of their doctor bills and 25 per cent of the remainder instead of the current $60 and 20 per cent. Out-of-pocket charges to a patient with a $500 doctor bill would increase from $148 to $188.75.

The administration also will ask Congress to save the federal government $75 million a year by eliminating federal matching payments under Medicaid for dental care for adults. In the budget documents sent to Congress this week, it was labeled a "low-priority" service "particularly subject to abuse."

During the year ending last June, the Medicaid program of medical care for the needy paid $185 million for dental services for adults and children in 34 states. The federal share is roughly 51 per cent. Largest amounts were paid by California, $38.7 million; New York State, $36.9 million, and Massachusetts, $19.1 million.

Elk Grove tops court fine list

Elk Grove Village had the highest income from court fines of all suburban communities in Cook County during 1972, Circuit Court Clerk Matthew Danaher said this week.

The village received a total of $119,123 from the court system during the year, Danaher said.

Other Northwest suburban towns which made the "top 10" in revenue included Des Plaines which netted $105,433, Arlington Heights with $89,841 and Schaumburg with $68,398.

On an over-all basis in the five suburban court districts the revenue declined from previous years, Danaher said. The total for all municipalities was $3,328,040 as compared to the peak of $3,444,102 in 1970.

Danaher attributed the drop in revenue to a slight decrease in the number of traffic arrests made by suburban police departments.

The bulk of the revenue comes from traffic cases.

Income received by other area villages during the year was reported by Danaher as being: Buffalo Grove, $6,851; Inverness, $230; Palatine, $38,153; Rolling Meadows, $24,490; Wheeling, $26,703; Hoffman Estates, $29,870, and Mount Prospect, $42,273.

Obituaries

Dr. Thomas G. Faust Ferdinand C. Anderson

A memorial service will be held Sunday for Dr. Thomas George Faust, 24, who was lost and presumed dead in a fall last summer in the Canadian Rockies.

The service is scheduled for 2 p.m. at Christ Lutheran Church, 41 S. Rohlwing Rd., Palatine, with the Rev. Dennis Griffin officiating.

Dr. Faust, a dentist, was lost in a fall in Athabasca Falls, Jasper Park, during a camping vacation last July 12.

Born March 8, 1948, he was a graduate of Tait High School in Chicago, Valparaiso (Ind.) University and the Northwestern University Dental School in Chicago.

Dr. Faust is survived by his widow, Donna, nee Danielson, of Inverness; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Faust, Chicago; a sister, Nancy, and brothers, Wayne and Donald.

The family requests that in lieu of flowers, contributions be made to the Thomas George Faust memorial fund at Christ Lutheran Church.

Leslie Smith Ewing

Leslie Smith Ewing, 81, of Arlington Heights, died Tuesday at his son's home in Glenview.

Mr. Ewing is survived by sons Kendall of Glenview and Marvin of Arlington Heights, and three grandchildren. His wife, Hertha, preceded him in death. Born in Peoria on Dec. 24, 1891, Mr.

Ewing was a fireman with the Chicago Fire Department. He was a World War I veteran.

Visitation will be today from 7 to 10 p.m. at Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy. Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Friday and interment is private.

Mr. Anderson was born on July 15, 1927 in Chicago.

Herman C. Kalwitz

Herman C. Kalwitz, 85, of 111 N. Lancaster Ave. in Mount Prospect died Tuesday of congestive heart failure in North-west Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

A resident of Mount Prospect for 17 years, Kalwitz is a former construction supervisor for Northern Illinois Public Service, which is now Northern Illinois Gas Co. He retired in 1963.

Visitation will be held at Friedrichs Funeral Home, 320 W. Central Rd., Mount Prospect, from 3 p.m. to 9 p.m. today. Private services will be conducted at Friedrichs Chapel at 1:30 p.m. by the Rev. William Jones of Southminster United Presbyterian Church in Arlington Heights. Burial will be in Ridgewood Cemetery.

Surviving are his wife, Hattie, (nee Marquardt); son, George of Arlington Heights, brother Frederic, and four grandchildren, Kurt, Jerry, Thomas and Kent.

Contributions in memoriam can be made to Chicago Heart Association.

Arthur R. Krull

Arthur R. Krull, 74, 1695 Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines, died yesterday at Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge. Born Nov. 23, 1898, in Wisconsin, Mr. Krull was a retired employee of the city of Des Plaines.

He is survived by his wife, Grace; a daughter, Betty Thon of Melbourne Beach, Fla.; a son, Robert Charles of Palatine; and a daughter, Karen Ann of Des Plaines; six grandchildren; a sister, Martha Ledowski of Chicago; a brother, Harold Krull, of Fort Worth, Tex.; and father-in-law, Frank Scharringhausen of Des Plaines.

Visitation will be tomorrow from 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. at Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets. Funeral will be Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in the Oehler Chapel, Rev. R. K. Wobbe officiating. Burial will be in Ridgewood Cemetery.

Could give suburban towns more say in zoning

Suit challenges county authority

by ANNE SLAVICEK

Suburban towns are going to have much more to say about the future development of unincorporated areas if one suburb wins a court battle it is fighting.

The suit challenges the Cook County Board's authority to ignore suburban communities in making zoning decisions for property close to the municipalities' boundaries.

The case, which specifically challenges county zoning for an apartment project in Wheeling and Northfield townships, could open a whole new realm of relations between the county and suburban municipalities in zoning disputes.

In the past, state courts have held that suburban towns do not have the statutory authority to challenge Cook County zoning decisions in court. Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Bensenville have tested that authority in court and lost.

BUT THE CURRENT suit, appealed by the Village of Northbrook, brings into play the new home rule power municipalities with populations of more than 25,000 acquired under the 1970 state constitution.

In legal importance, the suit goes one step further in attacking Cook County's zoning power fortress.

Marlin Smith, the attorney representing Northbrook, argues that Cook County's failure to adopt a comprehensive development plan for unincorporated areas "destroys or diminishes" the legal strength courts have said zoning decisions carry.

In his brief on file with the appellate court Smith cited a Michigan case in which the court ruled, "Evidence of the absence of comprehensive planning weakens the presumption of validity of zoning restrictions."

SMITH SAID the county board's practice of not asking for comments from its own department of planning and zoning and of not asking agencies such as the county and state highway departments or the metropolitan sanitary district how a rezoning fits into their plans, also should detract from the strength of county zoning decisions.

Northbrook lost the first round of the case in the county circuit court. The trial judge, Walter Dahl, gave an oral ruling in which he said, although the 1,388 apartment units on the 96 acres south of Lake Cook Road and west of the Tri-State tollway would hurt property values of homes in the area, northern Cook County needs more multi-family dwellings. Judge Dahl said he couldn't intervene in the county board's zoning decision.

He did not deal with Smith's arguments about Northbrook's home-rule powers, nor with Smith's contention the county zoning is weak because the county has no comprehensive plan of its own. Those questions are the ones Smith is asking the appellate court to consider as well as charges that the county's zoning decision in the case was unreasonable and that the procedures followed by the county board in the rezoning were improper.

Attorneys representing the county have until mid-February to submit their briefs and arguments to the appellate court. Smith filed Northbrook's brief last month.

AT A RECENT meeting of the North-eastern Illinois Planning Commission, Thompson Dyke, Northbrook's village planner, pointed out, "many other suburban Cook County communities have the same problem" Northbrook has in getting Cook County cooperation on zoning decisions. "They are often faced with objecting to developments and are then overruled by the county zoning board and county commissioners," Dyke said.

The lack of success Northwest suburban towns have had in convincing the county to follow their comprehensive plans and to give credence to their objections to rezonings is evidenced by the Village of Wheeling's attitude in the Fur-estview Drive case.

Although Wheeling Village Atty. Paul Hamer and Dyke, one-time Wheeling village planner, attended the county zoning hearings, the Wheeling Village Board decided not to object to the plan because Northbrook was going to object. While one village objection has the effect of requiring the county board to have a 3/4 majority vote to rezone the land, Wheeling officials said at the time they saw no point in adding their objections to Northbrook's because there was little hope the county commissioners would give their objections any weight.

If Smith is successful in his bid to overturn the zoning in this case and the appellate court agrees that home rule status and the lack of a comprehensive county plan are deciding factors, local communities will be likely to have their objections viewed far more seriously by Cook County officials.

by ANNE SLAVICEK
Home-rule powers and Cook County's lack of general land-use plan are the keys to a case that could increase the control local communities have over unincorporated zoning within 1 1/2 miles of their boundaries.

Attorney Marlin Smith, who represents Northbrook in the suit, makes this argument for a decrease in Cook County's omnipotence over zoning in unincorporated areas:

"The powers of home-rule municipalities must be broadly construed in favor of the exercise of power by the municipality," Smith argues, citing cases from Ohio and California.

Because the state constitution allows home-rule municipalities to "exercise any power pertaining to their government and affairs," Smith said, the municipalities should have a right to sue Cook County to stop the county from "endangering, hindering or frustrating the conduct of government and the affairs of a home-rule unit."

IN HIS ARGUMENTS to the appellate court Smith admitted earlier court decisions make it "quite clear that Illinois municipalities that do not enjoy home-rule power have no authority to maintain a lawsuit challenging the zoning decision of the county."

Smith says Northbrook's ability to govern itself effectively under home-rule powers is damaged by the proposed apartments because the apartments will interfere with future water and sewer capacity being available for development of vacant land within the village.

Moreover, he argued, the apartments will depreciate land values in the village and the village will suffer a resulting loss in tax revenue from the depreciated land.

"Finally, the county's decision frustrated and ignored the efforts of Northbrook and other local governments in Northfield Township to make careful and thoughtful plans for the utilization and development of undeveloped areas in the unincorporated areas of the township through the Northfield Township comprehensive plan," Smith said.

IN ADDITION to seeking a definition of how home-rule powers affect the county's action, Smith noted, in his brief that the case poses one other question never before considered by an Illinois court.

The case questions the validity of not only Cook County's zoning decisions but also zoning decisions made by any municipality in the state which has no comprehensive land-use plan, he said.

In his argument for the court he poses the questions: "Are all 9,000 other acres of land in Northfield Township to be filled with apartments at 20 dwelling units and 40 to 50 persons per acre? How will Cook County determine which property will be classified multi-family and which remain single-family?"

Those two questions are "the crux of the matter," Smith said. "Comprehensive land-use planning provided data and guidelines for making those decisions," he argues, "but the county's decision was arbitrary and capricious because it was made in utter ignorance to the impact on government services and without any reference to planning standards and criteria that would have enabled the county to differentiate the 96-subject acres from other vacant land in the area."

THE WIND is up, the weather's warm (for February), and there's no ice or snow to distract the attention of two young boys after a long, hard school day. All they need is a lot of string and a few rags to keep up a high-flying kite.

LITERALLY FLYING aptly describes Larry Latta racing more than 100 miles an hour in one of his seven hydroplanes. A one-inch layer of air separates the boat from the water. Latta and his wife Frances race competitively, and also pursue the sport as a hobby. A typical race course is about five miles in length and lasts five minutes.

Village may shut landfill site temporarily

The Arlington Heights landfill west of Buffalo Grove may be closed temporarily and refuse taken to other nearby sites if that can be done cheaper than digging a new cell at the village-owned location.

The village board is faced with a $210,000 expense to excavate 140,000 cubic yards of dirt to make room for more refuse.

In light of this cost, the village administration said it would look into the possibility of closing the landfill temporarily and hauling garbage to the nearby Sexton and Techny landfills.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said the two sites may provide a temporary alternative to digging the new cell until the cost of dumping at Sexton and Techny increases. At that time the village could return to operating its own landfill, he said.

PUBLIC WORKS Director Gene Wilmoth said the new cell, if dug, would probably last 12 to 14 months before it was filled up.

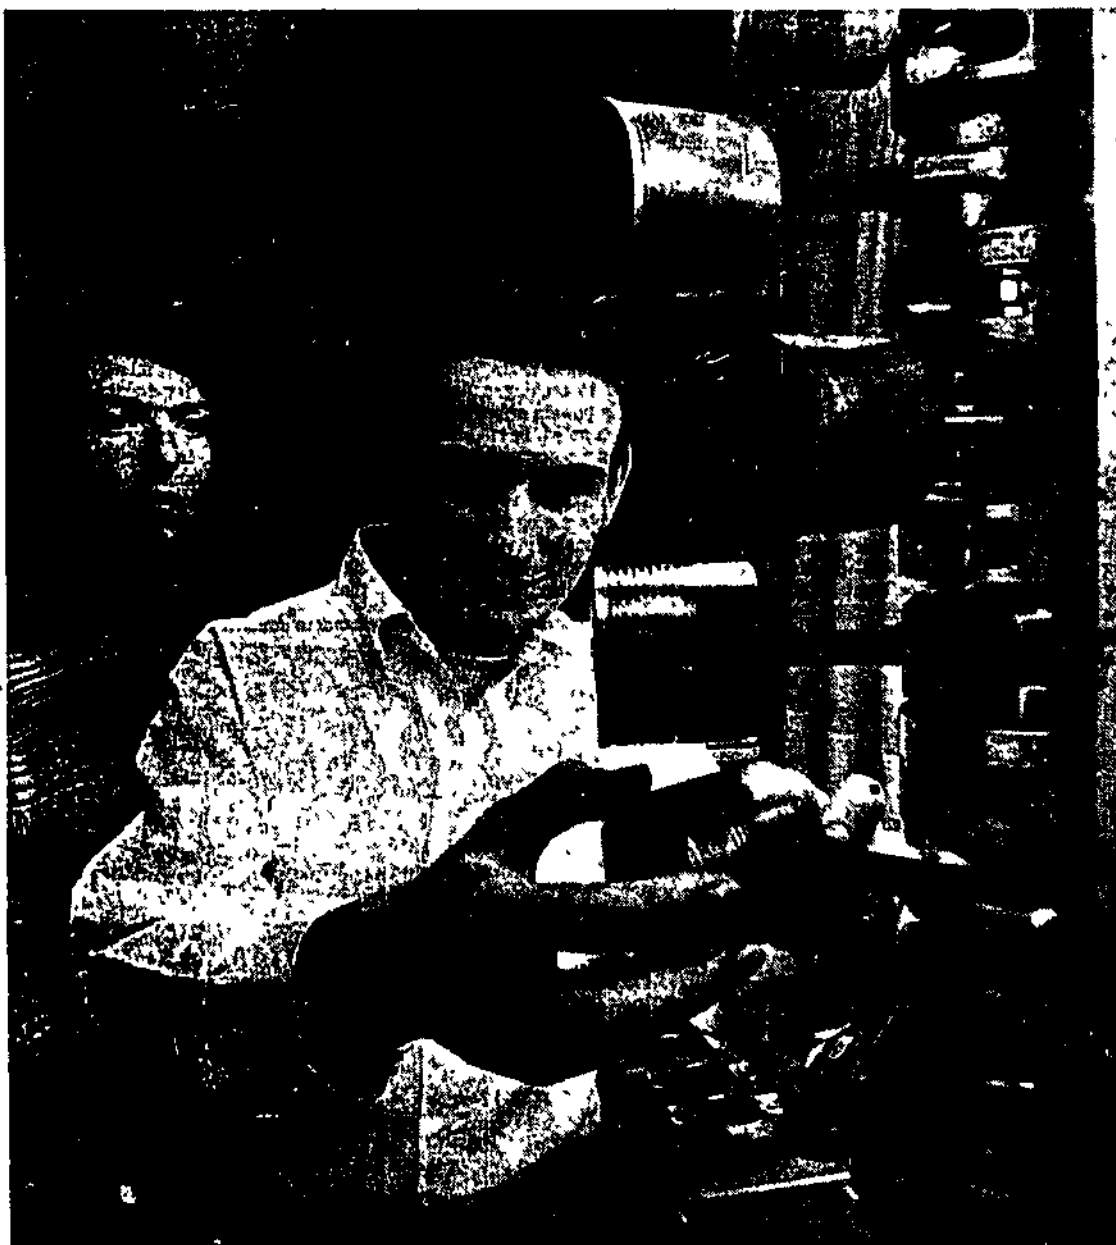

Marly Macko, a member of the Environmental Control Commission, said she had talked to the Laseke Disposal Co. several months ago about hauling to Sexton and Techny. At that time she said Laseke had quoted an additional cost of 50 cents a month per household.

At that rate, the village might be able to use the Techny and Sexton facilities for 30 months for the same cost of digging a new cell that would last 12 to 14 months, Mrs. Macko said.

The village board finance committee, which is currently holding budget hearings, put off a decision on the landfill question until the administration can check the costs.

Men's basketball at Heritage Park

The Heritage Park community building, 222 S. Wolf Rd., in Wheeling, is now open for men's basketball Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. There is no fee.

PISTON IN HAND, Larry Latta works on the engine of one of his hydroplanes, while his wife Frances supervises his effort. The engines, Latta said, are specially crafted, with a capacity of 175 hp and 9,000 revolutions per minute, although they are only 60 cubic inches. The Lattas repair and assemble the engines in their Schaumburg home, but they store their boats in a barn.

Plant faces hearing on '71 oil spill

Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. could face a state pollution board fine of up to $10,000 plus $1,000 per day if found guilty of violating state pollution laws through a 1971 oil spill into Weller Creek.

Some 200 gallons of fuel oil spilled into storm sewers underneath the Multigraphs plant parking lot, at 1800 W. Central Rd. in Mount Prospect, on Oct. 11, 1971 and made its way into the creek two days later.

The complaint, signed by the Environmental Protection Agency, states that the firm "caused or allowed oil to spill . . . so as to cause or tend to cause water pollution in Weller Creek" allegedly in violation of a section of the Environmental Protection Act. A public hearing before the state pollution control board will be held at 10 a.m. Feb. 13 at the Arlington Heights Village Hall, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

AT THE TIME of the incident, Edward Bruning, vice president and general manager of the firm, said the original spill took place when an oil company was filling one of the plant's storage tanks. "A defective gauge indicated the tank could hold more oil than it actually could hold," Bruning said. "The tank was around the corner and out of sight of the operator."

According to Bruning, the firm immediately took action to collect the spilled oil. He said eight employees used some 2,000 pounds of oil absorbent material to collect and barrel the spilled oil. They then flushed the area.

"We were not aware any oil had gotten into the storm sewer system," Bruning said then. But the oil appeared in the creek, and both Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights public works crews went to work to prevent most of the oil from reaching the Des Plaines River, of which the creek is a tributary.

The day after the spill was discovered in the creek, Multigraphs officials announced a five-point program designed to prevent future oil spills. None has been reported since that time.

Issue now in hands of Racing Board

Race date review plea thrown out

by KURT BAER
Circuit Court Judge Robert J. Downing yesterday threw out requests by the Illinois attorney general and Arlington Park Race Track for a review of 1973 racing dates.

The judge's decision puts the crucial question of dates in the hands of the Illinois Racing Board, which is scheduled to meet this morning.

Under the racing schedule upheld by Judge Downing, Arlington Park will open the Chicago thoroughbred racing season on April 19 and will close July 24.

Arlington Park had sought to get both more racing days and choicer summer dates. But track spokesman Tom Rivera said yesterday the track's only hope now lies with the racing board.

"IT'S ALL up to the new board. If it doesn't change the dates we'll be open April 19," Rivera said.

Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scarlano has said he will seek to revoke dates awarded to racing associations controlled by William S. Miller, a former racing board chairman now under federal indictment in a race track conspiracy case.

But any revocation would require action by the full racing board and could not be accomplished solely by the chairman.

Scarlano is expected to ask the board this morning to take that action.

Even though dates have been awarded to Miller's associations, the racing interests still cannot conduct a horse race without first securing a license from the racing board.

IN UPHOLDING the 1973 racing schedule as awarded by a 4 to 3 vote of the old racing board, Judge Downing said the court had authority to look only at the testimony presented before the racing board and could not consider outside evidence.

Scarlano on Monday had cited Miller's confession in the conspiracy trial and testimony before the Illinois Legislative Investigating Committee as grounds for revoking his racing dates.

Miller has received immunity in the conspiracy trial in exchange for his testimony.

Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott and Arlington Park charged in their suits that the racing board violated state law in granting the dates, but Downing said yesterday he found the board's action neither "arbitrary, unconscionable or capricious and not contrary to the statutes."

Scott had contended that state law prohibited anyone under indictment from receiving racing dates.

He further alleged that the dates as they stand would cost the state $3 million in tax revenue.

DOWNING, however, discounted the argument.

The judge also denied a request by Arlington Park and Washington Park Race Tracks Corp. for separate racing licenses for the Arlington and Washington divisions.

Two separate licenses were sought as a tax saver to the racing corporation.

Race tracks pay a progressive tax based on the total betting handle. By dividing, for example, 77 days of racing at Arlington Park in two separate meets, the corporation would be able to break up the betting total, and thus pay a smaller tax.

A separate suit is now pending before the Illinois Supreme Court seeking $3 million in back taxes and interest the attorney general claims is due the state because of the track's dual license operation from 1967 through 1971.

The hydroplane truth

100 m.p.h. by boat is a 'Latta' speed

by MARILYN HEISER

Larry and Frances Latta don't look like people who race hydroplanes at speeds in excess of 100 miles per hour.

But as soon as they start talking about their hobby, which consumes much time, effort, and money, it is obvious hydroplaning is as much a part of their lives as breathing.

Latta, gesturing with his hands, quick in speech and almost impatient with those confused by technical engine and boating terms, is more than a mere enthusiast.

Judging from the trophies decorating his Schaumburg home, Latta excels at his hobby, and has communicated his absorbing interest to his wife.

THEIR HOME is a workshop for the care and repairing of engines, propellers and the boats themselves. They own seven hydroplanes and 10 motors, which they store with a huge trailer in a Naperville barn.

But the parts and pieces compete for space in their house, as the engines require continual attention due to the extreme heat and stress of racing, Latta said.

Playing Mr. Fixit is not limited to the male in this family. Mrs. Latta, a secretary for Motorola Corp., said she too can take an engine apart and put it back together.

Wet from the boat's spray, Mrs. Latta is in there pitching while other wives look on from the dry shore. She readies an engine for Latta who's out in another cruising gracefully at 110 m.p.h.

When they first met, Mrs. Latta said, she didn't know anything about the sport. "At the first race I went to, Larry didn't do so well. I asked what I could do." She now says about the sport, "I love it."

While she has raced with her husband, Mrs. Latta said she has yet to race alone. "Larry built me an engine for my birthday, but I haven't gone alone yet."

"It's frightening to simply touch the throttle and be doing 80 to 90 m.p.h. The sensation of speed is really great, because you are kneeling, not sitting in the boat, which makes it seem like you're going twice as fast," Latta said.

THE LATTAS, with their trailer laden with boats about 14 feet long and weighing almost 200 pounds each, enter competition in various parts of the Midwest. Each contest, which generally covers five miles or lasts roughly five minutes, requires a different boat, different motor and different propeller, Latta said.

While the couple races for money prizes, "You barely break even on expenses," Latta said. And his proficiency at the sport won him second place in national races held last year in DePue, Ill.

The prize money averages around $100 a race, he said, but the boats, which run on a mixture of alcohol and castor oil, consume a great deal of fuel, a gallon a minute, at $1 a gallon.

At an average cost of $700 to $1,000, the hydroplanes are outfitted with expensive, hand-crafted engines, which require maintenance after every race. A recent mishap with four pistons ended up costing Latta close to $200, he said.

THE LATTAS met almost six years ago on the Mississippi River which separates their home towns of Keokuk, Iowa, and Warsaw, Ill. The river was the scene of a hydroplane race, naturally.

Now they are looking forward to winning first place at the August nationals and receiving their new boat, presently on order.

The huge "Mayor Daley" trophy which Latta won for overall high points in the 1971 Chicago Lakefront Festival overshadowed several other large awards decorating their mantel.

But Latta, an electrical engineer for Hallcrafters, Rolling Meadows, says modestly of his frequent wins, "It's a combination of lots of nitro (nitromethane, a fuel additive to increase speed) and dumb luck."

School news notes

Parents, teachers and students at Hawthorne School recently sponsored a family talent night called "Let It Begin With Me in '73." The program was directed by Beth French and Marsha Huffman.

Both women are instructional aides who worked with the students as they rehearsed acts, prepared backdrops and decorated programs in preparation for the show. Miss French and Diana Quinn, also an aide, organized a faculty melodrama as part of the entertainment.

The purpose of the show was to unite the students, staff and parents in an educational and entertaining evening.

Carlson, and learning center director, Doris Richter.

Students work before and after school and sometimes during recess. This has reduced a lot of time-consuming work for the librarian and learning center director.

"HELP THE Eagles — Before It's too late!" That's the plea going through Alcott School. Lori Kandl's fourth grade class is collecting Hunt's Big John labels and Snack Pack cartons to save the Bald Eagle. For each label, 15 square feet of land will be purchased by Hunts next to the Chippewa National Forest in Minnesota.

The land will be used for a National Eagle nesting area in hopes of preserving our national symbol, the Bald Eagle.

Mrs. Kandl's class studied the eagle and then enthusiastically advertised with original speeches, songs, poems, and posters to the other classes at Alcott. Letters were sent out, and now the collection of the labels from students throughout the school is in progress. All of Alcott hopes that it "is not too late!"

TWO PUPILS attending Alcott School in Buffalo Grove were recently awarded tickets to the third Northwest Community Concert Association performance of the year.

Catherine Morrissey, fifth grade, and Carla Saviano, sixth grade, were the recipients of the tickets for the January performance. The pupils were chosen by their teachers on the basis of musical interest and school citizenship. Catherine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Morrissey, and Carla is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Saviano.

The tickets are purchased for deserving pupils and their parents by the Alcott School PTA.

TARKINGTON SCHOOL has sponsored its third Honored School Citizen Award Presentation for this school year. The winners were Tara O'Connor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John O'Connor, and Mary Oslovich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Oslovich.

Tara, a fifth grader, was judged by her classmates and teachers as being courteous, cooperative, responsible, thoughtful, honest, clever, smart, and mature.

Mary, a sixth grader, was said to be an outstanding student, respectable, helpful, nice, friendly, cheerful, fair, understanding, and "always smiling."

The honors' assembly was followed by a presentation from Joe Hoffmann, Dist. 21 math coordinator. The students participated in some "fun" math activities.

NANCY De VRIES' first grade class at Tarkington School, has seen some very interesting and exciting happenings throughout January. Ann Mostofi, one of the first grade mothers, has been telling the children about Iran, rug making, the story of the Arabian Nights, and the making of mosaics.

Culminating the unit, Mrs. Mostofi prepared foods of Iran and presented Persian rugs and other Iranian items for the class to enjoy.

The Lighter Side...by Dick West

'Henry the Elucidator'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — We in the media are inclined to overdo the word "historic," but the signing of the Vietnam peace agreement undoubtedly was an event of that dimension.

And if we still followed the ancient practice of identifying historic figures by their foremost achievements, Dr. Henry Kissinger most likely would become known as Henry the Elucidator.

It is not true, as is widely believed, that it took Kissinger longer to explain the agreement than it did to negotiate it.

Actually, the televised briefing he conducted for newsmen lasted only 90 minutes.

BUT IF YOU formed the impression that the pact was more difficult to explain than it was to negotiate, then your conclusion coincided with my own.

However history might judge Kissinger's role in the negotiations, his niche as one of the all-time great expounders already is secure.

And, after all, what good would the settlement have been if nobody had been able to explain it?

The 90-minute press briefing was, beyond question, Kissinger's finest hour, or rather hour and a half, since he explained last year's strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union.

IT MAY ALSO further enhance Kissinger's "way" with the ladies.

Returning from Moscow after the signing of the SALT agreement, you'll recall, the presidential party stopped over in Teheran.

While there, Kissinger visited a night club at which a Persian belly dancer went mad with desire in the presence of his fatal charms and plopped herself into his lap.

He told reporters later that during the time he was thus encumbered he was "explaining how you convert SS7 missiles to Y class submarines" under the terms of the SALT accord.

IF THAT SORT of thing causes girls to go gaga, you can imagine what will happen when Kissinger starts whispering clarifications of the Vietnam peace agreement into their shelllike ears.

But be sure to send the kids out of the room before you let your imagination get out of hand.

For by the time Kissinger gets to the part about why there had to be two almost identical documents, one signed by all four parties and one by only two parties, and why on one document they signed on different pages, the explanation may reach the adults-only stage.

Indeed, this could be the first X-rated peace treaty in history.

Fewer taxpayers to file returns on 1972 income

Fewer taxpayers will have to file a tax return this year, according to Roger C. Beck, district director of Internal Revenue for northern Illinois.

Beck pointed out that recent tax law changes have increased the income levels required for filing a return.

Now, a single person under 65 years of age with a gross income of less than $2,050 for the year does not have to file a return. This applies to minors and students, Beck noted.

No return is required from anyone 65 or older unless the gross income was $2,800 or more. Married couples living together and filing a joint return do not have to file unless their combined gross income is $2,800 or more, or $3,550 if one is 65 or older, or $4,300 if both are 65 or older.

However, even when the income is under these limits, taxpayers should file a return to get a refund of any income tax withheld from salaries or wages, Beck said.

Businessmen, farmers, and other self-employed persons must file a return if their net earnings from self-employment were $400 or more.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Talk is supposed to be cheap, but it is likely to prove really expensive at the bridge table.

While West was considering his opening lead, South yelled at his partner. "Couldn't you let me play three no-trump. Don't you know my bid shows nine tricks at that contract?"

West thought a while and led the king of hearts. A low heart was played from dummy and it was East's turn to think. Would his partner hold the ace of hearts? Not likely after South's gratuitous remarks. South wouldn't be claiming nine tricks at no-trump with two suits un-stopped and he certainly didn't hold a club stopper.

Therefore, East ruffed the heart and played his queen of clubs. West signaled with the jack and East led to put West in with the 10, whereupon a second heart ruff defeated four spades.

North told South that if he had kept his mouth shut he would probably have made his four spades.

"Both of you shut up," growled East. "If North had passed I would have bid four clubs and we would have played and probably made a doubled minor suit game."

Herbert: once Army's most decorated, now its most scorned

One man's war on military 'elitism'

by RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK — In another time, another place, another war, Anthony Herbert was a hero.

He was the pride of the U.S. Army's resourceful public relations apparatus. He was the most decorated soldier of the Korean War, a brave All-American killer of our un-American enemies. He was a man who loved being an infantryman, who knew "what it meant to have that taste in your mouth and that burning in your gut to just be a soldier."

Today Herbert is, from the Army's point of view, a pariah.

RELIEVED OF HIS command of an infantry battalion in Vietnam in 1969 and accused of "lack of loyalty and moral courage," he spent the next three years in the Army trying to prove he was being persecuted.

He insisted the Army wanted to ruin him because he persisted in bringing charges against American troops who, he said, he had seen commit war crimes, including permitting Vietnamese soldiers the Americans were advising to murder civilians and torture prisoners.

When his superior officers insisted he was imagining things, he brought charges against them for failing to investigate his original charges.

AND FINALLY, saying that the Army was harassing him and his family because of his campaign, he resigned, as a lieutenant colonel. That was in November, 1971, not quite 25 years after he had first enlisted as a private.

"Hey kid, you wanna be a paratrooper?" a recruiter in Pittsburgh had asked him. "What's that," the 17-year-old Herbert had said. "You jump out of planes and fight," the recruiter said, and Herbert joined.

Now, 14 months later, Herbert is still far from estranged from his military life. He still wears his hair in a crewcut short enough to make an old drill sergeant happy. And when he answers a phone, he doesn't say "hello," he says, in automatic staccato, "Colonel Herbert speaking, sir."

BUT HIS LIFE these days revolves around a grim anti-Army crusade. His critics call it a vendetta. He says he is doing it to keep the Army from "destroying the country."

"Do I enjoy it?" he says to a reporter, with the aggressive, tense edge in his voice that seems to be typical.

"Not only 'no,' but 'hell, no.' This is physically very tiring and I'm getting tired of saying the same things over and over again. But it's necessary because the military establishment counts on grinding you down, making you give up; I won't let them do that to me."

So Herbert, ironically enough supported mainly by his $950-a-month Army pension, is making speeches, being interviewed, appearing on television (he is a favorite of Dick Cavett's) and promoting a book, "Soldier," he has written with journalist James Woolen.

"SOLDIER" IS A morbidly fascinating catalogue of his charges against the Army in biography form. In considerable nightmarish detail, he accuses the Army of everything from refusing to allow him to play Joan Baez records in a barracks ("She's a Communist," a superior officer told him. "Either the records go or you go.") to ignoring his eyewitness accounts of atrocities involving American troops.

His protests at times reach such a nearly shrill self-righteous pitch that it is tempting to discount them as paranoid ravings.

But the Army in the Vietnam era became a place where officers talked about combat patrols as "the hunt." It was a place where combat infantrymen sat in bunkers in isolated outposts watching portable television sets that brought them "Bonanza" via the Armed Forces network. It was a place where commanding generals of infantry divisions sent staff officers to Japan to scour Tokyo for Polynesian trinkets to decorate an officers' mess.

SO ON THE ONE side you have Herbert's superiors in the 173rd Airborne Brigade in Vietnam, Maj. Gen. John Barnes and Col. J. Ross Franklin. They have been cleared by an Army investigation and have vehemently denied Herbert's charges, calling him a liar and questioning his sanity.

On the other side you have Herbert, armed with boundless determination, corroborating eyewitness statements and a polygraph machine that indicated he was telling the truth.

These days Herbert is even carrying around a sheaf of classified documents signed by high-ranking Army and Pentagon officials. The papers, sent to him by a sympathizer in the Defense Department, discuss his case in terms that seem to support his contention that the Army wanted to ruin him.

The malady that has caused both the campaign against him and the failures in Vietnam that started the whole thing, Herbert argues, is "careerism."

"CAREER OFFICERS are dependent on promotions and later their pensions for their existence," he says. "Even their sense of manhood is tied up with being an officer; most of them don't get married until after they become officers and they're afraid their wives wouldn't respect them if they weren't officers any more. So they protect each other and become an elitist group completely out of touch with the people they are supposed to represent."

"Now that the war is over I think we'll see the careerists drag out the stab-in-the-back theory. The German military used it after the first World War because their leaders were too weak." The French used it in World War II because "the people didn't support them." And we can expect the same thing here."

HERBERT HIMSELF might easily have fallen into the careerist syndrome.

The son of a Western Pennsylvania miner, he performed enthusiastically and well as an enlisted man. He says he enjoyed "the sense of excitement" of combat and he was sent on a world tour as a glowing example of American manhood after the Army decided he was its most-decorated soldier in Korea.

But he left the Army in 1952 to go to college at the University of Pittsburgh. When he returned with a direct commission as a second lieutenant in 1956, he was not the same man. And by the time he was sent to Vietnam in 1968, he was a student of Kafka and Tolstol and had already acquired a reputation as someone who was not "a team player."

"I'M NOT ASHAMED of anything I did in the Army," he says now. "But I am disappointed in my naivete. It took me a long time to see that war is not too far removed from playing cowboys and Indians, running up and down hills and chasing people. And even at the higher levels, for an officer it's like playing chess, moving people around on little boards."

"When I got to Vietnam I saw that standard operating procedure for the officers was to get on a helicopter in the morning, go out to watch over a mission and be back in time for cocktails in the evening. It wasn't exciting any more when what I was doing was just giving orders that made other men die."

"There comes a time when you have to stand up and say, 'I've been a fool.'"

HERBERT HAS not become a dove. He thinks we could have won the war in Vietnam with better leadership and he doesn't criticize our participation in it. But he has become a symbol of the frustrations of Vietnam and as such has been generally well received by journalists.

(There have been some dissenters. The conservative "National Review," for instance, commented that Herbert "says he represents the best traditions of the Army. His friends in politics and the media are only too ready to agree, for it is in that role that he is of maximum use to them . . . if he hadn't existed, they'd have to invent him. Which, come to think about it, perhaps they did.")

And he has refined his style, doctoral student of psychology that he is.

When he called Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., an "ass" during a discussion of war crimes on Cavett's TV show recently, it was not a spontaneous outburst.

"I did that on purpose," he says, "because I wanted to show the American people in language they understand they shouldn't look at men as Gods just because they are in positions of power. Those men have to be accountable, too. And the higher the trust they enjoy, the more severe judgment of them should be."

No amnesty, Nixon insists

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House says President Nixon has not changed his campaign position that he will "never" grant amnesty to Vietnam War draft dodgers and deserters.

Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon's press secretary, was asked what was Nixon's position in light of the Vietnam cease-fire.

"Our position has not changed," Ziegler said.

Nixon took a hard line position on the issue during last fall's presidential campaign.

"Don't worry about that amnesty — never," Nixon told an Ohio couple who had lost a son in the war.

The statement contrasted with a position Nixon took on a television interview in January, 1972. At that time, Nixon said he expected he would be "very liberal in regards to amnesty."

It is estimated there are about 500 draft resisters and deserters serving jail terms in the United States and perhaps as many as 70,000 others in exile in other countries.

An aide said that Sen. Robert A. Taft Jr., R-Ohio, is contemplating reintroducing legislation that would provide at least a partial amnesty. Taft has suggested letting deserters come back home if they agree to spend time in the military or public service.

Taft, who generally is a supporter of Nixon, introduced similar legislation in the last session of Congress, but it did not pass.

Feb. 11 is National Inventors Day

WEST ORANGE, N.J. (UPI) — Thomas Edison's daughter sat at the desk in her father's library and pressed a switch. A replica of the original incandescent light burned brightly.

Edison invented the incandescent light, the phonograph record, the motion picture camera and had patents on 1,090 other inventions.

Last week, he became the first member of the Inventors Hall of Fame, and President Nixon has signed a resolution establishing Feb. 11, Edison's birthday, as National Inventors Day.

Ten people gathered in the spacious room that was Edison's library for a short, low-keyed ceremony.

Madeline Edison Sloane, 84, daughter of the inventor, walked to the ceremony from her home five blocks away in Llewellyn Park.

ON THE LIBRARY desk was a book entitled "Who's Who in Engineering — 1925." On the wall behind her was a sample demonstration phonograph record, dated Dec. 12, 1925, to be played on the machine he invented.

The library is part of a complex of buildings that served as Edison's laboratory from 1887 until his death in 1931.

Mrs. Sloane pointed to a cot near the desk in the carpeted library and remembered the many nights her father slept there. The library's walls are lined with three tiers of books and is reached by a winding stairway.

"He wasn't afraid of hard work. He was always trying something new," she recalled.

House reforms will aid public

Shortly after Rep. Harold Katz, D-Glencoe, came forth with a far-reaching proposal for improving rules and procedures in the Illinois House of Representatives, the leadership of both parties in the House informed the voters that that's what they've been trying to do all along.

The leader of Katz' party, Minority Leader Clyde W. Choate, D-Anna, huffed that Democrats have been drafting reforms for the past two years, though Katz had never been informed.

Republican Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Evanston, chimed in that he, too, had been deep in study over the matter, though he never brought forth any proposal until forced into an agreement for some reforms put forth by Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights.

Schlickman's abbreviated reform demands would assure a greater voice for individual members and would reduce somewhat the life-and-death power of the speaker over legislation.

The Katz program is much more far-reaching and incorporates the changes proposed by Schlickman, however.

Katz' proposals would not only enlarge the voice of legislators over the fate of their bills, but would also guarantee greater access to the legislative process by the public.

It is not uncommon for citizens to travel from throughout the state to testify before committees on proposed legislation — often without having had a chance to see the bill in printed form — only to find that the hearing has been capriciously postponed by the chairman.

Among Katz' proposed rules are two which would prohibit hearings until 10 days after printed bills have been made available to the public. Committees would then be compelled to hear witnesses who appear.

Other proposals range from increasing to two-thirds the vote required to bypass committee without public hearings; to requiring the speaker to call a bill for a vote within two weeks following a written request by the sponsor; to restricting fall sessions to considering vetoed bills and other items specifically included in the call of the session.

Blair has agreed in whole or part to some of these reforms and it is likely that some progress toward reform will be forthcoming.

Many of the changes in traditional rules of the House are dictated by the overwhelming number of bills proposed and the increasing difficulty for the public to know what the legislature is doing on a particular proposal.

It is true that the House in past years has operated fairly and efficiently under speakers who exercised the same near dictatorial powers as Blair held in the past session.

But the arbitrary and arrogant exercise of those powers by Blair has been chiefly responsible for the current demands for reform.

Republicans who may hesitate to divest a member of their own party of a measure of his power as speaker should not need to be reminded that they may in the future find themselves in the minority, with a Democratic speaker as capricious as Blair has been in the past.

It is in their own interest, and surely in the interest of the public, that they put aside partisan considerations and support the Katz program.

Hurrah for Baltic

It was a refreshing departure from the usual dismal fare that makes up so much of daily newspaper reading — the hullabaloo stirred up by the "plot" of the Atlantic City Commission to change the names of Baltic and Mediterranean Avenues, which, along with other of the city's streets, have been immortalized on the Monopoly board.

The story is now history: How fans around the country rushed to the defense of lowly Baltic and Mediterranean, some collecting Monopoly money to finance the cause; the eloquent plea by Edward P. Parker, president of Parker Brothers, manufacturers of the game, comparing the two streets to "such thoroughfares as Broadway, Trafalgar Square and the Champs Elysees;" the stirring rally cry of Princeton University student Robert Baker, who organized "Students to Save Baltic and Mediterranean" and proclaimed that the struggle "represented the last resort of the underdog to hold out against the oppressive forces of Boardwalk and Park Place power mongers."

And while it lasted it was a punster's dream. There were threats of sending the commissioners to "jail, directly to jail."

"We have turned the corner," said one observer after the commission backed down. A bit of Americana has been saved and it is now "Go" in the larger struggle to preserve other threatened American values and traditions.

Well, it was all in fun, but there just could be more truth than jest in the last sentiment.

If Americans care so much about Baltic and Mediterranean, the low-rent district of the Monopoly board so often scorned by Boardwalk and Park Place power mongers, maybe there's cause for hope that the communities we actually live in can be revitalized.

Defends Palatine unit

I wish to take this opportunity to attempt to clarify for your readers any misconceptions they might have formed after reading your recent article in the Palatine Herald, "Environment Unit Cites Trustees' Lack of Guidance," concerning a meeting of the Palatine Environmental Control Board and the public health and welfare committee of the village board. While there exists a factual basis for many of the statements, when removed from the entire context of my discussion with your reporter they take on a different meaning and incorrectly imply that a tense relationship exists between the environmental and the village boards. This implication is untrue. While it is true that we are seeking to open new lines of communication, one should not be left to assume that our present relationship is without any meaningful interaction.

I believe the frustration which I have expressed is only natural when one is responsible for a public group, which for many reasons has been unable to successfully meet all of its obligations and objectives. Environmental issues are terribly complex and numerous and our membership has been searching its mind in order to realistically set goals, objectives and priorities for the coming year. There are many directions in which we can head and we therefore sought the advice of the trustees in setting these goals. We have expressed a desire that the trustees and other village commissions not only help us develop long range objectives, but that they seek our aid and expertise where it might be necessary to determine the environmental impact of certain decisions. There presently exists no channel for such action. To that end, the public health and welfare committee is studying our goals and on February 5, our boards again will meet at which time we will receive their help in establishing direction for the future.

I expect our meeting, of February 5, will be very fruitful because the members of the village board have objectively examined all issues which we have discussed with them. They, by their support for our programs, have expressed confidence in the Environmental Control Board.

As was mentioned in your article, when we finally sat down to evaluate our record, we felt we had much to be proud of. We are very proud of the interaction we were able to generate among many individuals and groups to make our first blood drive so successful. Many communities have requested copies of our animal control ordinance, an ordinance which state health officials have praised. We have conducted extensive tests of our garbage bags and our solid waste program is considered by many to be one of the finest in the nation. We are near to completing an ordinance on soil and erosion control, and have helped conduct programs in emergency preparedness, first aid and medical self-help. We are considering re-opening our study of deicing salts and developing a total tree care program. We have a number of successes in the area of biological control of pest insects, and we look forward to serving the community in other areas of health and the environment as we are requested to do so by both citizens and private and public groups.

Our membership right now is overburdened. At our next meeting we will discuss recommending to the village board and president, for their approval, the appointment of an additional member. This still leaves us one member short of a full complement and we will continue to search the community for another who might lend his/her expertise to our group. We look forward to these two new members increasing our effectiveness and efficiency. Needless to say, we welcome suggestions from your readers to help us fill this vacancy.

With a full complement of members and new channels of communication into the community, we will seek to continue to fulfill our obligation to the people of Palatine.

'They helped us'

My family and I wish to thank the following for an excellent job in helping my two-year-old son, Jonathan who had taken an undetermined amount of a toxic material on December 19.

— The telephone operator from Central Telephone Company that helped contact the poison center, the police department, and the fire department. She was efficient and extremely fast. I'm sorry that we did not acquire her name.

— The Des Plaines policeman, badge number 170, John Stephens, who took care of my four-year-old son by placing him with a neighbor and according to my son, even put a dish of water out for the dog before coming to the hospital to make out his report.

— The men on the black shift of the Des Plaines fire department ambulance company for its prompt response to our call for help. They did their job rapidly and delivered my son to the emergency room of Lutheran General Hospital in no time at all.

It gives one a secure feeling to know that these people are here to help when it is needed.

'Let's support diabetes research need'

Our family has been reading all the very interesting articles and letters recently on diabetes. We have a diabetic child, too — there are many around us today because it has been passed on down from the diabetics who lived when insulin was discovered. Previous to that they died. This generation is loaded with diabetics, and not to scare anyone but the time has come to deal with it and tell it like it is. This will become even more common in the next generation when this generation marries and passes it on still more. Sometimes you can be a carrier of diabetes and even though you yourself never get it, your children can. It also gets a start somewhere, too, with no previous history of diabetes in the family. So no one can say or think they will never get it.

Many interesting things happen at the Suburban Group of Parents of Diabetic Children — I have learned much there and it's a help, anyone interested may attend, we meet once a month at the Chippewa Jr. High School in Des Plaines.

There is much work that could be done in diabetic research to help the generation now growing up with this disease and maybe with a lot of work a cure to help the coming generation with diabetes. A bill will be coming up soon on this in Congress. It's time to include diabetes on the list of charities — it surely is equally as important — and it belongs there and I hope to see it there soon. I get calls to go out for all kinds of drives, cancer, heart fund, you name it, they've got them all — I always ask — why isn't diabetes on the list, too?

Let's all support it and let them know how we feel about it, get your letters in and tell it like it is. No one wants children to go through life with diabetes. Don't forget — support diabetes research for the future of our children.

Is it low-income housing?

I believe some people have misinterpreted a letter written recently by Mr. and Mrs. John Bowers. I believe the Bowers are not concerned with housing for senior citizens; they believe it is needed. But they are concerned that what is proposed for senior citizens will erode into low income housing not used by senior citizens, but used by many able-bodied young citizens who exist on welfare.

Perhaps the Bowers also fear the subsequent deterioration of downtown Mount Prospect when many minority groups, not presently living in the Mount Prospect area, are brought in to fill such low income housing.

I believe the present proposals for senior citizen housing is a hoax for what is actually planned. Housing is urgently needed for our senior citizens. Why do our politicians elect to ignore this? Is it because more votes are available from the young ADC welfare group???

Mayor Atcher criticized

How long are the residents of Schaumburg going to put up with the callous disregard for education as shown by some appointed and elected officials of Schaumburg?

As apartment complexes such as Dunbar are approved by the village of Schaumburg, the load on schools increase. The village officials say that the schools are not our concern. Schools may not concern the mayor and his appointees, but they concern the people of the village and the township. The power to zone is with the village board, they must accept the consequences of these actions.

When schools deteriorate so will the multi-family and high rise apartment areas of the village. They will quickly become a ghetto. If that sounds far fetched,

I suggest the mayor and village zoning board take a ride through some high rise slums in Chicago.

In the past, the mayor of Schaumburg could be, and was, considered a friend of Dist. 54 and education. But what has the mayor done for us lately? We live in the now and future, not in the past.

Reporting praised

As a result of the Herald article and letters on juvenile diabetes, I have written several letters to congressmen and foundations and especially hope these letters and the awareness brought to the public by the Herald articles will promote more funding and research.

In my understanding, juvenile diabetes must rank with birth defects, cerebral palsy or cystic fibrosis in affecting a child's productive future. I appreciate the service the Herald provided in reporting this to my attention.

Can legislators get together?

Legislators are being asked by newsmen rather frequently these days if it is going to be possible to pass any legislation at all in the Illinois House of Representatives, in view of the splits within both the Republican and Democratic parties.

The answer they get with regularity is some jocular variation on the theme, "It would probably be the best thing that could happen to the people of Illinois if it isn't." The answer is half in jest, but it is also half in earnest.

The legislature, in the end, will come to terms with itself on the necessary things such as appropriations.

Beyond that, it is difficult to predict anything on such major issues as abortion and the constitutional amendment for women's rights. Public pressure on such volatile issues may force legislators to vote for them regardless of factional disputes achieving their passage through a non-partisan majority.

But on less spectacular questions which receive little attention from the public, many votes are liable to be decided on the basis of which faction has proposed them.

On the Republican side, the factions are the followers of Speaker W. Robert Blair (approximately 59) and those loyal to Rep. Henry J. Hyde, former majority leader (29). Neither can pass legislation without the other, or without considerable help from the Democrats.

The Democrats are divided between loyalists to Minority Leader Clyde Choate (72), the independents under the leadership of Rep. Harold Katz (16). Neither of these can pass legislation without the other, or considerable help from the Republicans.

While that may be a sorry mess from the viewpoint of professional politicians, and legislators, it could be a beneficial thing for the public.

If the divisions continue in both parties — and there is evidence that they will — it could mean the death of a large number of "pet" bills of individual legislators who are unable to bridge the gap between factions.

More importantly, it could mean dislodging some of the insiders in both parties from a measure of their control over the more independently minded. Without blind party loyalty, the leadership on either side could be forced to trade concessions with the "outsiders" to gain their support.

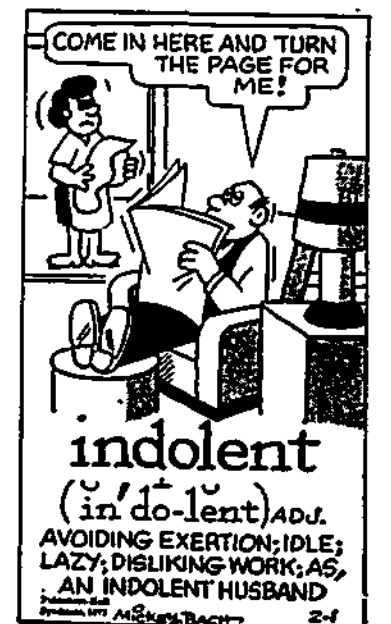

And the concessions sought by the minority factions of both sides generally add up to a greater voice for themselves in matters of legislative policy.

Since Hyde and Blair split over Blair's refusal to honor an offer to allow Hyde to name two leaders of the Republican majority, there have been predictions that the former majority leader and his backers would be brought back into line.

Now comes word that Hyde has proposed five names to Blair for inclusion on the 10 Republican posts in the House Rules Committee. The names were those of Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman of Arlington Heights (the chief architect of the move to depose Blair), Rep. Richard Walsh of Oak Park (the nominee for the second leadership post turned down by Blair), Rep. Robert Day of Peoria (long an antagonist of Blair's leadership), Rep. John Porter of Evanston and Rep. Charles Fleck Jr. of Chicago.

The first three were clearly unacceptable to Blair, and Hyde undoubtedly knew it. Blair turned them all down. It would seem that Hyde's proposal was simply a way of announcing that he had no intention of suing for peace.

Word a day

Business Today

by RON SCHERER

NEW YORK (UPI) — While the Dow Jones industrial average was breaking the 1,000 level, another money making area, commodity trading, was gaining favor with a record number of "swinging investors" with a gambling spirit.

Last year about 18 million commodity contracts changed hands, 20 per cent above the record set in 1971. They were worth over $200 billion, more than all the stocks traded on the nation's stock exchanges. The figure is inflated because most purchases are made on 5 to 10 per cent margin, but it still is a lot of money.

Margin is the percentage of cash necessary to purchase a given stock or commodity. Margin requirements in stock trading are 65 per cent cash.

WITH ALL THAT cash changing hands, some people have capitalized on world-wide shortages in wheat, sugar, soybeans and most recently, coffee. George K. Nazarian Jr., a commodity broker, is not so interested in how much money people made but how they made it. He believes stock traders could learn from successful commodity speculators in pork bellies, sugar and coffee.

Nazarian believes the lessons might include sound trading tactics, money management and self-discipline — the ability to stick to a game plan.

"Traders who make money in commodities are good stock market players because they cut their losses short and let their profits run," Nazarian said.

Aside from this cardinal rule, "They learn to go with the trend, sell short as easily as they go long, sit on cash when the opportunities appear limited, and enter a market only when the reward relative to the risk is clearly in their favor," Nazarian said. Short selling is the sale of borrowed stock or a commodity in the hopes of buying it back at a lower price later for return, thus making a profit.

PRUDENT MONEY management includes taking risks on only a small portion of speculative capital, Nazarian advised. "The speculator controls risk and protects profits through the use of stop orders." A stop order is an order to buy or sell at a given point.

Jerry Gold, president of Enterex Commodity Corp., noted that "One important aspect is that a speculator will admit he is wrong and take his loss. A stock man holds on to his mistake for 20 years in the hopes it will go up and he can 'break-even.'"

When the commodity investor is wrong he can be a big loser but when he's right, the profit potential is large. Nazarian recalls the 1972 sugar bull market when some traders caught the move from 5 cent to 10 cent sugar. If a speculator realized 60 per cent or three cents of this move, his profit was $3,300 on a $500 margin requirement for one contract.

Financial institutions are going to need all the time and money-saving ideas they can latch onto in the continuing battle for consumer dollars and the provision of streamlined, low-cost service. That's the opinion of John J. Lanigan, Illinois Savings and Loan Commissioner.

He sees the branching concept for savings and loan associations as well as commercial banks as a good way to get a handle on new technology in this field. Branching operations lend themselves easily to shared computer operations, and experimentation with new cost-cutting methods, he said.

Lanigan plans to introduce a legislative package at the end of February which would enable state-chartered savings and loan associations to begin branching operations as early as July 1. The recent Federal Home Loan Bank Board (FHLBB) announcement that it intends to allow federally-chartered associations to apply for branch operations in Illinois indicates the board's recognition of this need to accept technological and other changes, said Lanigan.

A LETTER SENT to Lanigan by the FHLBB on Tuesday raised his hopes of competition in branch operations on an equal basis for both federally and state chartered thrift associations. The board notified Lanigan that it will go along with his request to defer action on new branches until July 1, instead of the Jan. 31 date it previously announced.

"I think the financial institution industry should operate under the same guidelines, allowing greater competition. This always benefits the consumer," Lanigan said. "I think it's unfortunate that so many bankers opposed limited branch banking," he said of last week's rejection by the Illinois Bankers Association of a limited branching proposal.

The changes of passing a bill to allow both bank and savings and loan branching in Illinois how are "about 50-50," said Lanigan. "Whether we like it or not, there will be many federal branches (as proposed by the FHLBB)," said Lanigan.

"We would like to have the same opportunity."

"What I would like to see passed is a limited branching bill that would provide the added benefits of branching and services that consumers are requiring," said Lanigan. A limited bill would also maintain competitive aspects of unit operations, he said.

"We are moving into a checkless society," he continued. "We have to do this because the cost of paperwork has gotten so expensive it's astronomical. Automatic deposit of payroll funds into a savings and loan or bank, and cash-dispensing machines in factories, shopping centers and other locations are among innovations being tested in the U.S.," said Lanigan. He is working on a national study group for the automatic transfer of funds.

The recent Hunt Commission report indicates that savings and loans may eventually offer many of the same services now provided by banks, Lanigan said — this indicates heavier competition for the consumer dollar lies ahead, spurring the acceptance of new services.

Ask The IRS

Q) Is it true that the standard deduction has been increased for the 1972 tax year?

A) The percentage standard deduction has been increased. Instead of multiplying your adjusted gross income by 13 per cent, now you multiply by 15 per cent. The top limit was $1,500. Now it is $2,000.

Q) How can I tell whether I should itemize my deduction or choose the standard deduction?

A) It usually will be to your advantage to itemize deduction. If you are a homeowner paying interest and taxes; you had unusually large medical and dental expenses during the year; you paid alimony, suffered a major uninsured casualty loss, or made large contributions to qualified charities. This year many taxpayers will be taking advantage of the increased standard deduction. Your tax form instructions contain a formula you may use to determine which method you should select.

Q) When can I expect to get my W-2 form?

A) Employers are required to issue W-2 statements to their employees by Jan.

31. Many, however, issue them sooner for the convenience of those employees who are expecting a refund and want to file early.

Q) Are there any limits on how much my husband and I may claim for babysitting and maid service expenses incurred while I am out working?

A) You are allowed a deduction of up to $400 per month for expenses for dependent care and household services provided in your home: 1) If your dependent is under 15 and you are entitled to claim an exemption for him; 2) If your dependent is physically or mentally incapable of caring for himself, regardless of age. Of course, these expenses must be incurred to enable you to be gainfully employed and you must furnish over half the cost of maintaining the household that includes the dependent.

For more details, including the income limitations on the deduction, see IRS Publication 503, "Child Care and Dependent Care." It's available free by writing your Internal Revenue district office.

Q) Where can I get a copy of your income tax guide?

A) A copy of "Your Federal Income Tax," Publication 17 may be purchased for 75 cents from your IRS district office, many post offices throughout the country and the Government Printing Office in Washington, D.C. If you operate your own business, you may also be interested in Publication 334, "Tax Guide for Small Business," which you may also purchase for 75 cents.

FTC accuses Xerox: business monopoly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission officially accused Xerox Corp. of monopolizing the $1.7 billion office copying machines business, and demanded the company take steps to correct the situation.

The FTC said Xerox built its monopoly through unfair marketing and patent practices, and by stopping foreign affiliates from competing with the parent firm in the United States.

The agency originally proposed the complaint last Dec. 12. But negotiations to settle the matter through the usual consent procedure — where the company involved agrees to change its policies without admitting guilt — failed.

AS A RESULT, the FTC made the complaint official yesterday and turned the matter over to one of its law judges.

The complaint alleges Xerox so dominated the market it accounted for 86 per cent of all the revenues from the sale and lease of machines in the market during 1971. The corporation's position was even more dominant — 85 per cent of all revenues — in the $1 billion segment of the market concerned with copiers which use plain, untreated paper.

The FTC said Xerox has, through its monopoly position, forced customers to lease, rather than buy, its equipment; charged different customers different prices; monopolized and attempted to monopolize copier patents; used its patent position to head off potential competition and, with a British connection, "effectively divided up the world market for plain paper office copiers."

THE FTC demanded Xerox offer unrestricted, royalty-free licensing of all existing office copier patents, and unrestricted licensing of any copier patents it might obtain during the next 20 years.

The agency also demanded Xerox divest its stock in Rank Xerox Ltd., of Great Britain, and drop any prohibition against that firm selling its products in the United States.

Dividend News

A. O. Smith Corp.

A. O. Smith Corp. earned $9,944,000, or $2.02 a share in 1972, on record sales of $492,770,000. L. B. Smith, chairman and chief executive officer, reported the annual results.

Earnings for the year were below 1971 results when the company had profits of $12,800,000, or $2.61 a share, (before an extraordinary loss), on sales of $456,846,000, Smith said.

For the fourth quarter, earnings were $2,062,000, or 42 cents a share, compared with $3,032,000 or 61 cents a share, in 1971. Sales in the fourth quarter were $131,995,000, compared with $112,505,000 the previous year.

Smith told members of the Investment Analysts Society of Chicago that losses at the company's elevator subsidiaries and at a former line pipe manufacturing affiliate were the principal reasons for the earnings decline in 1972. He estimated that if the elevator and line pipe businesses had attained the same results as in 1971, earnings in 1972 would have been $1.12 per share higher. Of this difference, 15 cents is due to the A. O. Smith Corporation of Texas line pipe operation with the balance attributable to losses at the company's elevator subsidiaries.

Sola Basic

Sola Basic Industries reported nine month earnings per share up more than 30 per cent from last year. Earnings now have increased 30 per cent or more in each of the last four quarters.

Earnings for the three month period ended Dec. 31 were $1,342,517 or 39 cents a share on sales of $29,763,069. Corresponding figures for the same period last year were $1,003,985 or 30 cents a share on sales of $25,405,924.

Nine month earnings of $3,567,069 or $1.04 a share on sales of $87,067,442 were up from $2,560,446 or 79 cents a share on sales of $70,719,685 in fiscal 1972.

Commenting on the results, Sola Basic president Frank H. Roby said, "The favorable earnings trend is without benefit of any form of relief from government price controls. Broader market diversification, efficient new production facilities, effective expense controls, and generally improved business conditions are the major contributing factors."

'Pastor Jim's' church caters to our mobile society

by BARRY SIGALE

The marketing approach used to reach the varied needs of a diverse and highly mobile society such as those living in the Northwest suburbs has filtered down to religion and the teachings of God.

Using an experimental avenue which involves the active participation of its church members, the Evangelical Covenant Church of America is concentrating its efforts in this area, fulfilling the requirements of a portion of a free-wheeling and free-thinking populace.

Catering to about 600 persons in the Northwest suburbs, the Covenant Church has adopted an informal method of reaching its followers through the interaction and shared experiences of its members.

The suburbs have provided a challenge for the church and its philosophies. Basically a middle-class area, residents have particular problems such as divorce, breakdowns in family relationships and just plain disillusionment with the world around them. Add to this the mobility of a transient community and a unique set of problems arise.

THE CHURCH has about 400 members from the Mount Prospect area who worship out of a building at Elm and Isabella. About 50 members come from the Schaumburg area. There is no building in Schaumburg but there are construction plans for a five-acre area plot south of Woodfield on Meacham Road. Also, there are more than 50 members in the Northbrook area.

The newest community the church is involved in is Palatine, a town of 27,000 persons, and the location of Harper College, which has proved to be a lucrative recruiting ground.

Rev. Jim Frithelm, a 1972 graduate of the Seminary at North Park College on Chicago's northwest side, for three months has been enlisting members to the church from Palatine and the college.

Pastor Jim deals mainly with the apartment dweller in Palatine, whom he describes as affluent, mobile, isolated within their complexes and who are depressed people, having gone through divorce and other family problems.

In some ways, these people resemble other people across the country. They are concerned about being manipulated by government and by schools, he said. People are not accepted as people but as objects by interest groups and others.

"PEOPLE COME to me and say there's nothing left. They're disillusioned. Most people don't know how lonely people are. Or how they're in debt. We find desperately depressed people. They see no one. These huge complexes are impersonal."

Pastor Jim described the informal approach the church is taking in villages like Palatine to solve the problems of its residents.

"The mobility of our society, the fact that statistically one of four families move every year, that companies are going to four days work weeks means we have to adapt to these changes in lifestyle. We must adapt to it instead of crying (like the traditional churches do) that no one is coming to church on Sundays."

"Our kind of fellowship is small. We can give the kind of openness and attention people like. And we can follow up in dealing with people's problems. We try to build our program on people's needs, not 'this is what we have to offer.'"

The suburban program is part of a broader project called "Project Grow." There are about 70,000 persons following the more than 100-year-old religion. Locally, according to Pastor Jim, just about every religion is represented in the membership of the Covenant Church.

The local program involves Bible study, the reading of the scriptures, including individual reading of parables and role-playing by some of the participants, singing and the sharing and interaction of one person with another.

THE CHURCH holds worship services Sunday mornings at 10:30 a.m. in the luncheon room at Palatine High School. Bible studies are held on Sunday nights and activities are scheduled every night in the week except Saturday.

Some of the more pressing problems Pastor Jim must deal with involve death and the sour relationships among families.

"Someone said death is the only absence left in society. The problem of death is one of the biggest things I have to deal with. I just spoke to a group of high school students and they asked me to talk about it. They're very interested," Pastor Jim talks mostly to people who are grieving over someone or those who are in homes who are dying. He explained he tries to bring them some hope.

The other major problem is the breakdown of the traditional family structure.

Pastor Jim pointed to these statistics to show how the marriage concept has changed: one of every five women are pregnant before marriage. Over 50 percent of all marriages end in divorce.

A major factor in marriage problems in the affluent suburbs develops when both parents are working, said Pastor Jim. Another common cause is the busy schedule of the father, who as an executive, must be away from home five days a week.

"KIDS VALUES don't reflect those of their parents," Pastor Jim said. "Kids are getting their values from school, their friends and other sources, not at home. That's why part of our program involves father-and-son fishing trips, ice skating and other activities."

The problems with youth have led Pastor Jim to Harper College. Students there have been receptive to the church's teachings of God.

Harper is a unique school, said Pastor Jim. There aren't as many activists as elsewhere. In other words, the students have not been out stumping in dramatic numbers for an end to the war, a leap on discrimination or a boycott of lettuce.

Nevertheless, college students are questioning society and seek solutions to their problems. The Covenant Church is attempting to help them.

The church counts about 250 students as members who participate in Bible studies, the reading of the scriptures and sharing experiences.

In relating to both kinds of people who belong to the church, Pastor Jim must change his approach, just as he thinks most churches must do to remain meaningful to its members.

"When I'm with my students I may not wear a tie. I may even wear my cowboy boots. For others, I'll wear a suit."

PASTOR JIM, 27, was raised in Minneapolis. He graduated from the University of Minnesota before attending North Park and interning at Kingsburg, Calif. His father has been a Covenant minister for 40 years. It was for this reason, and the fact that his young wife died of leukemia four years ago, that Pastor Jim turned to religion.

"Personally, I feel this is the best time ever to be a minister. Society is more open to Christianity. People are more acceptable. We bring a caring relationship to our people. Our church provides another opportunity. We help people whether they're involved with the Covenant Church or not. If someone is in need of help we'll give it."

For $10,500 in salary per year it would appear Pastor Jim must be devoted to changing the ideals of the present ministry.

"We're trying to make the minister a real man. Now, the minister is not as educated as before. People are as educated or more so. It's no more the minister up here, the people down there."

WITH THE CHANGING approach to religion, Pastor Jim Frithelm of the Evangelical Covenant Church of America makes use of his sparsely fur-

'Focus: Northwest' on FM

The two sites of testing — in industry and in education — are the topics of the next two programs on "Focus: Northwest," a public service discussion program over Arlington Heights station WWMX-FM (92.7).

Four panelists tomorrow will discuss the purpose and value of testing for vocational and aptitude reasons, while also looking at the myths that surround testing.

Participants will be Charles Kelly Barton, engineering division chairman, and counselors Dennis Brokke and Raymond Hylander of Harper College, and Anna Bedford, a Des Plaines businesswoman.

The industrial uses of testing will be examined Feb. 9 by Jim Bleece of the State of Illinois Employment Agency, Paul Koslask, director of industrial services for Science Research Associates, William Karp of William Karp Consulting Co., and a representative from the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Moderator of both programs is Dr. Gary Rankin, dean of student services at Harper College.

Tomorrow's programs are broadcast at 6:45 p.m. and are aired again at 9 a.m. Sundays.

'Kyro' ends tie finishes

Swimming Editor

A small device, not much bigger than a shoe box, has taken the word "tie" out of swimming meets at Wheeling and Arlington Heights pools.

The Kyroscope, an automatic timer, is being used for home meets involving Hersey and Wheeling at the Wildcats' pool and Forest View, Arlington and Rolling Meadows at Olympic Pool.

Meadows probably wishes it could have taken the timer along to Elk Grove Friday. Competing at Lively Junior High's Disney Pool, the Mustangs' Gary Grunwald tied the Grenadiers' Brent Bolin for first with clockings of 54.0. One judge was watching each swimmer in the 100-yard freestyle, thereby calling it a draw.

Both Doug Cotner, Wheeling's coach, and Don Anderson, Arlington's coach, cited examples of how the machine has already avoided deadlocks.

Both Kyroscopes were purchased through donations in the form of pledges. The aforementioned teams that use the pools along with park district swimmers participated in a marathon swim with so much money earned per length of the pool. In Wheeling's case, the track team also helped out by a running marathon indoors.

Olympic Pool was able to purchase the entire device — machine, touch pads and electric starting gun — for $4,900. Wheeling's total fell a little short and so just the machine and a push button setup.

"We're going to eventually try to go with touch pads," said Cotner, who added that the push button method is also an excellent means of determining a winner.

Quite a lot of time is saved besides the factor of accuracy. The old method had people — often having very little experience — reading stop watches, writing down the times, running over to the scorer's table and writing them down again before the next event could begin.

With Olympic's setup, an official pulls the trigger of a wired gun which sets off the timing device. When the final lap is being swum, the pads are activated. One individual sits at the controls. A flip of a switch and a spin of a dial gives clockings down to 1/1000th of a second.

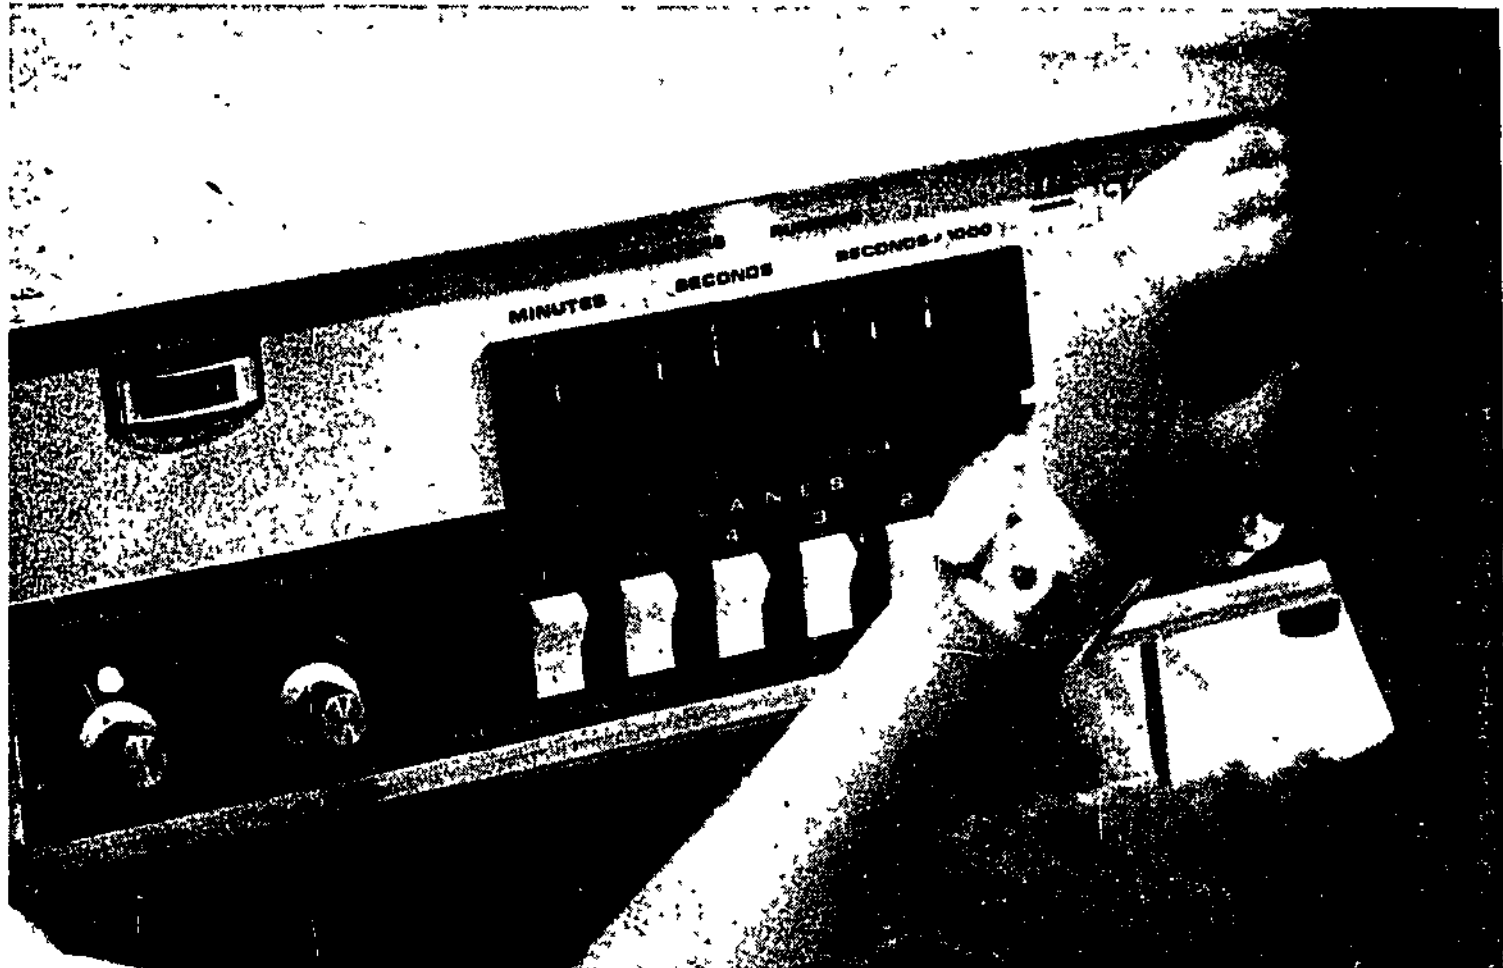

Watching the blur of numbers reminds one of a blastoff. The controller has to enjoy a certain sense of power as well as responsibility. It also has to give the coaches, teams and spectators the good feeling of knowing that there will be an accurate finish.

After renting a unit from Glenbrook South for the Northern Illinois Swimming Championships last summer, "we know that we wanted one," said Anderson. "It takes the guesswork out of it."

No Mid-Suburban school has ever hosted a state district meet, but the addition of the Kyroscope "should help us," said the Arlington coach. "I still feel we have as good a facility as anybody in the state. We can seat up to 1,000 people."

Those who attended the districts involving area teams last year only saw a couple of hundred at either Highland Park and New Trier West. The growing interest in swimming in this area should be able to draw much more than that.

With the addition of the Kyroscope, a local district seems only a written request away.

PREPARING FOR THE COUNTUP is the controller who registers six lanes of swimmers. Both these timers. They eliminate ties by registering the Kyroscope, a timing device that gives precise clockings of six lanes of swimmers. Both Wheeling High School and Olympic Pool have times to 1/1000th of a second.

Knights, Cards, Grenadiers big winners

SPOTLIGHT ON SWIMMING

They'll be dueling for the undisputed leadership in the dual meet standings of the Mid-Suburban League Friday afternoon at Disney Pool in Elk Grove Village.

Arlington, 4-0 in the conference and owner of the most depth of the seven teams, will be hosted by Elk Grove, also 4-0 and leader of the most surprises so far. The meet, to be held just behind Lively Junior High, will begin at 4:15 p.m.

Other action will have Forest View at Wheeling and Rolling Meadows at Hersey, both starting at 4:30. Hersey's meet with Wheeling on Tuesday was moved to yesterday.

Those supposedly in the know in the MSL figure Arlington to have little trouble with the very young Grenadiers, but stranger things have already happened this season. Coach Don Anderson's Cardinal team appears stronger on paper. One coach, who doesn't have ties with either team, even ventured to predict a score of 60-26. However, Grove coach Jim Harrington would disagree with such a guess.

The proper matchups might make the score much closer. Also, the unpredictable — such as the flu which ruined Hersey's chances earlier in the season to give Prospect a thorough test — could also be an evening up factor.

CARDS WARM UP

Despite shuffling his lineup, Anderson's Cards had little trouble with the former champion Forest View Falcons, 73-22.

Arlington swept every first and slammed (look 1-2's) the young team of Coach Jim Hillary in three events.

Anderson was most proud of the showings by Mike Nitch. He stroked to victory in the 50 (23.9) and the 400 freestyle (4:15.5).

Brother Joe Nitch, not to be outdone, captured wins in the 200 medley relay (2:17.6) and the 100 butterfly (1:03.2).

Rounding out the twin wins was Dave Hartman. This senior freestyler won the 200 (1:54.8) and the 100 (52.3).

Doug Schlak and Kevin Reddy paced the Falcons with seconds in the 50 and 100 free and the 200 medley and 400 free, respectively.

GROVE ROLLS ON

The Grenadiers made off with nine firsts against visiting Rolling Meadows, but the Mustangs finished with three An impossibility with only 11 events? No! There was one tie.

Grove's Brent Bolin was tied by Gary Grunwald in the 100 freestyle at 54 seconds flat. That was one of the few good things that happened to the Mustangs of Coach Phil Pardon.

When the results were in, the Grove had locked up a 55-40 victory.

Steve Banach and Scott Bolin again led the way. Banach took the individual medley (2:19.7) and the backstroke (1:02.1). Bolin the 50 free (23.50) and the butterfly (55.9). The latter mark was the best turned in this year in the Herald area. It was the first time Bolin tried the event this season.

PROSPECT POWER

Coach Jerry Lovejoy's Knights probably expected to sweep all 11 events from Meadows, but a freshman prevented the feat.

Jeff Slack was a pretty popular diver for his school after upsetting a pair of juniors with a total of 177.85. Slack just edged out Paul Bollt by 5/100ths of a point (177.80). Don Kinnaman finished third (167.75).

This took some of the sting out of the Knights' 71-24 victory at the Mustangs' pool.

A trio of Knights took double wins — Tom Bennett in the 200 free (2:02.4) and 400 free (4:21.4), Rick Fox in the 50 free (22.4) and 100 free (50.7) and Dave Larsen in the individual medley (2:15.2) and butterfly (1:01.1).

Fox's 50 was his best effort to date and also tops in the honor roll.

A BIG KNIGHT WEEK
Prior to the lopsided win over Meadows, Prospect polished off rebuilding Forest View, 73-22.

The same Knight threesome led the way with Fox again lowering a mark, this time in the 100 with a 49.8 — best of the area sprinters.

Prospect captured 10 of the 11 events this time with Jeff Geisler helping Forest View save face with a victory on the backstroke (1:02.1).

Perfection - Lions' aim

St. Viator, holding undisputed possession of first place in the Suburban Catholic Conference, will try to finish the dual portion of its season with a perfect 4-0 record against visiting St. Patrick on Friday, 4:30 p.m.

The Lions of Coach John Fleck are expected to have an easy time of it against the Shamrocks, losers to Marmion in their last outing, 56-36. St. Viator easily handled the defending SCC champion Cardinals earlier.

As of last week, the Lions held the top spots in seven of the 11 events on the SCC honor roll. Individually, Ed Fitzsimmons leads the locals with firsts in the 200 and 400 freestyles with 1:53.1 and 4:08.1.

Other leaders are Mike Salerno in the backstroke (54.8), Kevin Szarabjka in the breaststroke (1:06.2) and Jim Wolf in the butterfly (57.7).

The medley is tops with 1:46.4 with the 400 free relay also holding a big edge with 3:30.4.

The St. Viator frosh-soph team also is 3-0 going into Friday's meet. Marmion trails both Lion teams with a 2-1 mark.

A TOP PERFORMER for Rolling Meadows is Ken Stahnke. He captured the breaststroke against Elk Grove and took second in 200 individual medley, but it wasn't enough. The young Grenadiers took firsts in nine events for a 55-40 victory. The Grove is presently tied with Arlington for first.

A FUTURE STAR for Forest View in the distance sophomore is one of the leaders this season for the second to Prospect senior Tom Bennett in both the events figures is to be Kevin Redig. This Falcon young team of Coach John Hillary. He finished 200 and 400 freestyle events.

East Leyden nips Rolling Meadows

Rolling Meadows probably lost the meet in the first relay at East Leyden last weekend.
 Coach Phil Pardon said he thought his medley relay team had toured the 200 yards faster than Leyden, but the two officials saw differently. The Mustangs lost the relay by 1/10th of a second and dropped the meet by a 50-45 score.
 Gary Grunwald paced the first-place finishers with wins in the 50 and 100 freestyles. Other firsts came off the efforts of Ken Stahnke in the individual medley, Paul Volkmer in the butterfly and Romulo Inturrisse in the backstroke.

 Accounting for the other scoring spots were these Mustangs:
 Seconds — John Schmitt in the 200, Jeff Gillen in the individual medley, Inturrisse in the 50 free, Schmitt in the 100 free, Gary Adams in the 400 free and Stahnke in the breaststroke.
 Thirds — Jim Donchey in diving and Gillen in the backstroke.

KNIFING THROUGH the water in the individual medley event is Prospect's Dave Larsen. This young Knight, only a sophomore, captured the IM and the butterfly after teaming with three others to win the medley relay against hosting Forest View last week. The Knights easily won, 73-22.

Wildcats capture 2nd in Wisconsin

Competing for only the first time in the fifth annual Nicolet hosted Knights' Junior Varsity Invitational, Wheeling was led to a second-place finish by Dave Mede.

Mede captured the 200 (2:12.8) and 400 (4:50.7) freestyle events as the Wildcats racked up 65 points, 11 fewer than Nicolet, at the Wisconsin meet.

Two other 'Cats chalked up firsts — Dave Rothhaar in diving (38.24) and Dan Spaulding in the individual medley (2:32.7).

Spaulding also placed second in the butterfly (1:14.2). Other seconds were taken by Bill Black in the 50 (26.2), Mike Pasdora in the backstroke (1:11.1) and Dana Stillson in the breaststroke (1:15.4).

The final standings looked like this:
 Nicolet 76, Wheeling 65, Racine Horlick 27, Brookfield Central 24, West Bend West 10, Racine Park 6, Marquette 0 and Campion 0.

At Beverly Lanes

There were seven handicaps of 200 or better in the Arlington Heights Ladies Elks league at Beverly Lanes . . . Lou Elsberg led with 221 and also a 200, Lillian Byhring recorded a 207, Barbara Larsen 206, Val Hansen 217, Mary Barkulis 203, Shirley Juretschke 202, and Betty Hennessy 200 . . . Gladys Fontana picked up the 2-7-10 split.

MSL roundup of lower levels

Behind the double wins of sophomores Steve Clarizio and Tom Szerelme, the Elk Grove frosh-soph team handled Rolling Meadows, 58-36. Clarizio won the individual medley (2:34.7) and the backstroke (1:11.9); Szerelme took the 50 (25.0) and the 100 (57.6) freestyles.

Jeff Haseman paced the Arlington junior varsity team to a lopsided 63-32 victory over Maine East with victories in the 200 (2:04.4) and 400 (4:28.1). Also posting double wins were Dale Patterson in the 50 and 100 freestyle events.

Arlington failed to produce a double winner in the freshman meet with Maine in losing 59-36.

Failing to lose at all in the Mid-Suburban League was the Hersey freshman team. The young Huskies rolled up a 6-0 record to reign as the unofficial conference champs. Chris Tague paced the Hersey showing by going undefeated in the 150 and 300 freestyles and also being a member of the perfect 400 free relay team.

Forest View surprised Prospect with big wins in the 50 and 400 freestyle events by Mark Oliver to help in bringing a 48-47 victory to the young Falcons. Oliver went 27.1 and 4:59.1 in two events. Gary Eichhorst took the 200 (2:05.9) and 100 freestyles (55.9) and Brad Busse also doubled in the individual medley (2:27.9) and breaststroke (1:11.5) to pace Prospect.

It was Eichhorst and Busse doing the principal damage again against Rolling Meadows as the Knights won, 87-42. Eichhorst won the same events — 200 free (2:07.5) and 100 free (57.1) — as did Busse — individual medley (2:31.4) and breaststroke (1:15.0).

Posting firsts in all 11 events, the Arlington sophomore team cruised to an 82-15 victory. Bob Buechner was the only double winner with firsts in the 200 free (2:08.7) and the 400 free (4:30.1).

Rematch set

Arlington, Wheeling win; Showdown coming Friday

by KEITH REINHARD

Your playmaker guard feeds off for nine assists, your youthful pivotman cans 17 points, your whole team fires at a nifty 52 per cent and it's only halftime.

You've built up a healthy lead, haven't you coach?

The answer is negative if you're from Fremd and you've just gone off the floor at Arlington Tuesday. Viking coach Leon Kasuboske saw it this way en route to an 83-63 setback at the hands of the Cardinals that evening.

The score at halftime, despite some pleasing Fremd antics, favored the hosts 19-18. While the Vikings were shooting better than .500 during those first 18 minutes, George Zigman's charges were hitting at a sizzling 68 per cent clip and they rode the crest of that hot opening half to their ninth conference victory of the season without a loss and their second win over Fremd this winter.

"As far as I'm concerned, you spot Arlington about 10 points anytime you play on this floor to begin with," Kasuboske lamented. "But I thought we played a much improved game in comparison to our first meeting with them."

"The big trouble was," continued the Viking helmsman, "Arlington has improved quite a bit themselves since we played them up at our place in December."

Something was in the Cards Tuesday. Departing from their usual cautious defensive ways, Arlington matched Fremd's run and press tactics with their own brand of fireworks. Jeff Cleveland led the assault with a 15-point first half display, contributing three assists, a couple of steals and half a dozen rebounds to boot.

Cleveland's showmanship, coupled with the hot hand of Arlington in general, was more than enough to offset the 17-point first half outburst by junior Vike center Doug Mize and Mark Funk's flashy floor game.

The hosts plunked in the first nine points of the game and Fremd never came closer than six the rest of the way. It was 13-3 with little more than two-and-half minutes elapsed and 23-11 in favor of the Cardinals as the clock ticked off the sixth minute of the opening stanza.

A couple of 15-footers by Bob Frank sandwiched around Larry Coughlin's inside shot trimmed the margin to 23-17 but Dan Donahue and Brian Gaare each countered once underneath for the Cards and it was 29-19 when the period finally ended.

When play resumed Arlington quickly widened the gap to 33-19. The two clubs exchanged baskets most of the remainder of period two and the margin stood at 11 during intermission.

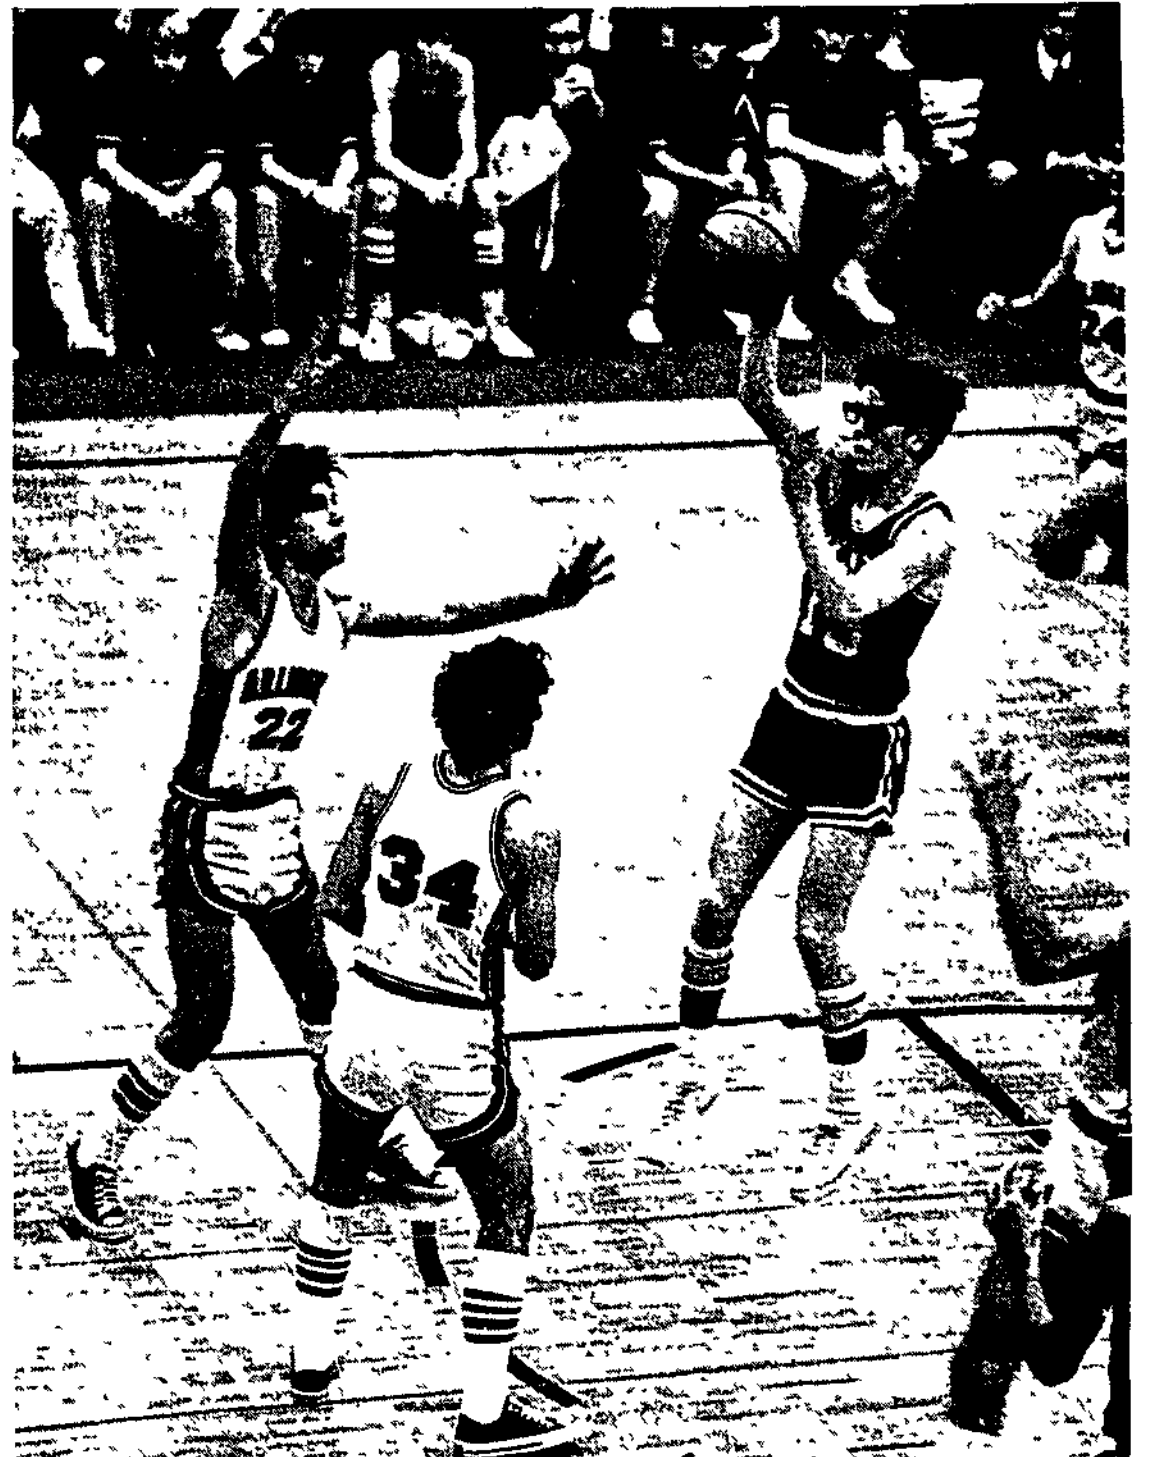

Early in the third quarter Gaare drew his fourth foul and Zigman replaced the 6-5 forward with 5-11 guard Jerry DiSimone. What Arlington lost in boarding power, the soph sharpshooter made up for on hustle, scrapping for eight points during one rally that shot his club on top 69-46.

When it was over DiSimone joined with four Card starters hitting in double figures. Donahue, who had not turned this trick in his last three loop encounters, broke the lull with a 20-point outburst and Cleveland finished with 21 to pace the victors. Gaare added 12 more to the cause while Jim Stull and DiSimone had 10 apiece.

Mize still copped game scoring honors at 27 while Coughlin supplied 11 points more for the Vikes.

Wildcats claw Palatine to stay 2 behind Cards

by ART MCGALLAN

There's a new basketball powerhouse in the Mid-Suburban conference as of Tuesday night.

Arlington and Prospect will have to make some room for the Wheeling Wildcats. Coach Ted Ecker's team was superb in scuttling the Pirates of Palatine 71-41 with a combination of muscle and finesse.

The Cats' victory keeps them two games behind pace-setting Arlington on the eve of Friday's showdown between the two North Division rivals.

Tuesday's triumph before a packed Wheeling auditorium was a team effort all the way. The Wildcats were in top form as they controlled the game from buzzer to buzzer.

"We certainly did dominate the game," Ecker admitted with a hint of modesty. "Our big men are strong and they're capable of dominating it. They got the job done."

The big men Ecker was referring to were Bill Pickler and George Kaage. Pickler had perhaps his best game of the season Tuesday. The 6-foot-4 forward scored 15 points and contributed 10 rebounds, while Kaage, the Cats' 6-4 center, led all players with 17 points and 12 rebounds.

"Pick really went after the ball," Ecker mused, "especially in the second half. Twenty-two rebounds between those two kids... that's good."

"I suppose that's the most aggressive game we've been able to put together," he added.

"We got the daylights beat out of us," Palatine head man Ron Finrock said. "Physically and everything."

Finrock went on to complain that the officiating wasn't close enough. "You couldn't get a rebound without getting hit and they wouldn't call it," the coach said.

Ecker agreed that the calls were loose but added, "That's the kind of officiating you want to see in the state tournament. Just let them play."

The tightest officiating in the world wouldn't have stopped Wheeling Tuesday night however. From the opening tip, controlled by Pickler, the Cats were majestic. Pat Smith sank a jumper ten seconds into the game and the rout began. Four minutes later Palatine trailed 16-4, the victims of hot shooting by Bill Kenney, Pickler and Kaage.

Palatine threw a press at the Wildcats but Ecker's boys cracked it.

"I was confident that if we did a couple things, we wouldn't have trouble with the press," Wheeling's coach said.

Ecker remained silent on his method.

"Our boys are hard to press. They're pretty good ball handlers," he said.

Toward the end of the first half and half way through the second, Ecker freely substituted for his regulars. His bench performed admirably, particularly Tom Marzec and Bill Westrich, who netted 6 and 8 points respectively.

Palatine's Pirates suffered their seventh loss in nine league attempts as they continue to flounder through a frustrating season. Jim Sander led the Pirates with 16 points and Rick McCormick had 7.

As for Wheeling, their star is ascending. If they can beat Arlington Friday, they will be just one game behind the division-leading Cards.

"We know we can beat them," Ecker said. "We beat them at Centralia (in a non-conference holiday match). We've got to prove it again."

The Wildcats just might do it.

Remain in South title chase

Cougars power to victory

by LARRY EVERHART

There's something about a Conant-Schaumburg matchup on the basketball floor that brings out the best in Conant and/or the worst in Schaumburg.

The pattern continued Tuesday night in a South Division clash in the Cougar lair where the hosts romped to a 70-42 victory to stay in the Mid-Suburban League's South race. Conant, a game and a half behind Prospect, meets the Knights in a showdown Friday night.

Tuesday the teams traded basket for basket — during pre-game warmups. Once the game started, though, Conant assumed leads of 11-0 and 26-10 by the end of the first quarter. Schaumburg kept trying, but as coach Joe Breault said, "They're (Conant) just too big for us."

It's gotten so every time these neighborhood rivals meet on the hardwood Cougar eyes light up and Saxons sort of cringe. They've met four times in two years, and the last three have been Conant routs.

Scoring was balanced for the winners and every member of the entire squad scored. Roger Sander led with 13 and Dave Sutherland and Dick Southworth each had 12.

Ray Krallcock, Schaumburg's 6-3 junior center, took game honors with 14. Breault felt that "(Bill) Papastefan and (Dan) Gallagher did nice jobs coming off the bench."

Conant coach Dick Redlinger wasn't entirely happy just because of the score. "We always seem to taper way off if we're leading after the first quarter," he said. "We just mentally let up."

But with their superior size, the Cougars predictably dominated the boards. Sander led the way with an impressive 20 rebounds, twice as many as anyone else got. Conant also shot better than usual with 47 per cent, while the Saxons managed just 37 per cent against the leading defense in the division.

Southworth's four baskets in the first quarter led a Conant charge from the opening tip as the Cougars wasted no time taking commanding leads. Schaumburg didn't score until nearly four minutes had passed.

After the one-sided opening session both teams got somewhat lackadaisical and there were only 15 total points in the second quarter. Conant perked up again with a 19-point third quarter for a 54-30 lead and all of the Cougar bench saw plenty of action toward the end.

Both teams shot well from the free-throw line, something Conant usually has trouble doing.

Wildcats vs. Cards on WWMM

In a change of scheduling, WWMM-FM of Arlington Heights has selected Arlington's visit to Wheeling as the featured game Friday night in Mid-Suburban League basketball.

A South Division matchup between Prospect and Conant had originally been scheduled.

"It's difficult to make a choice when you have two such outstanding games on the same night," said WWMM Sports Director Dick Thomas, "but we felt that Wheeling's surge since the holidays and the fact that the schools have split two close games this winter made this a natural. Both schools have been playing exceptional basketball, and we feel this will be one of our most exciting games on the entire Mid-Suburban broadcast schedule."

Thomas and Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk will be at the microphone at eight o'clock Friday evening to report all the actions on 92.7 FM.

VIING FOR a rebound are Arlington's Brian Gaare and Fremd's Doug Mize with the Vikings' Terry Whiteley looking on. The consistent Gaare scored 12 points Tuesday night in contributing to Arlington's 83-63 triumph for a 9-0 record in the Mid-Suburban League's North Division. (Photo by Bob Strawn)

Over a decade ago, a kindly old school teacher revealed a glimmer for remembering the spelling of a particular word.

"Never forget, students, that the way to remember the difference between the two like sounding words 'principle' and 'principal' is our principal is your pal. When you think of that, you'll always spell the ending correctly," she hammered home to us.

Every time I write that word, the reminder returns. It's always helped.

On Tuesday of this week, the Illinois High School Association mailed ballots to all the principals under its rule. The piece of paper only asks for a simple indication of whether each principal is or isn't in favor of the proposed state football playoffs.

Marking the ballot and mailing it is the simple part: deciding how to vote is the problem.

All 12 Mid-Suburban League principals were contacted Monday to see how they felt about the playoffs. If their remarks were fitted into categories, the totals in the Monday poll would have wound up looking like this:

- *Yes, if I voted today — 2.
- *No, if I voted today — 3.
- *Uncertain today — 3.
- *Yes, maybe — 2.
- *No, probably — 2.

Since the ballot only has two categories — yes or no, a decision must be made by at least seven of these men during the next week before the mailing deadline. Only one vote over 50 per cent is needed to pass this controversial proposal, so it is vital that each principal — both in the MSL and throughout the state — consider all the options before making his mark.

Falling into the "yes, if I voted today" category were Hersey's Roland Golins and Rolling Meadows' Bob Hoese.

"All the football coaches are for it," said Hoese. "And I have the feeling that our athletic director would want me to vote for it. . . I think I'll vote for it. It's not going to involve that many schools."

"At this particular point, the pros outweigh the cons," said Golins, who is also for it because "very few schools and very few students would be involved."

He added that another reason for approving the proposal is "it's optional" every year. "I know a lot of planning and thought have gone into the playoff proposal."

The "no, if I voted today" category had Wheeling's Tom Shirley, Schaumburg's Carl Welmer and Conant's Carl Ziehl.

"I voted no on that, too," pointed out Shirley while discussing the December ballot concerning the earlier start of football practice and the first game. However, these changes were approved by a substantial margin of voting principals.

"Primarily, I think it's (the playoff) moving into an aspect of competition at the end of the year which is not really necessary," continued Shirley. "I think the local champions are sufficient in the sport of football."

Welmer added to Shirley's list the "weather factor at that time of year which is very uncertain" along with "what this would mean in terms of injuries."

"This minute I would vote no," said Ziehl. "But I think it deserves a little more consideration at the building level. I'm sure that before I vote I'll talk with our athletic director and coaches."

The trio that seemed to fit in the "uncertain today" grouping were Arlington's Bruno Waara, Forest View's Dr. Larry Jenness and Prospect's Ed Spacapan. This is especially true for Spacapan because he is presently the acting principal because of the death of Alvin Kulleke.

Spacapan said he "wasn't aware that a vote was coming up" because of his unexpected new responsibilities. He added that if Dr. Edward Gilbert, Dist. 214's superintendent of schools, said he had the authority to vote, Spacapan would consult the school's athletic director and head football coach.

"I'm not one way or the other," said Waara concerning a stand at this time. When the first talk of the proposal came about late last year, he was pretty much against it for philosophical reasons. Now he seems to be waiting to talk it over one more time with his athletic director and coaches. "I'll wait and see," he added.

"It seems to me the general educational end for which the athletics part of school exists isn't really being served by the extension of championships," said Dr. Jenness.

He admitted that there "are values" such as the prestige the school would derive from performing well in the playoffs. This led him to add, "I think it's one of those things where you don't have a black and white answer."

Making up the "yes, maybe" category were Elk Grove's Bob Haskell and Glenbard North's Bert Weber.

"I am somewhat concerned about the football season going on for a longer period of time," said Haskell, who saw his school's team named the state's mythical grid champion last fall.

"It may influence me more pro at this time since we had a great football team. I think I'd want to see a school in the future have the opportunity we didn't have."

"It's my vote but, on the other hand, it's voting for my kids, my coaches and my school as a whole," he added.

Weber, whose school will be leaving the MSL for the Tri-County Conference at the end of the year, said that the approval of changing the starting practice and opening game dates "will definitely have a bearing on the vote because the mechanics definitely have been set to put this (the playoff) into motion."

"I support the principle of the football playoffs. If there is no increase in cost (in regard to post-season games), I think we could support it."

Finally, filling the "probably no" column are Palatine's Leonard Newendorp and Fremd's Dr. Stanley Smith.

"I'm a football fan," said Newendorp. "It's always with a huge sigh of relief when there are no injuries. . . I hope we don't stretch our luck."

Smith pointed out that the administrative council of Dist. 211 adopted a position on Oct. 18, 1972 which said in so many words that "the general feeling of the council was the disadvantages seemed to outweigh the advantages."

He mentioned the longer season, injuries, conflict with winter sports, bad weather and the depreciation of the value of the MSL's Super Bowl playoff game as being some of the main disadvantages.

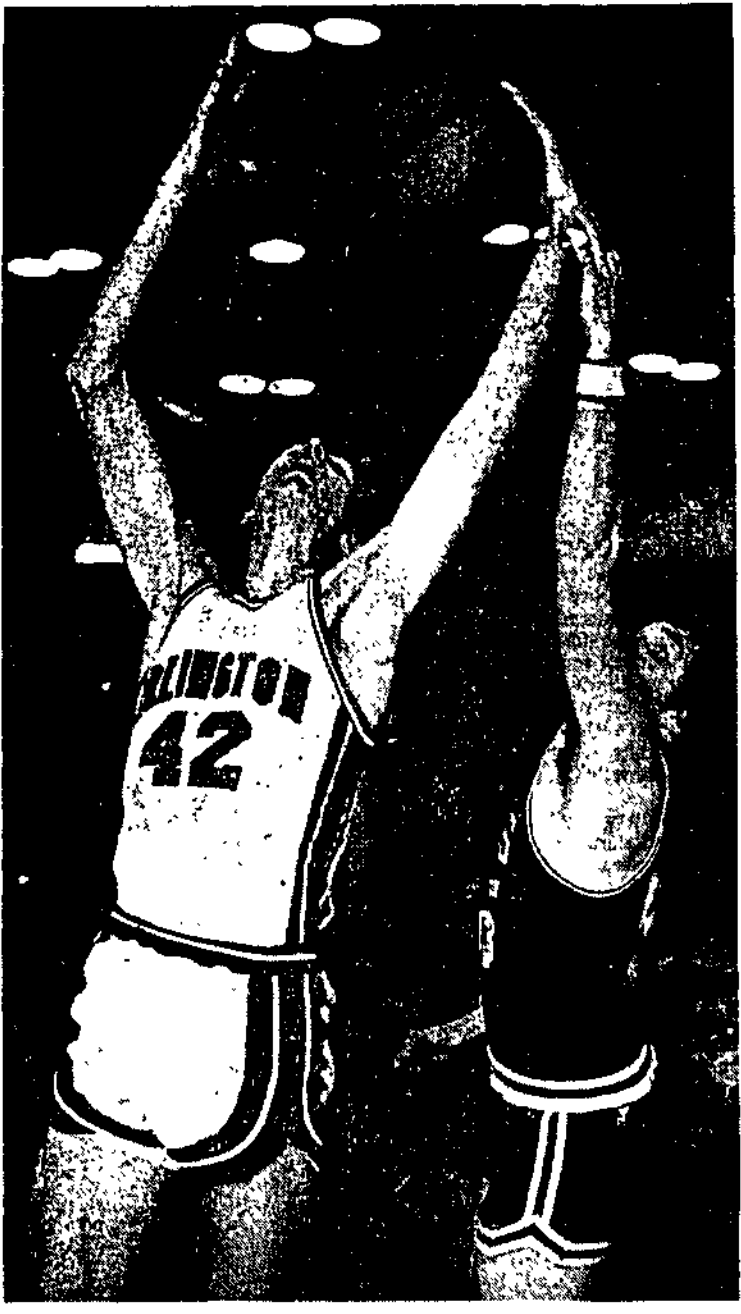

Each district, according to Smith, will have to decide whether it will participate in the statewide playoff if the vote is favorable.

"There's nothing final," added Smith in making the point that the council might take a different stand in the future. "This is not for immemorial."

All the principals said they planned to talk the proposal over with their athletic directors and coaches. Now's the time for the latter to convince the former why the pros outweigh the cons.

Thirty-one states already have a playoff system for determining a true champion, not a mythical one. The good aspects did outnumber the bad for this large number of states.

Here's hoping the "pals" from our state approve of the principle that every prep sport should have a champion.

Hersey rolls past Meadows; Friel assists

by JIM COOK

"It seems like everyone discovers new talent against us," Rolling Meadows coach Ken Arneson confessed.

"Teams come in here expecting to win and consequently play much looser than they normally would."

The "new talent" unveiled in the Mustang gym Tuesday night was Hersey's Marty Friel — an all-state football end who converted passes after catching them this time.

It was Friel's bizarre shooting display in the second period that Arneson termed "the turning point" of the Huskies' 63-37 North Division triumph.

Friel was uncanny along the baselines where he launched most of his seven baskets in nine attempts. His nine second-period markers boosted Hersey to a 34-19 halftime cushion.

"I was very pleased with Marty's play tonight," Hersey coach Roger Steingraber said. "We know he's a physical ball player when he's in there, but if he can score like this, he'll take some of the pressure off Dave (Corzine) and John (Kanellis)."

Whatever pressure there was on Hersey's 6-foot-11 Corzine quickly dissipated as the dominant center expressed his intimidating features with 10 almost effortless first-quarter points and three blocked shots.

Meadows, however, played gutsy, defensive ball during the first half. Despite a famine from the field which found the Mustangs scoreless during the final five minutes of period one and trailing 17-6, a brief flurry by Mustangs Len Link, John Hogan and Pat Geegan nearly pulled the chasers into contention.

Meadows closed within 24-14 after two minutes of the stanza had elapsed, but while Hersey failed to get a shot during that interval, the Mustangs couldn't drop enough fielders to claw close enough. They shot a meager 29 per cent for the game.

Friel quickly yanked the Huskies from danger with his deadly shooting exhibition and when the intermission started, the 6-foot-3 forward had combined with Corzine for 31 of Hersey's 63 points.

Kanellis dumped in six of his 10 points in the fourth quarter to maintain Hersey's comfortable advantage before the substitutes from each team took over.

"They (Meadows) left us a 16-foot jump shot in the middle," Steingraber said, "but we didn't have anyone who could hit it." "What did I try, five kids in there?" Steingraber questioned and answered.

Corzine's 20 and Friel's 17 picked up the slack and their combined efforts on the boards (17 and eight rebounds, respectively) kept the Mustangs at bay.

Hogan and Link paced the muffled Meadows attack with eight points apiece and Pat Geegan canned seven more, but a 43-37 rebounding disadvantage and 46-29 shooting percentage differential kept the Mustangs at 1-8 on the season and Hersey at 6-3.

FAN FARE

Mueller paces Falcon win

by A STAFF WRITER

Tom Mueller was almost like a one-man posse Tuesday night.

The six-foot Forest View guard began taking aim and pulling the trigger in the fourth quarter against Glenbard North, a team which was making things a little too close for comfort for the Falcons. Accordingly, they broke open what had been a tight game for a 69-51 triumph in a Mid-Suburban League South Division game.

When the dust had cleared and Mueller's pistol had cooled off back in its holster, he had shot up 27 points, the best total of his career and second-highest of the season for Forest View. Mueller used a variety of both drives and long ones.

It was the second victory this season for the Falcons over the Panthers, but they looked better in winning this time. Forest View had struggled to a 49-44 victory in Carol Stream in December.

Even with Mueller's brilliance, as coach Ted Wissen pointed out, "It wasn't easy beating them. They even took the lead once in the third quarter and it was close till the fourth quarter. We weren't ready to play as a team tonight."

The Falcons led by five after one quarter and by four at halftime after a fast-paced second quarter, but they saw the lead melt to nothing in the third stanza before pulling away decisively in the final period.

Lou Leuzzi, the guard who has been coming on strong for Forest View in the season's second half, tossed in 14 points and center Rick Hanning had 12. Glenbard had Mike McHale and Marlon Brooks each at the 13-point plateau.

Don Woodsmall, who last year was the Falcons' leading scorer but this year has been slowed by a severe ankle injury, nevertheless paced the team in rebounding with 12 and added nine points.

The Falcons, now 8-9 overall and 5-4 in the South Division, kept up their pattern of picking up their scoring considerably in the last few games. They're now averaging close to 60 per game with opponents averaging about 56.

Forest View has now won four of its last five with Mueller averaging almost 20 per game during that time. Next assignment: Elk Grove at home Friday night in an always spirited and close arch-rivalry game.

300 in Y handball meet

The 13th annual Northwest Suburban YMCA Doubles Handball Tournament is now in session with nearly 300 men participating in Class A, B, and C.

Last year's winners, Graham Walz and Jerry Rosenberg, were the number one seeded team and have succeeded in attaining the semi-final round after two convincing wins. The two, three and four seeded teams have also won their first matches and will be competing for the championship on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 2 and 3.

The number two team last year was Bud Christiansen and Chuck McClellan; number three team was Jay Bulaw and Bob Decker; and the number four team was Chuck Merriam and Bob Hooper. Other teams still in the running include the never-say-die team of Bob Peters and Frank Hansen and the newly-formed teams of Stan Stanz-Ed McMahon and Dr. Linnick-Roy DeMeyer.

Competition will conclude this weekend. The United States Handball Association Central States Singles Tournament will follow Feb. 10. Top names in national handball will compete in this event.

The public is invited and there is no admission charge. All matches are held at Northwest Suburban YMCA at 300 E. Northwest Highway in Des Plaines just west of Golf Rd.

Ralph J. Menconi, world-renowned medalist and sculptor, is dead at the age of 57.

Because of his close personal and professional association with the last five presidents, Menconi was known throughout the numismatic world as "the sculptor of presidents."

And rightfully so, for in addition to having sculptured the five, Ralph Menconi created the high-relief profiles of all 36 presidents as they appear in Presidential Series of medals struck by Medallic Art Co. of New York and distributed through Presidential Art Medals, Inc., of Vandalla, Ohio.

In 1969, Mr. Menconi was personally selected by President Nixon to create the Official Inaugural Medal, and he designed the more recent reverse of the Bicentennial Medal for the American Revolution Bicentennial Committee, of which he was a contributing member.

Being an avid student of history, Ralph Menconi always found personal satisfaction in originating works of art pertaining to the American heritage.

Among his most famous works were the Presidential series, States of the Union, Signers of the Declaration of Independence, Apollo Moon Landing and the Great Religions of the World.

Mr. Menconi also created models for many special issues such as the John F. Kennedy and Robert F. Kennedy pieces, the Winston Churchill Memorial and J. Edgar Hoover Memorial medals, the large President Lyndon Johnson's personal medal as well as the Queen Mary piece.

ONE OF HIS last works produced just before his untimely death was the model for the upcoming Apollo 17 flight. The last in the Apollo-Men-on-the-Moon series.

The many hundreds of Menconi works include the United States Capitol Historical Society Medal, Alaska Statehood Medal, Boston Globe and Mark Hatfield Medal, the ever-popular World Almanac Medal, The Ford Motor Company Centennial medallion, Diamonds U.S.A. Plaque, State of New Jersey Tercentenary Medallion, the Pittsburgh Bicentennial Medal, the U.S. Time Corp., Medal and the American Legion plaque and so on. The list is endless.

RALPH MENCONI has been mentioned many times in this column as a means of attesting to the quality of the medal or plaque being discussed. The readers familiar with his artistic perfection knew what to expect by way of detail and accuracy when his name was given as the sculptor, and there are those who collect anything that bears his famous signature. A rare testimony indeed, and it will be a long time before such dedication will be found among younger members of his profession.

As with other numismatists and writers, I also enjoyed a very personal relationship with Ralph Menconi and consider our acquaintance as a very special event in my lifetime. His wife Marjorie, son Ralph II and his daughter Susan are experiencing a great loss and if it is any consolation, so are we all. He will be missed.

Social Security and You

Q. I'm 67, and last year when my husband died I started getting monthly social security widow's payments. He never got any social security benefits. My neighbor told me I'll be getting a raise in my check. Is this true?

A. Yes. Monthly payments to most aged widows and dependent widowers will increase under the recent changes in the social security law. The amount of the increase depends upon the age at which the widow or widower first started getting monthly checks and on whether the deceased spouse got benefits before age 65. You'll be getting the increase with the check you receive on Feb. 3. However, widows getting monthly retirement benefits only on their own social security earnings record should check with their social security office to see if they can get a higher benefit based on their husband's record.

Q. When I become 62 this year, I want to retire and get social security benefits, but I can't find any document to prove my date of birth. Now what can I do?

A. Get in touch with any social security office, and the people there will be glad to help you. Although you may not have a copy of a birth or baptismal certificate, one of these may still be shown on official records. If not, there are other documents, such as a census record, a school record, or an insurance policy that can be used to establish your age.

Q. I recently had a stroke and won't be able to return to work. What information must I have when I apply for disability benefits?

A. First, remember to bring your social security card. Second, bring a list of doctors and hospitals you have visited. We will need their complete names, addresses and phone numbers as well as the dates you saw them and reason for your visits. Third, we will be asking how your disability has affected you and your work. Fourth, also know the type of work you have done in the last 15 years and the amount you earned last year and this year. If you are married there will be some questions asked about your date of marriage and the dates of birth of your family. Depending on your individual situation, you may be asked to furnish other information such as military service, serial number and birth certificates.

Stamp Notes...by Bernadine M. Rechner

New in bicentennial series

The U.S. Postal Service, in its continuing recognition of the Bicentennial of the American Revolution, will issue an 8-cent commemorative Feb. 16.

First-day ceremonies for the adhesive will be held in Portland, Ore., in conjunction with the International Postage Stamp Exhibition. It is the first in a set of four stamps for 1973 that signals the Rise of the Spirit of Independence, and the theme is communications in colonial times. It points to the roles of the printer and the pamphleteer in uniting patriots and in keeping their courage high.

William A. Smith of Pineville, Pa., designed the issue which shows a group of five patriots studying a pamphlet being printed. The stamp will be printed on the Giori press and distributed in panes of 50.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should mail their requests to "Pamphleteer Stamp, Postmaster, Portland, Ore. 97208," enclosing the proper remittance which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

SPEAKING OF pamphleteers, remember Thomas Paine, who wrote "The American Crisis" back around the Revolution? It was Paine and not Winston Churchill, so I lost another bet with my smart spouse) who said "These are the times that try men's souls. The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of their country."

MANY OF THE local post offices are not stocking the new 7-cent Ben Franklin issue released Oct. 20. There is not much demand for it. Your best bet is to try the Philatelic Sales Unit, Washington, D.C. 20036 for mint stamps.

JUST SAW this interesting item — "the Vatican postman places an envelope into a basket that has been lowered from the top floor on a string, the basket then being hauled up." There are all kinds of ways of delivering the mail — the next time yours gets side-tracked to Albuquerque, have patience. It beats the string and the basket!

IT IS ALWAYS dangerous to speculate about the postal service, particularly if you're expecting a check, but... this year is the 300th anniversary of the discovery of the Upper Mississippi River by Louis Joliet and Father Jacques Marquette. Seems that would be the kind of event to warrant a commemorative stamp...

"POSTAGE STAMPS of the United States," a looseleaf volume reviewing stamps issued in 1847 through the 6-cent Natural History release May 6, 1970, is available for $2.00 from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. A supplement, beginning with the Maine Statehood release of July, 1970 through the Christmas issue of 1971, is also available for 75 cents. A three-ring binder can be purchased for $1.75. The sheets are 9 1/2 x 5 1/2 and each stamp is pictured with the reasons for its release, designer's name, the stamp size and the date and place of its first sale.

MSD OKs $47,000 for soil surveys

The Metropolitan Sanitary District board last week approved paying $47,000 for soil surveys on the site of the Poplar Creek Water Reclamation Plant.

The survey, which will include soil borings and other tests, will be done by the Claude H. Hurley Co., of Elmhurst.

The plant, which will be built in Cook County just east of the Kane County line, will serve sections of Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates as well as Barrington Hills, Hanover Park, Streamwood, South Barrington, and unincorporated areas in Schaumburg, Barrington, Palatine and Hanover townships.

Stamp Bourse at Holiday Inn

The Woodfield Stamp Bourse has moved from Woodfield Mall to expanded quarters at the Holiday Inn, 3405 Algonquin Rd., Rolling Meadows.

The Bourse still features its monthly door prize drawing as well as offering collectors at least one philatelic publication each session.

Plans are now in the works to begin a stamp auction for both mail bidders and floor bidders.

The bourse meets on the first Saturday of each month with the exception of a session on Feb. 10. All collectors and browsers are invited to visit the bourse from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is free.

Stay away from phony growth aids

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have read and seen many ads concerning increasing your height. The two main aspects of increasing your height according to the aid is to increase the cartilage area between the discs of the spinal cord and increasing the basal metabolism in order to stimulate bone and ligament growth.

This ad states only a few minutes a day over a short period can increase your height permanently and safely.

I would like your comments and advice on this subject concerning the soundness of the ad's proposal of increasing your height.

Dear Reader — Avoid it like the plague! Unfortunately there are many advertisements available to the general public that recommend procedures, methods or products that do not do anything for the individual except relieve him of his money. In other instances, some of the items or procedures recommended are downright dangerous.

I'm sure that the ad really referred to increasing the size of the discs between the individual spinal vertebrae since the spinal cord is a continuous structure of nerves and is not interrupted with discs.

There isn't any real way that the size of the cartilaginous areas between the spinal vertebrae can be significantly increased nor is there any indication that if it were possible that such a procedure would be in the best interest of one's health.

There is a slight variation in height each day which is related to the spaces between the vertebrae. But this is usually only about an inch or less. In the morning when one first gets up one is usually the tallest. As the day wears on the discs are compressed slightly and a person may be an inch shorter.

Some of the astronaut candidates I examined who were just over the height limitations used to exercise vigorously during the day trying to literally shrink and pass the height test at the end of the day.

It didn't help and in the weightless state they would be at their maximum height anyway. The problem was being short enough to fit into the space vehicle.

AS FAR AS increasing basal metabolism to stimulate bone and ligament growth, this is a complete falsehood. The only way that increasing the metabolism will help to stimulate growth is in people who have a thyroid deficiency.

It is true that thyroid and growth hormone work together to stimulate body growth but in normal, healthy people, giving additional thyroid or increasing their basal metabolism by artificial means will not do anything to stimulate their growth.

I would be greatly concerned about obtaining any products from any ads of this sort for fear that they might actually be harmful to your health.

A second gimmick used in advertising is to tell people they will be taller and the company is actually selling lifts to be placed inside the shoes.

Anyone who's concerned about their height or growth problems should see a reputable physician. If you want to keep your health, avoid the advertisements and the quacks.

Toastmasters have openings

Kenneth Udling, area governor of Toastmasters International, has announced there are still limited openings in the Leadership Through Speaking seminars which began this week. The seminars which are conducted by Toastmasters in association with Township High School District 214 will continue once a week for the next seven weeks. No registrations will be accepted after next week.

School, Rolling Meadows High School, and Hersey High School. Tuesday evening sessions are held at Prospect High School.

Do-It-Yourself

Some people put off hanging pictures and mirrors for years, just out of trepidation. The thought of pounding a nail into a perfectly good wall frightens them. Either the wall will crumble or the picture will fall — or both.

Manufacturers have devised a number of fasteners that make the chore of putting things on walls fairly simple and reliable. What you want is something that will go on with a minimum of trouble, will hold the object and will do the least damage to the wall.

What you use should be determined by what you are hanging and the surface you are hanging it on. Obviously pictures require less support than shelf brackets and working on a plaster wall differs from working on one of concrete.

THE PICTURE hook with a nail that goes in at an angle is still around. The angled nail is less likely to break the plaster or to pull loose. These are rated by weight and are used for pictures and mirrors.

There are metal hooks that are mounted in a cloth with adhesive on the back. Soak the cloth in water, apply to the wall and let dry. They are also rated by weight. Do not use for mirrors, however.

To remove, soak the cloth and peel off. They do not damage the wall.

Other fasteners are mounted by running a screw into the wall. The screw actually goes into an anchor that keeps it from pulling out of the wall.

Anchors are made of a variety of materials — plastic, lead, nylon, jute, various alloys. They are designed for two types of wall — hollow and solid, as in plaster board (below) or plaster (solid), hollow concrete blocks or solid masonry.

THEY ALSO vary in length, which is determined by the thickness of the wall as well as the length of the screw being used.

A popular type is an expansion bolt, which is a bolt in a threaded metal sleeve. The sleeve is partially split so that as you tighten the bolt the sleeve flattens out.

These are used in dry wall construction. So is the toggle bolt, a bolt with a nut in the form of folding wings. Push them through the hole while folded and they open up behind the wall.

For solid plaster, use plastic anchors or plugs and use wood or sheet metal screws in them. Make a hole just big enough for the anchor. Set the anchor in flush with the wall surface. The screw expands the anchor as it is tightened.

IN MASONRY, use a lead anchor with wood, sheet metal or lag screws. If the masonry is solid, get the kind of anchor that is split lengthwise so that it expands all around. In hollow masonry, get one with a flared collar so that it doesn't fall through.

A lag screw expansion shield has corrugations for extra holding power. It is in two halves which expand as the bolt or screw is tightened. Use these in mortar joints.

Small screws can be set in masonry using a fiber plug made of braided jute and lined with lead.

GENERAL INFORMATION:

Prior to 1956 the area now occupied by Elk Grove Village was farmland. By 1960 the population had grown to 6,608. The 1970 census showed a population of 24,516, an increase of more than 370% in 10 years. Elk Grove Village is a community planned by the Centex Construction Company, and incorporates features such as underground utilities, curving "child-safe" streets, and a variety of available home models. Everything in the community is new. Within the village is the Centex Industrial Park, a progressive development containing over 400 new industrial buildings and is conveniently adjacent to O'Hare Airport.

SCHOOLS:

In the village proper there are 8 public elementary schools, 2 junior highs, and 1 high school. There is 1 Catholic elementary school. The pupil-teacher ratio is 25:1, with $812 spent annually per pupil.

HOUSING:

The average age of the predominantly ranch-style homes has been estimated at 6 years. Prices range from $30,000 to $80,000, with new homes starting at $36,500. The 350 existing apartment units rent from $200 to $300 per month.

CHURCHES:

Included are 3 Baptist, 2 Catholic and 2 Lutheran churches, and 1 Community Church, Episcopal, Jewish, Methodist, Presbyterian, United Church of Christ, and Wesleyan Methodist.

TRANSPORTATION:

A Milwaukee Road station is in Itasca 2 miles south, and C&NW trains run regularly from Arlington Heights, 5 miles north. United Motor Coach buses serve the village offering 1 hour service periodically to the Loop.

MEDICAL:

The village is served by the Alexian Brothers Medical Center, a facility currently planning a $9 million expansion program. Also located in the village are two medical-dental centers, one in the Grove Shopping Center, and the other at 756-64 Arlington Heights Road.

TOWN SHOPPING:

Elk Grove Village has several shopping centers. There are 2 Devon Avenue centers, the Grove Shopping Plaza, and a convenient Elk Grove Park and Shop. Randhurst, Woodfield, and nearby shopping in Arlington Heights provide variety.

RECREATION:

Currently, Elk Grove Village has 14 parks containing 100 acres of land. Present facilities include a community center, a youth center, an outdoor Lions' pool, and the beautiful indoor and outdoor Disney pool. A large recreational area is planned for the Ned Brown Forest Preserve located just west of the village. Current plans call for a 589-acre lake with numerous other recreational projects to be constructed as part of the development.

GOVERNMENT:

The village is run by a Village President and 6 Village Trustees, all elected at large. A full-time Village Manager serves as the administrative head of the village. Regular Village Board Meetings are held the 1st, 2nd, and 4th Tuesdays of the month.

CLUBS AND ORGANIZATIONS:

There are many social, civic, and special interest clubs for both men and women which are active in the village.

WEATHERSFIELD LAKE Quadro-Homes in Schaumburg offer two bedrooms, separate garage, and private front entrances. The models are open daily from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekends.

Quadro-home development offers own vacation lake

Campanelli Inc. is offering the first and only quadro-home development in Schaumburg with its own vacation lake. Fifteen feet at its deepest point and stocked with thousands of popular game fish, the eight wet acres of Weathersfield Lake adds a resort-like touch to Campanelli's colony of quadro-homes styled for year-round comfort and recreational living. Its three miles of beautiful tree-lined shoreline not only adds pastoral privacy to the setting, but also provides a cycling and strolling path for those less inclined to water activities.

"In creating an environment for our Weathersfield Lake Quadro-Homes," said Campanelli sales manager, Joseph Connelly, "we didn't have to look far. The setting was already there. The trees. The groves. The meadows. We already had a good size pool, playground and community center. The only thing missing was a lake. So, we decided to build one. It took long, arduous months to complete, but the results, to say the least, have been spectacular."

Visitors to Weathersfield Lake quadro-homes have been vocal in their support of Connelly's observation. The burst of buyer enthusiasm has led to unseasonably high sales for the New England-styled quadro units.

"I thought public acceptance to our Phase I quadro-home subdivision was something special when we sold out the initial offering of 350 units in 90 days. But, at the pace we're going," reports Connelly, "Phase II will surpass the record."

REASON FOR the success of this new offering isn't solely due to the lake. The quadro-homes, now being showcased, are something special on their own.

Each spacious two-bedroom unit offers its own garage with direct entry access, and a separate private front entrance. The walls have been constructed of solid masonry to insure quiet privacy for all residents. The homes also offer wall-to-wall carpeting throughout, abundant closets and storage space, a private balcony, mudroom with utility tub, a large living room/dining room combination, natural woodwork and a ceramic-tiled bath.

Kitchens at Weathersfield Lake feature elegant wood cabinets, continuous clean gas oven, range, fan and hood, disposal, dishwasher, washer and dryer, trash compactor, and a 16-cubic foot ice-maker refrigerator.

Quadro-home owners at Weathersfield

Lake also experience the maintenance free advantages offered by apartment living such as lawn care, snow shoveling, painting, etc., while enjoying the even greater financial rewards, offered through home ownership (and at a cost lower than rent). Campanelli quadro-homes are completely landscaped with trees, shrubs and lawn... all included at no extra cost.

Residents are further offered a wide range of social and recreational amenities. The Nantucket Club, a clubhouse complete with large heated pool, sauna baths, pool tables, card rooms and a theater-social hall is available to all homeowners and their guests. This is the second clubhouse for Weathersfield quadro-home owners. The first, the Cape Cod Club, is open and operating.

ALFRED CAMPANELLI, president of the homebuilding firm, says that "no longer does the Chicago-area family have to leave the state to enjoy the recreational advantage of year-round lake living. Now they can do it all... skate, fish, boat... right on their own home grounds."

Shopping and transportation are just as convenient. Woodfield and Randhurst Malls, as well as Weathersfield Commons Shopping Center, are but minutes away. New schools are also close-by and the Milwaukee Road Railroad Station and the Illinois Tollway are quick short drives.

The new Weathersfield Lake quadro-home models are open for inspection daily from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekends.

Weathersfield Lake can be reached by taking Irving Park Road (Route 19) or

Realtor to offer Valentine candy

Various sized heart boxes of candy to celebrate Valentine's Day will be offered by MGM Realtors to its customers as prizes and gifts during the week of Valentine's Day, Feb. 11-18.

The firm's four offices in Skokie, Northbrook, Niles and Chicago will display giant jars of candy hearts. Anyone entering the office will be invited to guess the number of candies in each jar. On Valentine's Day, Feb. 14, the person guessing the correct number will be awarded a seven pound heart-shaped box of chocolates.

Small boxes of chocolates will be given to everyone inquiring about a home in any of the four offices from Feb. 11-18. The medium three pound boxes of chocolates will be received by each family who purchases a home from MGM Realtors between Feb. 11 and Feb. 18.

Robert B. Green, president of MGM Realtors, said the promotion should add some extra fun and suspense to the serious business, as well as the pleasure, of looking for and buying a new home.

Inflation hasn't changed the price of ashes.

But it has changed the price of your home. For example, if you bought an $18,000 home in 1963—today it's worth about $24,200. Don't be left with a costly pile of ashes. See me about a State Farm Homeowners Policy that will cover your home for all it's worth... and keep it that way with automatic inflation coverage.

Underwriters' Labs planning for expansion

To meet the growing demand for product testing, Underwriters' Laboratories announces plans to begin construction of two separate buildings on its 148-acre site in Northbrook.

The first building will be an extension of existing facilities and will provide an additional 94,000 square feet when completed. The second building will be a highly specialized electrical laboratory for the testing of hazardous locations equipment and will provide an additional 10,800 square feet of space.

To be completed in 1974, this expansion will increase the Northbrook test facilities to approximately 304,000 square feet of floor space.

UL also has testing labs in downtown Chicago; Melville, N.Y.; Santa Clara, Calif., and Tampa, Fla. Completion of the Northbrook expansion will give the Laboratories over 627,000 square feet in laboratory and office space, representing a 53 per cent increase in growth in a decade.

TIPS TO HOME BUYERS AND HOME SELLERS FROM MAP MULTIPLE LISTING REAL ESTATE SERVICE

Get Expert Help When Selling Your Home

Selling a house in today's highly competitive market is no do-it-yourself exercise. Your first step should be to place your home with a reliable Real Estate Agent and give him an "exclusive" for 90 days. That will give him extra incentive. You can have multiple listing as well. Make sure your Real Estate Agent puts up a "For Sale" sign.

"But why a Real Estate Company?" many owners inquire. "I can sell it myself and save the six or seven percent commission."

It's not that simple. For one thing, the typical buyer will expect you to knock off the commission for his benefit. And there are other do-it-yourself pitfalls. Are you familiar with the current real estate market and able to price your home properly? Are you prepared for curiosity seekers tramping through your house? Do you have the time and ability to negotiate and bargain? Can you handle the intricacies of financing?

A bona fide Real Estate Company will screen your prospects and give your house maximum exposure, he's familiar with market conditions, zoning and financing; and finally he's usually able to command enough more for your house to pay the commission, and then some.

Select the Real Estate Agent with the best combination of aggressiveness, integrity and know how to do the job.

Chicagoland home buyers seeking unique architectural features in big, single-family homes will find The Timbers of Old Mill Grove, Lake Zurich, to their liking. These 311 Building Corp. homes possess such distinctive features as cathedral ceilings, conversation pits, multi-level rooms, and master bedroom suites with private compartmented baths.

Five decorated models of three, four and five-bedroom homes are on display. The homes are priced from $42,790 to $54,990. All were created by the architectural firm of B. A. Berkus & Associates.

Architectural Design 255, is one of two ranch style homes available at The Timbers. It is priced at $48,990. It has four bedrooms, two full baths, and features a long, well sheltered passageway to a double-door entry.

An optional conversation pit in this home is located in the family room. The pit is open both to the family room and the living room and features a see-through fireplace.

THE HOME HAS a sunken living room, separate dining area and a work-oriented kitchen with plenty of cabinet storage and counter space.

Bedrooms are all double bed size with spacious closets. The master bedroom suite has its own private bath and walk-in wardrobe.

This ranch style home features a basement under the living area for location of utilities, laundry and storage.

Other model homes displayed at The Timbers are a second ranch style home, with three bedrooms and two full baths, priced at $42,790; a three bedroom mid-level home, with 2½ baths, priced at $47,490; a tri-level three-bedroom home, with 2½ baths and optional private sun-deck, priced at $44,490, and a huge two-story, five-bedroom home, with 2½ baths, priced at $54,990.

ALL HOMES IN the Timbers have such luxury features as luminous kitchen ceiling, gas range with self-cleaning double oven, color-coordinated bath fixtures, ceramic tile baths, built-in vanities, dishwasher, garbage disposal, wall-to-wall shag carpeting, fully improved landscaped lot and individual gas post-light.

To view the new models at The Timbers of Old Mill Grove take the Northwest Tollway to Rte 53, go north to Rand Road (Rte 12) and then northwest to Cuba Road. Or, take the Edens to Dundee Road (Rte 68), then go west to Rand Road and northwest four miles to Cuba Road. The models are open from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. weekdays and Sunday, and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday.

THE CONVERSATION PIT in the foreground of this interior view is a unique feature of architectural design 255 at The Timbers. The wrap-around rail separates the conversation pit from the foyer, living room and dining room. Built-in seating faces a handsome see-through fireplace that divides the pit from the family room.

Arlen Realty and Development shifts merchant building setup

Arlen Realty & Development Corp. announced recently that there will be a change of emphasis in its merchant building operation with an increase in the development, construction and sale of condominiums, townhouses and apartment units, and a decrease in the sales of shopping centers.

Chairman Arthur G. Cohen, said, "We have 28,956,000 square feet of shopping centers completed, under construction and in development, the highest in our history. This breaks down as follows: completed and in operation (after all sales) is 11,633,000 square feet; under construction is 7,936,000 square feet of which 2,373,000 square feet will be completed by this fiscal year (February 28, 1973); in development is an additional 9,063,000 square feet included in these figures are 20 regional shopping centers currently in construction, or development, totalling 11,000,000 square feet of which half will be completed in 1974 and the remainder in 1975."

Cohen noted that while Arlen's shopping center inventory has always increased each year in the past despite substantial sales, it will now grow at a faster rate. The merchant building operation will continue to sell properties but the major thrust will be in condominiums from Aventura and elsewhere; cooperative apartments and single family homes.

IN THE FISCAL year ended Feb. 29, 1972, Arlen's Net Operating Income from the sale of shopping centers amounted to $16.6 million, accounting for some 2,207,000 square feet and constituted 31 per cent of its total Net Operating Income (before corporate expenses). In the current year, ending February 28, 1973, Arlen expects to have realized approximately $20 million of Net Operating Income from 4,352,000 square feet, constituting about the same percentage of the total, 31 per cent.

During the next fiscal year, Arlen expects that the shift of emphasis will not decrease the total Net Operating Income of the company. Cohen noted that the change will have some short-term effect on the previously stated 20 per cent annual rate of growth. The drop in profits from shopping center sales will be made up by increasing income from its investment properties (including its anticipated percentage ownership of USIF), the retained shopping centers and increasing condominium sales.

Continued growth during the next several years will be achieved from the operation and further development of the properties. Net Operating Income is the sum of net earnings, real estate depreciation and amortization of deferred charges and deferred income taxes.

In addition to construction, ownership, management and development of shopping centers, residential complexes, office buildings, planned communities and other real estate projects, Arlen also owns and operates 1 Korvettes Department Stores located throughout the country and a manufacturing/importing business.

Wickes sells property on Dundee Road for $3,626,000

Wickes Corp. sold its property at 351 W. Dundee, Wheeling, to Second Twin-stores, Inc. for $3,626,000. It was announced in the first 1973 Wheeling township real estate transfer report from County Recorder Sidney R. Olsen.

There were 57 sales in Arlington Heights, 32 in Mt. Prospect, 14 in Buffalo Grove, five in Prospect Heights, and 20 in Wheeling and the rest of the township.

Olsen recorded the following property transfers for the township. The list shows the purchase price of equity and does not include the amount of a mortgage which the purchaser may have assumed. The price is indicated by the amount of state revenue stamps on the document.

The transfers are:

Natural gas started many centuries ago

Billions of years ago tiny plants and animals lived on the land and in the waters. Their organic remains were washed down into lakes and oceans, and covered by mud and sand which, in time, became rock.

This prehistoric decay formed compounds of hydrogen and carbon called "hydrocarbons." Those were held in tiny spaces between the particles of sand and porous rock where they formed natural gas, and petroleum. Sometimes the gas was trapped under a solid rock cap through which the gas could not pass. Thus the dirty decay of previous centuries became the virtually pollution free natural gas available today.

Record savings increase at Talman Federal Talman Federal Savings and Loan Association closed its 50th Anniversary year Dec. 31 with a record increase in net savings of $110,753,701, Bernard A. Polek, board chairman and president, announced recently. This compares with a gain of $100,426,139 registered in 1971. Total savings received in 1972, also a new high mark, were $308,755,607, as against $261,459,280 in the prior year.

The number of savings accounts climbed to 171,806 from 163,070, while aggregate savings rose to $895,828,199 from $773,874,498. Both figures represent new all-time high records. The average savings account, which has been increasing consistently through the years, jumped from $4,757 to $5,213.

Talman rounded out 1972 with total assets of $1,047,068,112. The comparable figure of Dec. 31, 1971, was $935,780,658. Interest payments to savers in 1972 aggregated $45,502,086, compared to $38,532,132 in the previous year. Mortgage loans on Dec. 31 totaled $900,997,711—an increase of $75,548,205 over the 1971 total. Reserves increased to $35,739,320—this is the highest of any savings and loan association in Illinois.

Recorded sales of Cook County properties dips in December

Recorded sales of existing residential properties in Cook County dropped in December, according to First Federal Savings of Chicago's Home Sales Index. Fewer one-unit to four-unit properties were sold last December than in either December, 1971, or December, 1970. There was also a decline from the sale mark reached in November, 1972.

Total sales for 1972, however, were still higher than those reported in 1971, the Index shows.

James C. Fitzmaurice, vice president in charge of mortgage lending at First Federal, looks forward to a "substantial, stable and active real estate market in 1973."

The figures for December, 1972, show that $81,387,300 was made on 2,512 sales. This is $19,052,400 or 19 per cent less than the $100,439,700 reported for November of this year, when sales numbered 2,963, 15.8 per cent more than in December.

Compared to December, 1971, last month's sales were down $4,490,200 or 4.6 per cent in dollar volume, and 700 or 21.8 per cent in number volume from the $97,877,500 reported for 3,212 sales a year ago at this time.

TOTAL SALES in the county for 1972, nevertheless, reached $1,120,880,968, an increase of 5.5 per cent over 1971's mark of $1,062,736,300. The 34,601 sales reported for 1972 were 820 or 2.4 per cent more than last year.

In December, Lake Township took over the lead in number of sales, with 227 for 9 per cent of the housing market for the 33 township county.

Jefferson Township kept the lead in the amount of sales, with $9,051,500 or 9.9 per cent of total dollar volume, coming in second in number of sales, with 203 for 8.1 per cent. Lake Township was second in dollar volume, having $5,489,000 in sales for 6.7 per cent of the county total.

In first place for the year as a whole, Jefferson Township had $119,424,500 for 3,434 transactions. This was 10.6 per cent of the year's dollar volume for the county, and 9.9 per cent of the number of sales.

In second place for 1972 dollar volume was Wheeling Township, where sales of $70,533,300 accounted for 6.3 per cent of the total. Lake Township placed third, with $69,124,000 in sales, or 6.1 per cent for the year.

Lake Township was second in number of sales, having 2,800 transactions or 8 per cent of the county number total. Calumet Township, with 2,117 sales or 6.3 per cent, ranks third.

Looking back over the year's record, First Federal's Fitzmaurice said, "The strength of the Chicago real estate market has been very impressive." He anticipates a strong, steady housing market for 1973, with sufficient funds to apply the area's mortgage needs and, therefore, stable mortgage rates.

Suburbs pushing farther out

'Rurapolis' our next stop?

A social philosopher and architectural critic once said that suburbs were places where people could withdraw like hermits — and live like princes.

"But that was a short-lived utopia and just isn't the case any longer," observes Sabino Marinella, president of Continental Investment Corporation, Boston, a national real estate-oriented and financial services company.

"Up to a point, the suburbs served their purpose. The end result is being cited as analogous to getting out of the frying pan and into the fire. The suburbs are becoming as crowded as the cities people escaped from just a few short years ago," he adds.

THE SOLUTION? "Push farther out — ever outward."

"When Americans discovered they had a bad case of 'suburbosis,' they began fleeing to the greener pastures of rurapolis — old suburbia's new suburbs," he emphasizes.

Marinella cites examples of families moving as far as 50 to 80 miles from central cities.

"Residents of rurapolis praise the untamed green spaces, the lower taxes, the absence of traffic jams and traumatic crime rates, the slower pace of life. "Some call it peace of mind. Some even go so far as to say that at last they have found utopia," he declares.

THE MAJORITY, surprisingly enough, accept commuting to their same jobs in the city. They feel it is well worth the effort if they can live and raise their families in peaceful surroundings — in the wide open spaces of rural America.

"Developers are already planning to maintain the present natural beauty plus the other attributes of rurapolis. Their blueprints make certain that the attraction of today will become the constant life style of tomorrow's rural living," Marinella says.

"The evidence of the growth in outer suburbia is everywhere. Since the 1960 Census, the population of one county 60 miles from one of the larger U.S. cities — and sliced by a high-speed, north-south superhighway — has jumped from 17,000 to more than 40,000.

"The new trend is to rurapolis — and it is here to stay," Marinella concludes.

Dohn receives Top Dog award

347 S. Burton, Arlington Hts. - Sold by Dick Williams

... this says it all!

Yes, another home both listed and sold by Starck. Sure, some of our listings are sold by other brokers through MAP Multiple Listing Service, Inc. BUT, we sell a whole bunch of our listings and we do it FAST!

How?

In any successful business the most valuable resource is people. We are very proud of all the salesmen, managers and office personnel in our organization. We select them carefully, train them well and keep retraining so that our clients and customers get total real estate service.

In addition, our advertising and merchandising is aggressive and combines both quantity and quality. Every home we list has its own merchandising campaign put into writing. You are kept informed of all details and progress every step of the way until the property is sold.

An important part of merchandising is establishing the proper selling price for your property. Using established and accurate appraisal techniques we prepare a Value Analysis on your property. This results in a fast sale at top market price for you.

We offer three exclusive extras that greatly assist us in selling your property:

1. Inter-City Relocation Service Inc. 650 nationwide Realtors constantly are referring their transferred clients to us. In 1972 this has resulted in over $2,000,000 in additional sales.
2. Palace Guard, Inc. In this age of consumerism buyers expect to purchase things and know that they will work properly or will be fixed so that they do. Palace Guard Service is only offered through us.
3. The Starck Home Guarantee Purchase Plan and Potere PET Equity Program permits us to sell a buyer your property and "take his home in trade" anywhere in the country.

Since 1960 Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors have sold thousands of homes in the great Northwest Suburbs. We have grown to five offices with over fifty associates.

We'd love to spotlight your home with our SOLD sign!

'Renter's paradise' shouldn't camouflage basics

A checklist for apartment seekers

Word is getting around that the Chicago apartment market has been overbuilt. Developers, scrambling for the rental market, have apparently miscalculated demand, creating a costly inventory of vacant apartments.

This situation could create a bonanza for apartment hunters as developers resort to rent cuts, no-rent for 30 days, free carpeting and draperies and a host of other concessions calculated to snare tenants.

To all appearances it adds up to a renter's paradise.

"But you shouldn't let today's rental climate — which could turn around overnight — camouflage the basic tests of finding an apartment best suited to your individual needs," suggests John Matijevich, assistant vice president and manager of the property management department in the Arlington Heights office of Baird & Warner, Inc.

HERE IS A checklist of practical guidelines he suggests which should help you make the best choice for the long haul. You might find that the best deal is where you are living presently, or that the "perfect apartment" is one that isn't giving you anything but good location and value:

1. How much rent? The rule-of-thumb is that the figure you spend on rent, including utilities, shouldn't be greater than one week's take-home pay.

If you're a couple consisting of a husband and working wife, you may be tempted to include the wife's pay in computing rent. But you should also figure what will happen if the wife quits work to have a baby. Most rental agents will counsel you to figure only the husband's pay.

2. Where to live? You may already have decided which is best for you — the city or the suburbs. But choosing a particular neighborhood is something else. Your best bet is to ride around or walk around.

"Look for such things as shops, churches, schools, transportation, parks, and playgrounds," he said. "Size up the people. If you have children, does the neighborhood have children of the same age? A good visual inspection can tell a lot."

If you haven't determined on a city vs. suburban location, consider such elements as the close-in excitement of the city vs. the relative openness and quiet of the suburbs. Figure on commuting costs of the suburbs vs. street parking problems in the city. There's no one best location for everyone — it's up to you to fit the location to your individual needs.

3. How does the apartment size up? Bring along a tape measure when you inspect apartments and jot down critical dimensions on a note pad. If you have a grand piano or a 200-inch-long sofa, will it fit? Can you even get it into the building?

Some of the new buildings provide you with scale floor plans and silhouette furniture cutouts so you can see how your furniture will fit before you move in. You can make your own plan using graph paper, if you like.

Also check the layout of the apartment. Ideally, the apartment should have an entry foyer with a guest closet; minimum closet space, one person, 12 to 15 feet. When you enter, check to see that your view isn't into a bedroom or bathroom, which can be embarrassing. Check to see what the views are from other rooms, too. Determine if the bedrooms are separated from the noisy areas of the apartment, such as living room and kitchen.

4. Yearning to make the balcony scene? If your apartment offers a terrace, see if it's just ornamental or really big enough to accommodate outdoor furniture. And if the terrace is shared with a neighboring apartment, make sure there's a privacy screen.

5. What's the sound-proofing like? You can't expect 100 per cent sound-proofing in any building, but you should check to see how much noise you can expect. Listen to how much street noise filters in.

If the building is new and largely vacant, you won't be able to tell much about the noise coming from adjoining apartments to the side, above, and below. You can have a friend go into one of the vacant apartments and talk loudly, turn on the water, and flush the toilet. See how much you can hear.

A strong point in the building's favor is carpeting in the hallways. This will reduce noise substantially.

If the building is older and fairly full, arrange to visit it during an early evening. You can get a good idea then of how quiet it is.

6. Do appliances and equipment work? Check these in new and older buildings.

Turn on burner ranges. Inspect the refrigerator. Work the faucets and flush the toilet. Open cabinets, slide windows up and down, determine if doors stick. If things need replacement or repairs, talk to the agent before making a commitment.

7. What other services are provided? In a high-rise building, you may want to check on doorman services, package room, locker room for bulk storage, window washing, and master TV antenna, and indoor parking. Check also on security provisions.

In low-rise and garden apartments, you may want to look into snow shoveling, grounds upkeep, parking for residents and guests, use of recreational facilities, and the like.

"A reputable building owner and his agent will spell everything out in writing, leaving no doubt as to what services come with the apartment and which are extra charge items," the Baird & Warner executive said. "Get all this information before you sign the lease."

8. Finally, make sure the building you choose is "your kind" of building. By noting the people you see in the lobby, the elevators, and on the grounds, and by asking the rental agent, you can get an idea if you will fit in.

If you're a swinging single, then you'll be out of place in a senior citizen's building. If you're the family type, you probably won't be happy in a building with career singles and couples. Experience shows that most apartment dwellers are happy in a building with people like them.

"The rental agent should be willing to help you match the building to your individual tastes," he advised. "After all, it's to his best interest to keep the residents happy, which pays off when the time comes to renew the lease."

Des Plaines sales top Maine Township realty report

Des Plaines' 43 property sales led activity in the first 1973 Maine Township real estate transfer report from County Recorder Sidney R. Olsen.

There were 24 sales in Park Ridge, 14 in Glenview, four in Morton Grove, and three elsewhere in the township. Olsen recorded the following property transfers for the township. The list shows the purchase price of equity and does not include the amount of a mortgage which the purchaser may have assumed. The price is indicated by the amount of state revenue stamps on the document.

The transfers are:
1735 Stockton, Des Plaines, Jas. F. Dryden to Wm. A. Grimm, $26,500; 331-A-4th Ave., Des Plaines, Dallas Powell to Brian Dankowski, $30; 269 S. Wolf Rd., Des Plaines, Donaldson Scott to Paul A.

Minifactories set for industrial park

Oak Ridge Mortgage & Contract Co. of Hillside, recently purchased more than 263,000 square feet of land in Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park upon which to construct several minifactories. Construction of these minifactories by American Mid-Continent Construction Co. will commence soon.

James H. Dana of Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates represented the seller and Anthony Novelli of Novelli Real Estate represented the purchaser.

THE SALEM IS one of five model homes on display at Hollybrook in Wheaton. The two-story colonial home, built by Continental Homes of Chicago, is priced from $46,990 with four bedrooms and 2½ baths.

Five model homes on display at Hollybrook in Wheaton

Continental Homes of Chicago has five furnished model homes on display at its Hollybrook community in west suburban Wheaton.

The Salem is a two-story colonial home, priced from $46,990, with four bedrooms and two-and-one-half baths. On the first floor is the living room, separate dining room, kitchen with a large breakfast room, family room with optional fireplace and a powder room. The Salem also has an attached two-car garage with a separate entrance to the home through the kitchen hallway area.

On the second floor are the four bedrooms, all with walk-in closets, including a spacious master bedroom suite with a private bath, and the family bathroom. The home also has a full basement.

Hollybrook, when completed, will comprise 102 single-family homes, ranging in price from $38,990 to $46,990, with three or four bedrooms.

OTHER SINGLE-FAMILY homes include the Arlington, another four-bedroom, two-story colonial home with an attached two-car garage, priced from $43,990. It has two-and-one-half bathrooms, a large family room off of the kitchen, and a full basement.

The Brookwood is a ranch home with three bedrooms, two full bathrooms, living room, formal dining area, kitchen and family room, and two-car garage, priced from $38,990.

The Chesterton, priced from $38,990, is a three-bedroom bi-level home with a two-car garage. The living room, dining room and kitchen are on the entry level with just a few steps up to the bedrooms and family bath. On the lower level is the large family room and a powder room.

The Delwood, a three-bedroom raised ranch, priced from $38,990, also features a finished lower level. The living room, dining room, kitchen and bedrooms are all on one level, reached from a mid-level entry foyer. The garage, recreation room and powder room are on the lower level.

Special features of all Hollybrook homes include wall-to-wall carpeting throughout and kitchens with double-oven and hooded range and dishwasher.

Mobile home show draws big crowd in Louisville

The mobile home industry, which produced nearly 600,000 dwellings in 1972, began 1973 in smashing style Jan. 15-19 as a record 12,106 of its representatives viewed new model homes, furnishings and other accessories at the Mobile Homes Manufacturers Association's annual National Mobile Home Show in Louisville, Ky.

Show chairman Joe Morris, of the Champion Home Builders Co., said 7,862 retailers, park managers and owners toured the 255 new homes stationed in the two spacious wings of the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center. The total represented almost a 10 per cent increase over the 7,171 who attended the 1972 Show.

"The exhibiting manufacturers wrote a lot of new business. From every indication, the show was an excellent springboard to another record year for the industry," said Morris.

Industry personnel at the show also had the opportunity to view a record 320 supplier booths.

Dealer and financing seminars attracted enthusiastic audiences. Some 420 retailers and park operators attended the one day sales and merchandising seminar at the Galt House and heard well-known motivational speaker Bob Richards describe the potential genius in the average salesman that is often never realized because of a lack of self-belief and self-motivation. The program was co-sponsored by MHMA and the Manufactured Housing Association.

THE FINANCE FORUM featured an address by Jack Dahl, President of Fleetwood Enterprises, and included discussion of VA, FHA, Savings and Loan and other financing. Robert Wallace, a Vice President of C.I.T. Financial Services, New York, chaired the session which was co-sponsored by the Land Development and Banking and Finance Committees of MHMA.

The Midland Company won Best of Show honors for its mobile home exhibit. Other award winning manufacturing firms were: Princess Homes, Most Original; Monarch Industries, Best Commercial; and Bendix Home Systems, Most Informative.

Vanply, Inc. took the Best of Show award among the exhibiting supplier companies. Other supplier exhibit winners were: Kevoe, Most Artistic; Bruce Paneling & Molding, Best Commercial; and GAF, Most Informative.

Robert Verbie named manager for Cambridge

Robert J. Verbie has been appointed project manager for Cambridge-on-the-Lake, a 24-acre condominium community

Robert Verbie

In Buffalo Grove. He also continues as director of condominium planning.

The announcement was made by Richard J. Brown, president of Leisure Technology-Midwest, Inc./Richard J. Brown Inc., a subsidiary of Leisure Technology Corp., Lakewood, N. J., who added that the appointment is a newly created position.

A licensed broker, Verbie has sales, construction, management and customer relations responsibilities for the one, two and three bedroom condominium homes. The community, currently housing 200 families, is designed to offer residents a complete lifestyle. Amenities include a recreational pavilion with an indoor swimming pool. A full time social director is employed to coordinate activities. All outdoor maintenance and landscaping as well as a comprehensive security program are provided.

Prior to his appointment at Cambridge-on-the-Lake, Verbie was corporate inventory planning manager for Masonite, and formerly a senior associate with William M. Kordtsman and Sons, a management consulting firm. He holds an undergraduate degree from DePaul University and a master's in business administration from the University of Chicago.

Verbie resides in Buffalo Grove with his wife, Lily, and two daughters.

St. Paul S&L deposits up by $51 million

Net savings deposits rose 16 per cent or $51,151,254, in the year ended Dec. 31, 1972, it was reported recently by St. Paul Federal Savings and Loan Association of Chicago.

Faustin A. Pipal, board chairman, noted that this is the second year in a row that savings deposits have risen in excess of $50 million. "This strong savings inflow, added to regular mortgage payments, enabled us to disburse $84 million in mortgage loans primarily to assist in the purchase of homes," he said.

Total savings increased to $368,726,234 at year end from $317,574,989 at the close of the preceding year.

Assets of St. Paul Federal moved up to $416,578,945, compared with $380,349,895 a year ago. General reserves and surplus amounted to $21,114,720, an increase of $2,685,738.

First mortgage loans and contracts showed a gain of $36,284,104, reflecting an increase to $368,565,066 from $332,280,962.

St. Paul Federal is located at 6700 W. North Ave., Chicago.

Robinson named president of United Development Co.

Robert S. Robinson, a residential marketing executive, has been named president of United Development Company, a major Chicagoland housing development company.

The appointment was announced by Norman Cohn, chairman of the board of Urban Investment and Development Co., the parent company of United, a subsidiary of Aetna Life & Casualty.

Robinson has been division president for a Lake Worth, Fla., development of Robino-Ladd Company called Fountains of Palm Beach.

Before assuming that post earlier this year, Robinson was vice president of sales and marketing for a Robino-Ladd development at Crystal Lake, Ill., where he maintains his family home with his wife and four children.

As president of United, Robinson will supervise the residential marketing program for New Century Town in Vernon Hills, Ill., and the other United developments of Village on the Lake, Elk Grove Village; Chateaux de Chambord, at Oak Brook; Stonebridge at Hazel Crest; and The Park of River Oaks and Village Green in Calumet City.

Robinson's professional career includes supervising the marketing of single and multi-family homes and the related activities of construction and financing.

He began his career in the Chicago area after attending St. Ambrose College, Davenport, Iowa, and Beloit College, Beloit, Wis.

He is a former member of the McHenry County Board of Supervisors, and a past president of the Sales Managers' Club of the Home Builders Association of Chicago.

Two Bell execs get new posts

George J. Schillinger became general manager of the north suburban area for Illinois Bell, on Jan. 1.

He replaces Gerhard M. Freche, who

Gerhard Freche

will move to the Chicago staff as assistant vice president-staff and training.

Schillinger, an assistant vice president, has most recently been general manager-trunks and facilities on the headquarters engineering staff in Chicago. In his new job he will be responsible for all telephone service in the north suburban area. There are about 2,600 employees in the area.

Schillinger, 40, of Arlington Heights, was born in Alton, Ill., and received a B.S. degree in electrical engineering from the University of Illinois. After graduation in 1949, he joined American Telephone and Telegraph Co. in Chicago as an engineer. He has held various positions with AT&T in New York and Illinois Bell. He was promoted to his present position in 1960.

Freche, who is 41, and resides in Barrington, has a B.A. degree from Valparaiso University. He assumed his present position in 1970. He joined the company in 1933 after graduation. In 1964 he was selected to participate in a one-year executive exchange program with Sears Roebuck and Company. He subsequently held a number of executive positions at AT&T and Illinois Bell.

Purity Corp. names treasurer, controller

Edward E. Rennhack of Rolling Meadows was recently named treasurer and controller for Purity Corp., an environ-

MEET CHARLIE. HE'LL TAKE CARE OF EVERYTHING.

You see, Charlie is in charge of the Tanglewood Village maintenance crew. It's up to him to see that all the moving, snow removal and outside painting are taken care of.

With Charlie on the job, you'll have a lot more time on your hands. Time to do what you want to do. Like taking a dip in one of the 3 Club Tanglewood pools. Puttering around the putting green. Even taking up that hobby you've been meaning to take up.

But we wouldn't blame you for spending

Tanglewood Village in Greenbrook Country

all your time inside your new Tanglewood townhome. After all, it's a big place. With 2, 3 or 4 bedrooms. And its own private patio and fenced back yard. And so much glass, it brings the outdoors indoors.

So, with all the things to do at Tanglewood, it's entirely possible that you'd never even see Charlie doing your yard work.

Which is exactly why we call him "Good Time" Charlie.

You can't swear or libel on phone, but...

You can hate all you want

by TOM TIEDE

PHILADELPHIA — Racial trouble in the Navy? Minority group gangs in the street? Black power, welfare, narcotics? Philadelphians worried about woefully complex problems can get woefully simplistic answers by using their phone.

Dial RE 9-5621.

Rilling.
"Hello, this is Dick Bierderman of the National Socialist White People's Party." Talking about everything from shoplifting to school strikes. The answers are easy: Get rid of Jews, Negroes and other unclean. "Everybody knows niggers cause the trouble. Let's ship them back to where they came. You can take the nigger out of the jungle, but you can't take the jungle out of the nigger."

It's Dial-A-Hate message. Programmed in this city and several others, the caller can for a dime get bigoted pontifications which date to the dark ages of couth.

The sponsors are the dickheads of the late American neo-Nazi organizer, George Lincoln Rockwell. Rockwell was murdered outside a Virginia shopping center three years ago, but his memory lingers on. Loyalists keep his ashes well guarded in a "place of honor" and keep his faith in the form of continued "Nazi" agitation toward what the devoted believe will be the eventual assumption of "white party power" in America.

ACCORDING TO FBI agents whose job it is to keep back on extremists, the National Socialist White People's Party, never very much, is merely a pimple of what it was under Rockwell. Headquarters in Arlington, Va., the group reportedly has "no more than a few hundred active members." Despite its size, however, it pops up periodically, in Los Angeles, or Cleveland, or wherever, usually for small demonstrations.

The party branch in Philadelphia is perhaps one of the more active. Bierderman, a tall, 31-year-old "midwestern farm boy," says he was sent here from Arlington to organize the Delaware Valley. "This includes the continuation of our phone message. We run it 24 hours a day. Unfortunately, we can take only one call at a time. Even at that, we get some 3,000 calls every week. We think people are interested."

DOUBTLESS, people are interested. But not necessarily for the reasons Bierderman wants. A good number of the calls placed to Dial-A-Hate each week are for monitoring purposes. Everybody from the NAACP to the Jewish Defense League is thus interested. "We keep monitoring them because we want to catch them," says Sam Bortnick of the MIDWESTERN FARM boy Dick Bierderman has some Philadelphians who care to give him a ring.

JDL. "There are laws against abusing the phone system."

There are, however, not that many laws. And JDL watch-dogging has not yet been able to slap the Nazi line with anything resembling an illegality. "We are completely protected," says Nazi Bierderman, "the constitution guarantees us freedom of speech."

It does indeed. The issue concerning phone messages was settled long ago. In the 1960's, the John Birch Society launched a national home message campaign called Let Freedom Ring. Blatantly anti-Communist in nature, the messages also condemned citizens such as Dwight Eisenhower. Several suits were proposed to stop the slander, citizens' groups issued complaints and denunciations, the Ohio Bell company went so far as to cut the phone message in that city.

The issue, however, was never pursued in court. Today the telephone company says there are 50,000 phone messages in the nation including vestiges of Let Freedom Ring.

The message laws are thus: "You can't swear and you can't libel," sighs Sam Gaber of the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation League. "but apparently, you can hate all you want." Pennsylvania congressman Joshua Ellberg, who once promised legislation curtailing Dial-A-Hate messages, now concedes nothing can be done constitutionally.

"SCUM LIKE THIS," an Ellberg aide says, "is the price we pay for democracy."

There are those who feel the price is too steep. Last summer the JDL tussled with residents in a known Nazi neighborhood (many residents of the neighborhood, a lower middle-class industrial area called Kensington, say they're opposed to new Nazis). A cluster of cherry-bomb firecrackers were exploded near one Nazi's apartment. A black gang in town has threatened to "bump" Richard Bierderman "on sight."

But the far greater number in Philadelphia take the Nazis for what they are, or ignore them completely. Gaber, of the Anti-Defamation League, believes the latter approach is the best:

"Some people have overreacted. I think that's unfortunate. The bigots thrive on publicity. When we hear of say, somebody painting a swastika on a man's door, we hurriedly advise him to clean it off before the word spreads. We feel that if nobody pays any attention to smeared, they'll just go away."

For its part, the National Socialist White People's Party denies enthusiastically it will ever go away. Bierderman, who believes "Adolf Hitler was the greatest mortal who ever lived," says the mood of the nation is swinging in the new Nazis' favor. He says the party has reached the point where it now does not need to recruit indiscriminately, but is looking only for "people ready to die for the cause."

Social Security and You

Q — MY HUSBAND died two years ago after a long illness. He had not been able to work for about a year before his death but had never applied for social security disability benefits. Would I be able to claim benefits for the months my husband was disabled?

A — Yes, you should apply to receive these benefits. Under the old law, disability benefits could be paid only if an application were filed prior to the worker's death. This was changed by the recent amendments. Now a survivor can apply to receive the benefits which would have been due the worker if he had applied for them.

This application must be filed within 3 months of the disabled person's death. However, if the individual died after 1969 and before Oct. 30, 1972, the application must be filed before Jan. 1973. The law does not apply in cases where the worker died before 1970.

Q — I HAVE BEEN receiving widows benefits since my husband died last year. He was entitled to $200 a month from Social Security when he died. Do I have to apply for the increase in my widow's benefit?

A — NO, YOU DO NOT have to file an application. Any increase you are entitled to as a widow will be made automatically Feb. 3, 1973. You will receive notification of the increase sometime in January. Remember, you will not be able to get the full $200 unless you were at least age 65 at the time you began to receive your widow's benefits.

Q — DID THE EARNINGS limitation for persons receiving social security benefits increase for 1972 or 1973?

A — The new limit is effective for 1973. The $1,690 limitation still applies to all wages and self-employment income earned in 1972. Beginning January 1973, an individual receiving monthly social security benefit will be able to earn $2100 before any deductions are made from his checks. Disability beneficiaries must report any work they do, regardless of the amount. Telephone 253-7512 for additional information about these provisions.

Many aged widows will get social security hikes

Most — but not all — aged widows and dependent widowers will get increased payments from social security on Feb. 3, 1973, according to Norman Thoresen, social security manager in Arlington Heights.

"Widows don't have to do anything to get these increases," Thoresen said.

"Some of those who get increases may not get as much as they expected," Thoresen said. "Questions we're getting indicate there's some confusion about widows benefits."

Under the new social security law, increases will go to 89 per cent of the 3½ million widows who get monthly payments based on their late husbands' social security records, according to Thoresen. "About 2 out of 5 widows will get 21.2 per cent more than they were getting," he said. "About half will get increases ranging from about 1 per cent to 21 per cent."

THE 21.2 PER CENT increase will be paid to women who started getting widows benefits at 65 or later. "They are women whose deceased husbands did not take retirement benefits until age 65 or over or had died before becoming entitled to retirement benefits," Thoresen said. "Previously, a widow's benefit could be no more than 82½ per cent of the amount that would have been payable to her husband at age 65."

Smaller increases will be paid to widows who first got checks before 65. "For example," Thoresen said, "a widow who started getting payment at 62 will not get 82.9 per cent of her husband's benefit. Previously, she got 82.5 per cent."

Widows who get no increase under the new law will be mostly sole survivors whose husbands would have qualified for minimum retirement benefits. Thoresen said, "Of the 1,600 women receiving widows benefits in our area about 200 women will not be eligible for the increase."

Holy Resurrection to mark third year

The members of Holy Resurrection Orthodox Church will celebrate the congregation's third anniversary at a dinner Feb. 10 at the VFW Hall, 811 N. Yale Ave., Arlington Heights.

The dinner will start at 6:30 p.m. with entertainment to follow. Tickets are $5 per adult and $2.50 for children. For more information contact the Rev. Father Cyril Lukashonak at 253-6873.

The parish was formed three years ago to serve Eastern Orthodox Christians living in the northwest Chicago area and the Northwest suburbs. Services are held at 10 a.m. and Sunday school at 11:30 a.m. at Prospect High School, 801 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect. All services are in English.

'Unusual' role is temptation for Gene Kelly

by VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Actors take roles in movies for funny reasons," Gene Kelly mused the other day at the Burbank Studios.
"I remember I was vacationing in the Greek Islands with my daughter when a telephone call came from Hollywood asking me if I'd play a straight dramatic role in 'Inherit the Wind'."
"It wasn't the biggest part in the picture but it was an opportunity to work with Spencer Tracy for the first time in my life. Naturally, I got back to Hollywood as soon as I could."
"I'm at an age now when I'm willing to work only when something unusual comes along."
This time the unusual is Liv Ullmann, Norway's blonde charmer who may be the finest actress ever to emerge from Scandinavia — including Bergman and Garbo.
The picture is "40 Carats." Kelly also welcomes the chance to work with Binnie Barnes, another first for him.
THEY BOTH donned dancing shoes for a wild session of acid rock boogie. Afterward the nimble Irishman wasn't the slightest bit winded.
"This kind of dancing isn't serious," he said. "The director can cut in and out of the footage and get what he wants. It's not like choreographing the old dancing numbers we used to do."
"I'm not jumping over any stone walls or making leaps against buildings. In those days I had to train several hours a day like an athlete."
"40 Carats" is Kelly's first picture in eight years. With reruns on television and guest shots with TV regulars and his own "The Funny Side" two years ago, the actor-dancer has been as visible as he wants to be.
"The last movie I did was 'What A Way To Go,'" he said, relaxing in his portable dressing room. "It doesn't seem that long."

A REPORT TO OUR SAVERS:

As 1973 begins, we are grateful that our progress has been due in great measure to our customers' efforts along the line of thrift and home ownership.
The year 1972 saw the savings and loan business achieve its largest growth both on the savings and the mortgage side of the operations. We are proud to report that this growth pattern was also reflected here at Mount Prospect Federal Savings and Loan Association.
Assets of your local association have grown over the 17 million mark, we are happy to report. Loyalty of our savers has been unwavering and will continue our friendly and personal service as an institution large enough to help and small enough to know its customers.
In our opinion 1973 should be another year of growth for the community we serve. Our local housing and real estate markets should remain active. Savings flows should continue strong and assure an amply supply of mortgage money to finance home and apartment purchases.

Family counts the cost of disaster

by MURRAY OLDERMAN
WILKESBARRE, Pa. — Walt Michael decided to drop over from Schickshinny to Swoyersville to visit his mother, Mary because he hadn't seen her since early June.

This is in the hilly gully region of northern Pennsylvania where the earth normally is skewed by burrows of coal mines which dirty the otherwise verdant countryside. Last summer a natural disaster hit the area. The rains of Hurricane Agnes brought the level of the Susquehanna River to monstrous heights and in one day devastated the land, leaving huge gouges of raw earth.

So now as Walt drove into Swoyersville, which had been home since he was a little kid, he didn't recognize it. Just up the street from the Catholic church, where the Michaels' home had stood for 55 years, there were just ruins of dirt and a mobile home. Not even trees.

Walt stepped gingerly around the mud of winter — "You got to walk like a drunk to get in," he muttered — to reach the back door of the mobile home.

"Why didn't you come around the other door, Junior?" asked his mother. "We got boards over there."

At the age of 43, a successful coach in professional football with the New York Jets, he is still Junior, one of the seven boys and one girl Mary Majka and her late husband had raised in Swoyersville. When the first born went to school the teacher couldn't understand Majka (my-kuh) so the family name for him and the others that followed became Michaels.

IT WAS A NICE holiday visit from her son, Mary Majka, who is 18, sipped a little wine but Walt took a slug of whisky and chased it down with beer, not because he particularly wanted to, but because this is how the men of this hardy region drink. Then Walt remembered a couple of Christmas carols in Polish from his yout hand he sang them. His mother smiled proudly.

Later, Walter went over to the mobile home of his brother Tommy, who is 55 and has anthrascilicosis from his many years in the coal mines, and had another boilermaker. Tommy, too, had been wiped out in the floods of the summer of '72 and lived in the mobile home provided by the government.

Finally, he checked in with his oldest brother, Stanley, who is 58 and suffers from anthrascilicosis, the black affliction of the lungs which comes eventually to all men who go down too many years into the mines. Stanley's house had been gutted by the rampaging waters but not washed away, and they saved most of the furniture. Now his family was back it, and Stanley and his son were pounding the downstairs into habitable shape themselves.

Construction workers were getting $10 an hour and were hard to find. There is a miniboom in the area.

The youngest of the Michaels brothers, Lou, and All-American and pro football star who came back home to live, had to rebuild the entire inside of his house, at a cost of $28,000, because water seeped into the wall insulation. Lou also had a bar in Kingston, 17 miles upstream from Schickshinny and the floods washed away $22,000 in equipment. He simply boarded it up and opened another bar in Piltston, still further up the river, poorer by a total of $50,000 because he carried no flood insurance.

THE MICHAELS family, figures Walt, is out $100,000. But it could be worse. "Kid I went to school with," he mused, "came back to look over his house, which was gone, and he just keeled over and died."

"The countryside still looks like a war went through it. It's not just the money. The things you can't put a value on are also gone."

When Walt visited his mom, he asked her, "What was the house worth?" The remnants of it had long ago been bulldozed away.

"I think $13,000," she said.

"What year you living in, Mom?" he asked.

When the flood hit on a Thursday in early June, Walt was alone at his own place three miles out from Schickshinny, where he has 55 acres and raises some cows and chickens. The others, Betty and the four kids, were still back in New Jersey, which is home during the football season, because school wasn't out yet. Walt had built the brand new three-bedroom home himself. He was finishing off the basement as a playroom and feels lucky he hadn't gotten around to the new fireplace.

"WHEN THE WATER came pouring in," said Walt, "I took off. I said, 'Let it go.'" But it stood because he had built the walls of 12-inch cement block to save on fire insurance in the country. When the water subsided, the basement and the first floor were in ruins. Walt fixed the furnace himself. The government appraised the damage to the property at $11,000. Walt pegs it at $7500 because he can do the work himself.

It's the kind of area where you're taught early to help yourself. Religion and hard work dominate.

"I wanted to play football," recalled Walt, "but I used to work the hole of the coal mine picking up chunks just as long as I could see daylight. My dad worked 35 years from the time he got off the boat from Poland till three days before he died. It's hard, dirty work in the mines, but it was clean money."

"The old ladies came out of it best. They've been through so many hard times in this country, it didn't mean a thing. They don't want to leave, none of them. My brothers either. It's home."

"My mother, she's got the Polish church there just down the street."

ON A SCALE SO enormous a single flower covers the width of the cloth. Blossom is a full-blown rose rendered in seven colors on heavy handwoven silk suitable for upholstery and draperies.

IN FRAISE handprinted rows of strawberries are superimposed on random stripes on heavy handwoven upholstery silk.

LAOTIAN IKAT in which a bold geometry is rendered opulent with a melange of pinks and saffrons and a finely guimped gold metallic is seen here as wallcovering. On the table as a runner is South China Sea. Both designs are part of Larsen Design Studio's new collection "An Homage to Jim Thompson."

Industry's founder honored

Thai silk gets a new look

Larsen Design Studio has changed the "look" of Oriental silk to a vital and meaningful statement for 20th century living with a new collection called "An Homage to Jim Thompson."

The collection, introduced at the January International Home Furnishings Show at the Merchandise Mart, Chicago, is the result of Jack Lenor Larsen's 15 months of intensive work in Siam. Larsen's first Thai silk collection is a tribute to the great American entrepreneur and colorist who founded the Thai silk industry.

Although the designs, textures and colors reflect the florid ornament and splendid symmetry of Thai art and architecture, scale is bold, texture and nuance of color vigorous. Altogether there are 45 fabrics in a variety of techniques for drapery, upholstery, wallcoverings and apparel in the Thompson collections.

THE NEW collection, which is the first since Larsen, Inc. bought Thabok Fabrics last year, is all-silk, all-handwoven in Thailand, and all Oriental in feeling and approach.

The Far East is not new to world traveler Larsen, nor to his fabrics. Through the years, Jack Lenor Larsen, Inc. and Siamese silks have enjoyed an unusually warm and friendly exchange. As early as 1932-33 Larsen designed for Thabok, and the two firms have since been in close alliance.

When asked about a new importance of silk, Larsen said he not only enjoyed working with the lush medium with its potential for luminous color, but felt that clients would be equally responsive. The degree of refinement in today's interiors is so much more suitable to silks than those impetuous postwar years of wrought iron and shaggy texture, according to Larsen.

Completely new to the American fabric market are Larsen's ikats, a traditional Thai design which he has enlarged and firmly woven in heavy woven silk.

Says Larsen: "Ikat achieves its image by wrapping in pattern the silk weft, then dyeing, unwrapping and dyeing again. Finally the weaving commences painstakingly, so that each shot of weft is in the prescribed sequence."

"OF COURSE, this is not the easiest means to ornament a cloth. That it is quintessentially handcraft is worth it for the integrity of the 'built in' result. Somehow these ikat cloths have the barbaric vigor of the best tribal rugs. We did not invent the glorious Ikat technique but are probably the first to employ it for longer lengths."

Larsen's rich warp striped Siamese Brocade is a first for Thailand. Silk weaving there has always been plain woven and only the nobility afforded hand-brocaded cloths. This brocade is woven with continuous weft floats to form a fluted column.

Dragonfly Silk, another first for the industry, reflects Larsen's concern for strengthening silk performance for upholstery by blending hardy polyester with a hand-reeled, handwoven silk. Two colors are twisted together to produce iridescence and in solid colors that are coordinated with these in the collection.

MOST OF THE collection is hand-printed with the romantic pattern and glowing color Larsen is known for. There are, however, two important innovations. For one, the dyestuffs are not printed on bland white grounds but on the full-color-iridescence of handwoven silk. Also, the designers in each instance have used a discharge dyestuff to bleach out the color of the woven cloth.

Sometimes, as in Dahlias on Siamese Brocade or South China Sea, an Oriental stylization of waves and spindrift, the discharge creates a negative image in off-white. More usually Larsen has inlaid the bleached out color with a variety of printed shades.

For more information readers may write Jack Lenor Larsen, Inc., Space 6-140, Merchandise Mart, Chicago, Ill., 60654 or call 644-2966.

COLLAGE IS an innovative patchwork of handwoven silk in classic chevron design overlaid with broad vertical stripes. Quilted to a urethane foam backing, the medium weight silk is suitable for upholstery, wall-coverings and bedspreads. Larsen is first showing it to cover a great Gorgon's head bed by Roman sculptor Ceroli. The bed is marketed by Stendig, Inc. and produced by Potro-nova.

Jim Thompson a legend

Jim Thompson was the fabled American who founded the Thailand silk industry in 1949, created a legend and then in 1967, disappeared without trace.

Working as a private entrepreneur in those postwar years, he helped the economy of the underdeveloped Asian country more than many of the government sponsored programs.

Educated as an architect, Thompson possessed abilities that seemed uniquely suited to the purpose to which he was to dedicate his life. Through these qualities and his love of the Thai people he brought to realization the full potential of a traditional handicraft.

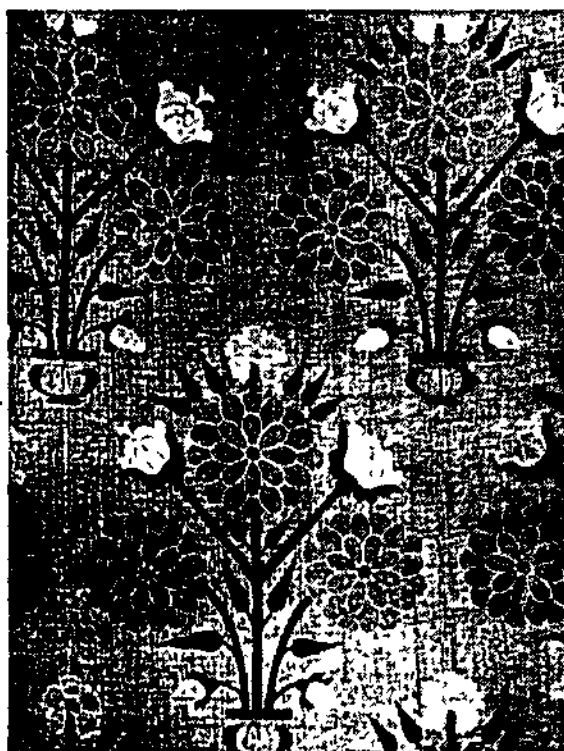

His aesthetic contribution was that of colorist, introducing a brilliant iridescent palette to the world market. He organized cottage weavers and re-introduced sericulture, developed and refined the native cloth and started textile printing in Thailand.

BECAUSE HE was skilled in the presentation of these fabrics, Thai silk found its way into the furnishings of great houses throughout the world. Complete wardrobes of Thai silk were cherished by royalty, the rich and famous, many of whom were his personal friends.

Thompson became the unofficial toastmaster of Southeast Asia. This was especially true when his house was finished. The house along with his collections in it is now a museum in Bangkok.

Already a living legend when he disappeared while vacationing in the jungled mountains of Malaysia's Cameron Highlands, Thompson was the subject of a search, but no trace of him was found.

He left behind the now thriving handwoven Thai silk industry. This elegant fabric, a major export, provides a source of revenue for the country and work for hundreds of thousands of Siamese.

REMEMBER... WE SERVICE WHAT WE SELL

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: You got a T-L from our plumber yesterday. Our sink drain got stopped up and after he'd fixed it up, he gave me a washing soda lesson and said I ought to follow you more closely, that you always give sensible advice. Thought this free plug might make you happy.—Mrs. T.R. Casey

You (and friend plumber) have just "made my day." Your letter came at the ideal moment to jog me into action because there are a few letters from people needing counsel on this very subject. It seems strange that more homeowners are not better acquainted with the virtues of washing soda, which I consider one of the aids of household should never be without. If those who have written about drain troubles will stick to the following procedure just once a week, they ought not to have any more difficulties:

Dissolve one-half cup of washing soda in a quart of hot water. Run very hot water down the drain for a few seconds, then pour in the washing soda solution, followed by a good flushing of more hot water to send the solution on its way. While it's not recommended for blocked drains, I used a whole box this way in an emergency once and it worked. Thanks, Mrs. C.—and your plumber, too.

Dear Dorothy: I see you use plain melted butter for artichokes. My family likes this simple sauce: Combine one-third cup of melted margarine with one-half teaspoon of salt; one-fourth teaspoon of pepper; one teaspoon of sugar, one-fourth cup of lemon juice and two tablespoons of minced parsley. I heat the whole thing for a minute or two until the flavors are blended.—Cissy M.

Dear Dorothy: I'd like to pass on a little trick my husband thought of to tighten snaps that have become loose. He uses a tweezer to squeeze the hole part together and, "presto," it works.—Mrs. Ralph Sarachene.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publication, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Maria Magnifico living in Ames, Iowa, as bride

Maria Theresa Magnifico, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Magnifico of 307

Mr. and Mrs. Mark D. Palmer

S. Fernandez, Arlington Heights, was married Dec. 30 to Mark D. Palmer of Ames, Iowa. The bridegroom is completing his college studies at Iowa State University in Ames, so the couple have gone there to live.

They met at Illinois State University in Normal when both were students before college. Maria graduated from Sacred Heart of Mary High School.

She and Mark exchanged vows at a mid-afternoon Nuptial Mass in Our Lady of the Wayside Church, Arlington. Afterwards there was a reception at the Black Fox Restaurant in Rolling Meadows.

MARIA AND MARK had all their brothers and sisters in the wedding party. Frances Magnifico was maid of honor and Greg Palmer, best man. Bridesmaids were Mary Dillmer and Doreen Bauteh, college friends of the bride, and Annette Palmer, who were escorted by ushers Drew Palmer, Paul Magnifico and Craig Jacobus, college friend of the groom.

Mark, his sister and two brothers are children of Mr. and Mrs. Don Palmer of Ames.

Area newlyweds honeymoon in Hawaii

After their wedding Jan. 6 in the Community Church of Rolling Meadows, Susan Peters and Robert DePrat left for a two-week honeymoon in Hawaii.

The bride is from Rolling Meadows, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Peters of 2304 Flicker Lane. Her husband is the son of Mrs. Jean DePrat of 285 Washington Blvd., Hoffman Estates, and the late Robert DePrat.

Susan wore a white organza and lace gown for the five o'clock candlelight nuptials. It was simply styled with appliques of lace at the round neck, on the long puffed sleeves and the fitted waistline. The dress ended in a long train and was topped with a long veil attached to a lace and ribbon bonnet headpiece.

The bride's bouquet was a colonial arrangement of white carnations and red roses.

HER ATTENDANTS were all gowned in red velvet with white lace bodices and organza sleeves. They carried pink carnations and red roses.

Bunny Texidor of Carpentersville was Susan's matron of honor, and bridesmaids included Karen Noffke of Hoffman Estates and Cindy and Debbie Peters, sisters of the bride.

Paul DePrat was his brother's best

Mr. and Mrs. Robert DePrat man, while Patrick Texidor, Carpentersville; Brian Campbell, Hoffman Estates; and Greg Zweig, St. Louis, ushered.

ORGANIST FOR the double ring service was Sandra Ford of Arlington Heights and soloist, Muriel Muka of Des Plaines.

Afterwards the newlyweds were feted by 150 guests at a reception at Arlington VFW hall. Since their Hawaiian honeymoon they are living in Arlington Heights.

A '69 graduate of Fremd High School, Susan works for Universal Oil Products in Des Plaines. Her husband, a Conant High graduate, has a degree in computer science from the University of Missouri in Rolla and is now with the U. S. Coast Guard. While at Missouri he was affiliated with Sigma Pi fraternity.

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

So you think you've got a handful — trying to nurse a half dozen summer leftovers, a leggy begonia, two vincas, a straggly geranium and a poinsettia through the winter?

How would you like to take care of 50,000 plants in a hotel lobby — poor light, low humidity, everybody mauling the merchandise?

If you've been to the Hyatt Regency O'Hare Hotel, you can't help but notice the indoor garden showplace — $70,000 worth of grape ivy trailing expensively over 10 floors of balconies and skybridges, and oodles of lush, tropical plants gracing the space.

What a bonanza for the firm that got the contract to install all that greenery! Tropical Plant Rentals, Prairie View, just about cleaned out the national grape ivy supply to do the job in May, 1971.

IN ADDITION, the Hyatt job carries a $1500 a month maintenance contract and a $350 flowering plant change every three weeks, according to Florist Review magazine. (Mother always told me to go into the florist business, but no, I had to take up the pen instead of the trowel.)

The big job at the Hyatt is not without its problems. It took seven men three days to clean the ivy for Christmas. With automatic plant waterers attached to water hoses, the gardeners were able to water a half floor at a time. Normal maintenance calls for a gardener to work at the hotel two and one half days a week every week.

Romantic but dimly lit restaurants like The Other Place and Hugo's take their toll of the large, specimen plants. Even in the swimming pool, the plants have a hard time hanging on; chlorine gas periodically knocks off the touchy tropics.

After a look at the problems of professional gardeners, thank your lucky lupine you've only got a few hardy houseplants to coddle.

Make that special occasion really special!

Junior's bowl over

The second annual Scotch Doubles Bowl was held Jan. 27 by the Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines. Bowling was at the Elk Grove bowl with sandwiches afterwards at the Maitre d' Restaurant.

Charimen for the event were Mrs. Joyce Wells and Mrs. Wesley Hackett.

RECREATIONAL EQUIPMENT was purchased last year by Countryside Center for the Handicapped with proceeds from the benefit sponsored by O'Hare Chapter of Clipped Wings. Mrs. William Underwood and Mrs. Ted Kelley supervise the play of Hal Edgington, Quint Breen and Michael Steele as the former United stewardesses make plans for their third annual benefit, a dinner-fashion show to be held Feb. 1 at Corrado's Restaurant, Arlington Heights. Fashion will be from Corrado's and Squire on the Square, Palatine. Tickets, 529-2744.

AOPi entertains hubbies at party

Blackjack and Roulette will be only two of the attractions at the Casino Night Couples Party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Frerk, 1523 N. Douglas, Arlington Heights at 8 p.m., Feb. 10.

A couples party is held twice each year to unite the husbands of members of the Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi Sorority. This year the committee chairwoman is Mrs. D. Conway, also of Arlington Heights.

The party will include a number of games of chance, something for everyone, prizes for the biggest winners, refreshments and lots of good times.

Northwest Suburban Alumnae Chapter of AOPi draws its members from suburbs extending from Park Ridge to Barrington. Couples interested in attending the party may make reservations by calling Mrs. Conway, 394-5742.

New church circle will meet evenings

A new evening circle of the First United Methodist Church of Elgin has been formed in the Schaumburg-Hoffman-Streamwood-Hanover Park area. The first meeting was held Jan. 25 in the home of Mrs. Bernard Armstrong, Streamwood.

Meetings will be held on four Wednesdays in member's homes, and interested area women are welcome to contact the membership chairman, Mrs. Richard Higgins, 289-5514 evenings, or circle chairman, Mrs. Jess Augustine, 895-8237.

The next meeting will be February 28th, at the home of Mrs. Ernest Perkins, 424 Waverly, Streamwood, a discussion program is planned and regular business meeting. Future programs will include speakers and craft projects for the Mistletoe Mart.

ERA benefit Friday night

Chicago Chapter of NOW (National Organization for Women) will hold two receptions tomorrow evening for Betty Friedan, Illinois legislators and concerned women to benefit its efforts to get the Equal Rights Amendment ratified in Illinois.

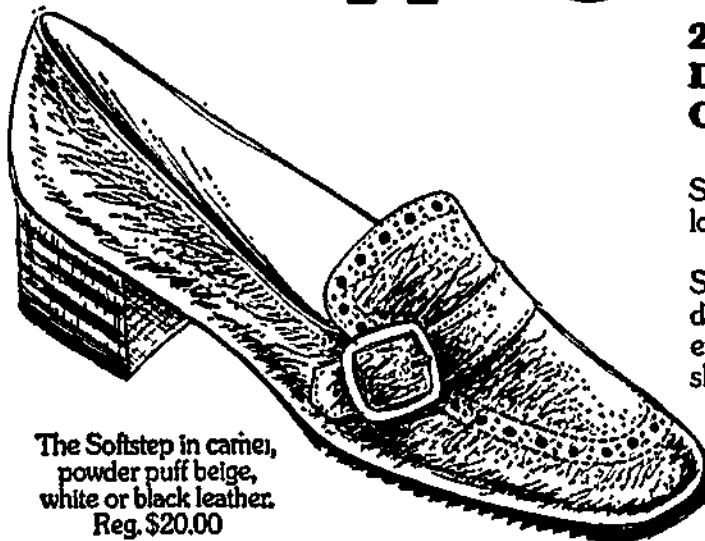

The ERA was defeated twice in the Illinois House of Representatives last spring though it passed the Senate. It is expected to be brought up again in the present assembly.

The first reception will be held at The Concourse of McClurg Court Center, 333 E. Ontario, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Another reception will be held from 7:30 to 10:30 at 4860 S. Kimbark. Donation is $10.

Lt. Sullivan takes bride

Lt. Richard Lorin Sullivan of Arlington Heights is taking his bride of Dec. 30 to live in Lubbock, Tex., where he is an instructor pilot at Reese Air Force Base.

Rick and Joan Marie Scheiner of Corry, Pa., were married in St. Edna Catholic Church, Arlington, in a noon ceremony, then received 100 guests at a party at Old Orchard Country Club.

Although Rick has not spent much time at home here during the past years, his parents, the Francis Daniel Sullivans, live at 1700 W. Lexington Drive. He is a graduate of the U. S. Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs, and took pilot training at Reese AFB.

His bride is the daughter of the James Frederick Schemers of Corry, and she, too, has spent recent years away from her family. Joan has been a stewardess with United Air Lines and just prior to her marriage was an X-ray technologist at the University of Colorado Medical Center in Denver.

Her three sisters and Rick's sister were Joan's bridal attendants, Jeri Scheiner as maid of honor and Janice and Julie Scheiner and Nancy Sullivan bridesmaids.

Best man was Lt. Mark Magness of Wichita, Kan., and groomsmen were Lt. Eric Howell, Avon-by-the-Sea, N. J.; Lt. Edward Bradshaw, Syracuse, N. Y.; and Lt. Robert Peterman, Dover, N. H.

The bride's brother John was an usher.

Lt. and Mrs. Richard Sullivan

A sewing clinic on menswear

"A Make Your Own Menswear" fabricana, or "how-to" clinic, will be presented by fashion representative Gayle Jackson today at Ida's Sewing Circle, 1120 Lee

St., Des Plaines. The 30 to 40 minute long clinics will be held at 10:45 a.m. and 3:45 p.m. at no charge.

Miss Jackson will discuss the easy way to learn the fine details of making menswear, as well as lecture on facts about fabrics suitable for menswear sewing such as cottons and polyester knits. She will also discuss linings, underlinings and interfacing, defining their types and purposes while explaining specific sewing techniques for each.

Following the lecture, Miss Jackson will demonstrate the step by step construction of a man's blazer. Questions from the audience are welcome.

Miss Jackson travels throughout the country presenting fashion shows and sewing demonstrations as a representative for Vogue-Butterick Fashion marketing company.

Academy Award winning film drama to be shown tonight at Harper

"The Garden of the Finzi-Continis," directed by Vittorio DeSica, will be shown at Harper College tonight at 8 o'clock.

The Academy Award-winning film drama is set in 1938, when Mussolini's anti-Semitic edicts began to isolate the Jews from their communities.

Public admission is $1. Harper students, faculty and staff are admitted free with ID cards. The film, which was also chosen best foreign film, will be shown in Room E-106.

The film plot concerns the fate of the Finzi-Continis, a very rich, aristocratic and cultured Jewish family.

THE BEAUTIFUL daughter of the house, Micol, has since childhood played in the family's gardens with Giorgio, the son of a neighboring bourgeois Jewish family. Mussolini unites forces with Hitler, and anti-Semitism poisons the land. Giorgio's family hopes to beat the purge by joining the enemy, but in the Fascist world there is no place for a Jew. Giorgio finds himself expelled from his exclusive tennis club and that is only the first and least of indignities to which he and his family are subjected. Nor are the Finzi-Continis, for all their wealth and culture, spared.

The film is in Italian dialog with English subtitles.

Some people worry about the federal government usurping the power of the states through federal legislation and regulations that supersede state law.

Not Howard Kaufman, who heads the Consumer Fraud Division of the Illinois Attorney General's office.

What will happen to the state's consumer protection efforts as the federal government expands its consumer protection role? Already the Federal Trade Commission has established regulations similar to Illinois state law controlling door-to-door sales, and the federal Transportation Department is administering a new law prohibiting tampering with vehicle speedometers, a law that duplicates existing Illinois law. In addition, the proposed Consumer Protection Agency stands a good chance of passage in this Congress.

Kaufman impatiently dismissed the idea of conflict with a wave of his hand during a recent interview.

"They (federal agencies) can't get into the gut involvement," he said. Not only are they bogged down by "cumbersome procedures," Kaufman noted; "they don't have the staff to handle complaints. Why, they've only got two people in the whole Truth in Lending office."

"Sure, there's overlap — plenty of it, but the powers are different," Kaufman said of federal and state consumer protection law.

WITHIN THE state itself there are several levels of government with consumer protection mechanisms, he noted. In addition to city ordinances, there is the county State's Attorney, who has criminal jurisdiction and can call in a grand jury on matters of fraud.

"My office," Kaufman said, "has immediate injunctive power (to order a temporary or permanent stop of a particular business practice) and subpoena power to get hold of a company's records and find out what's going on."

Operating on this philosophy, that his office is in a position to be of direct assistance to individual consumers, Kaufman is seeking additional powers from the current legislature, including jurisdiction over real estate sales. Another bill being pushed by his office is one that would revise the "holder-in-due course" principle, which requires a consumer to meet his payments to a third party creditor even though he is not satisfied with the original business transaction.

Kaufman added, however, that this legislation has "very little chance" of passage, due to the opposition of banking interests in the state.

BUT KAUFMAN'S biggest concern right now isn't anything so sophisticated as a bill to change complicated legal procedures, or so dramatic as a big fraud ring.

It is consumer education. Or rather, the lack of it. Consumer education has been required in public school curriculums since the mid-'60s, but Kaufman has been visiting schools around the state recently and he is disappointed with what he has found.

"I don't think the consumer courses in the schools in the state come anywhere near what they should be," he said. In most schools he checked, the courses were part of the home economics program and were weak.

This situation threatens to spawn a whole new generation of consumers who are no better off than the average consumer today. And today's consumer, according to Kaufman, "is resistant to education."

"They think they are good shoppers," he said, "when actually they're very bad shoppers. They won't even take the time to go to the library and look at Consumer Reports for information on washers before they buy a new washer."

"IT'S THE MOST frustrating thing I face."

What's the answer? Besides beefing up consumer education, Kaufman firmly believes that "we must get the level of sophistication of contracts, labels, etc.) down to where consumers can understand it."

Kaufman also concedes that a consumer ombudsman "might be a good idea." While maintaining that his office speaks for all the people of Illinois in all matters of litigation, he observed that an ombudsman would be able to do a lot of research and appear at hearings to speak on behalf of the people.

Birth notes

LUTHERAN GENERAL

David Paul Sellers was born Jan. 3 to Mr. and Mrs. James P. Sellers, 1510 Colwyn Drive, Schaumburg. The 6 pound 8 ounce baby is the first child for his parents. Mr. and Mrs. Philip Sellers, Wiggins, Miss., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fowler, East Peoria, Ill., are David's grandparents.

If your family favors meat and potato meals offer them a variation that's just as hearty and satisfying: beef short ribs with noodles. The beef cut is a thrifty one and the noodles help stretch the meat in a way that stretches the budget, too. The family is sure to enjoy the bonus of good flavor in this recipe for Tomato Simmered Short Ribs with Sour Cream Gravy.

a bounty on a budget

The meaty chunks of beef are cooked tender with tomatoes and lots of flavor makers like onion, garlic, bay leaf, thyme, marjoram and rosemary. Along with the fragrant herbs, add carrots and green pepper for the final moments of cooking. While the meat and vegetables simmer, prepare the noodles which form a solid basis for the meal. They're extra tasty, too, if you cook them in water to which beef bouillon cubes have been added.

The tomato, meat and flavorings have given the drippings left in the pan a wonderful flavor base for gravy. Stir in sour cream to make it creamy and blend the flavors subtly.

Serve this one-dish meal of Tomato Simmered Short Ribs with its vegetables, noodles and gravy, and all you need to serve with it is a tossed green salad and milk to drink. Most families demand dessert, and here's a sure-fire favorite: Easy Fixin' Ice Cream Log. Just shape two pints of vanilla ice cream into a rectangular "log," coat with cookie crumbs and ladle on chocolate syrup.

TOMATO SIMMERED SHORT RIBS WITH sour cream GRAVY

- 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1 large onion, thinly sliced
- 8 beef short ribs (about 3-4 lbs.)
- 1 can (1 lb.) stewed tomatoes
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon leaf thyme
- 1/2 teaspoon rosemary
- 1/2 teaspoon leaf marjoram
- 1 pound carrots, peeled and cut in strips
- 1 large green pepper, cut in strips
- Hot cooked noodles

GRAVY:

- 1/4 cup regular all-purpose flour
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 cups drippings
- 1 cup dairy sour cream, at room temperature

In large, heavy skillet with cover melt butter; saute garlic and onion 2-3 minutes. Add short ribs and brown slowly on all sides. Pour tomatoes over all; add bay leaf, salt, pepper, thyme, rosemary and marjoram. Cover and simmer 1 1/2-2 hours, turning meat occasionally. During the last 30-45 minutes of cooking time, add carrots and green pepper to skillet. Serve over noodles. To prepare Gravy: Skim off fat. Gradually add water to flour to make a smooth paste. Gradually add to drippings. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Cook 2 additional minutes. Remove from heat; stir in sour cream. Heat to serving temperature. (Do not boil.) Place noodles on platter and top with meat and vegetables. Makes 6-8 servings.

*Note: Noodles have a better flavor if 2 beef bouillon cubes are added to cooking liquid. Toss drained noodles with butter before serving.

FRENCH DRESSING

- 1 small clove garlic
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Generous grinding pepper
- 2 tablespoons wine, malt, tarragon or herb-flavored vinegar
- 6 tablespoons olive oil or salad oil

Peel the garlic, then cut in snips with a sharp knife. Place garlic and salt in bowl and crush with back of a tablespoon, or crush on a cutting board with the flat side of a knife; scrape up and put in bowl. Add other ingredients, stirring with a fork to mix flavors.

Note: If possible, don't make dressing more than an hour or two before salad is to be tossed. Garlic tastes best when freshly snipped or crushed. Have individual bowls or places well chilled for serving the salad; then add dressing to the greens just before serving.

EASY FIXIN' ICE CREAM LOG

- 1/2 cup chocolate cookie crumbs (about 10-11 chocolate wafers)
- 8 marshmallows, cut up
- 1/2 cup coarsely chopped nuts
- 2 pints vanilla ice cream
- Chocolate syrup

In a small bowl combine crumbs, marshmallows, and nuts; set aside. On aluminum foil place ice cream; press ends together. Return to freezer to harden. Press crumb mixture over ice cream to completely coat. Wrap log in foil and freeze until hard. To serve: Slice log and spoon on 1 to 1 1/2 tablespoons chocolate syrup over each serving. Makes 8 servings.

Natural foods offer nutritious diets

Early settlers of this country would be perfectly at home preparing and eating natural foods. For, way back when, meat animals grazed and fruits and vegetables grew on land untouched by pesticides, insecticides or chemical fertilizers. Antibiotics and growth-stimulating hormones were not used in the raising and breeding of animals to be eaten.

The current wave of rejecting foods subjected to chemicals of any sort is spreading throughout the United States. Many individuals find a new joy in growing their own fruits, vegetables, and even beef and chickens, organically. This can be very expensive. But, devotees of natural foods feel they capture a truer flavor and gain more vitamins and minerals in this way. One new cookbook, "Whole Earth Cook Book," (Houghton-Mifflin and San Francisco Book Company), explains simply the whole earth and natural foods philosophy. Its authors, Sharon Cadwallader and Judi Orr, include 138 recipes developed and tested at the Whole Earth Restaurant on the University of California campus at Santa Cruz.

Very important in these natural foods eating schemes is the use of high protein items such as soybeans, peas, beans, nuts, fish and seafood. Salads, vegetables (eaten raw or slightly cooked) and the use of whole grains also are natural food essentials. Emphasis on all these reflect a well-rounded, well-balanced selection of nutritional items all Americans need to eat for better health but too often overlook in favor of snack foods, colas and sugary treats. Natural food cookery is for everyone since there is nothing mysterious about the basic ingredients.

NUT LOAF

1 large bunch of greens (chard, spinach, turnip, or beet)
 1/2 cup oil
 1 medium onion, sliced thin and chopped
 2 tablespoons fresh, chopped parsley
 1 garlic clove, mashed
 1 teaspoon dried oregano
 2 cups ground almonds, walnuts, pecans, or in combination
 1 cup dried whole-wheat bread crumbs
 1/2 cup wheat germ
 1/2 cup catsup

1 tablespoon soy sauce
 Chop and steam greens for 5 minutes. Sauté in oil the onion, parsley, garlic, and oregano. Combine all remaining ingredients. (Incidentally, ground nuts are better than chopped, which tend to become too dry.) Shape into a loaf and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. This loaf is not as firm as a meat loaf, so cut gently. Makes one loaf.

BASIC SOYBEAN RECIPE

2 cups dried soybeans
 2 1/2 cups water
 To prepare: Soak soybeans in 1 cup water for 1 to 2 hours; then place in flat dish in freezing compartment overnight.
 To cook: Remove from freezer; crack to remove from tray and drop into 1 1/2 cups boiling water. Cover. Reduce heat to simmer for 3 to 4 hours. The last hour is the time to add onions, seasonings, oil or ham, spices, tomatoes or soy sauce. There are many ways to improve the palatability of soybeans. Imagination and experimentation may create a favorite recipe.

SUPER SOYBEAN

CASSEROLE
 1 slice salt pork or 2 or 3 slices bacon, or may substitute with 2 tablespoons of oil, then top last few minutes with vegetarian bacon bits
 1 green pepper, diced
 1 onion, chopped
 1 garlic clove, mashed
 1 cup milk
 2 teaspoons flour
 2 teaspoons butter
 2 cups cooked soybeans
 Salt and pepper to taste
 Chop salt pork or bacon and brown in frying pan. Meanwhile add vegetables to half-cooked meat and sauté together with garlic. Then make white sauce of milk, flour and butter. Add both mixtures to soybeans. (These should have no excess liquid after cooking. If so, pour into freezer jar and save for soup.) Add seasonings. Put in medium oven dish and bake at 350 degrees. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

COUNTRY TUNA

VEGETABLE PILAF
 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 1/2 cup chopped scallions

1 package (12 ounces) or 2 cups uncooked brown rice
 2 cans (10 1/2 ounces each) condensed beef bouillon
 2 teaspoons salt
 1/4 teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
 1/4 cup hulled sunflower seeds
 1/4 cup diced pared carrot
 1 medium zucchini, sliced
 1 1/2 cups 1-inch pieces broccoli (or 1 10-ounce package frozen broccoli spears, thawed and cut into 1-inch pieces)
 3 cans (6 1/2 or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
 Melt butter in a large skillet. Add scallions and rice; cook, stirring frequently, until rice is golden brown. Turn into 3-quart casserole and stir in undiluted bouillon. Cover and bake in 375-degree oven 30 minutes. Remove casserole from oven and using two forks, gently combine rice with salt, pepper sauce, sunflower seeds, carrot, zucchini and broccoli. Return to oven and bake 30 minutes longer.

Five minutes before end of baking time, mix in tuna, separated into chunks. Makes 6 servings.

PATTIE JUMBOS

2 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
 1/4 cup chopped onion
 1/4 cup chopped pared carrot
 1/4 cup uncooked brown rice
 1 1/2 cups water
 1 can (6 1/2 or 7 ounces) tuna in vegetable oil
 2 tablespoons flour
 2 tablespoons plus 1/2 cup wheat germ, divided
 1/4 teaspoon dried leaf thyme
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 2 eggs, slightly beaten

In medium saucepan melt 1 tablespoon butter. Add onion and carrot and cook over low heat 10 minutes, until vegetables are partially cooked. Add rice and water, cover and cook over low heat for 45 minutes or until all water is absorbed. Remove from heat and cool. In large bowl flake tuna. Add prepared rice mixture, flour, 2 tablespoons wheat germ, thyme, salt and pepper. Stir in eggs. Form mixture into 4 patties. Roll in remaining 1/4-cup wheat germ. Melt remaining 1 tablespoon butter in large skillet. Add patties and cook over very low heat until brown, turning once. Serve with Tuna Sauce. Makes 4 servings.

TUNA SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 2 tablespoons flour
 2 cups milk
 1 can (6 1/2 or 7 ounces) tuna in vegetable oil
 1 teaspoon chopped anchovy
 1 tablespoon lemon juice
 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
 1/4 teaspoon dried leaf thyme
 1/4 teaspoon salt

In medium saucepan, melt butter and blend in flour. Remove from heat and gradually stir in milk. Return to heat and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Stir in tuna and remaining ingredients; simmer 2 or 3 minutes, continuing to stir. Remove from heat and pour into sauce boat. Serve warm. Makes approximately 2 cups sauce.

TUNA-BROWN RICE

CABBAGE ROLLS
 8 large cabbage leaves
 2 tablespoons butter or margarine

 1/4 cup chopped onion
 1/2 cup chopped celery
 2 cans (6 1/2 or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil
 1 cup cooked brown rice
 1 tablespoon sesame seeds
 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
 1 egg, well-beaten
 2 cups fresh tomato sauce
 1 cup sour cream

Cook cabbage leaves in a small amount of boiling water about 4 minutes. Drain and dry on paper towels. Heat butter in skillet; add onion and cook until tender but not brown. Add celery, tuna, rice, sesame seeds, mustard, parsley and egg. Mix well. Divide tuna mixture among cabbage leaves and place on center of each leaf. Roll up and tuck in the ends, making a neat package. Fasten rolls with food picks. Place close together in a shallow baking dish. Pour tomato sauce over cabbage rolls. Cover and bake in 350-degree oven 30 to 35 minutes. Remove rolls to a platter and keep warm. (Remove food picks.) Combine sour cream with tomato liquid in baking dish. Heat to serving temperature. Spoon over cabbage rolls and serve. Makes 8 cabbage rolls.

Celebrate Chinese holiday with pennywise beef loaves

Be sure to pay all your debts before Saturday — that's Chinese New Year, and the Chinese believe it's necessary to start it with a clean slate. In fact, if you were a Chinese who couldn't pay up, no matter what, your only recourse would be to hide from your creditors until after sunrise on New Year's Day. Then you were safe until the next big day for paying bills — about four months later.

Of course, the New Year which will be the year 4871 in the Chinese calendar is also the occasion for the biggest Chinese feast of the year. Just in case paying your creditors has strained your budget, try pennywise Good Fortune Beef Loaves. These are individual meat loaves made with Chinese and American ingredients and glazed with a red sauce — because red symbolizes good luck to the Chinese.

GOOD FORTUNE BEEF LOAVES

1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
 1/3 cup sweet & sour sauce
 2 tablespoons soy sauce
 2 pounds ground beef
 2 eggs beaten
 1 teaspoon dry mustard
 2 teaspoons onion powder
 1 can (3 ounces) chow mein noodles, finely crushed
 1 can (1 pound) Chinese mixed vegetables, rinsed and drained
 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 1 1/2 teaspoons salt

Combine sauces; reserve 1/4 cup for baste. Combine remaining sauce and ingredients. Shape into 8 loaves. Place in shallow baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes, basting occasionally with sauce. Yield 8 servings.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

Thousands of people make a jaunt to New Orleans during the carnival season and have, as one way observer said, "some glorious days, a hangover and acute indigestion." The old Creole City is an eater's paradise and with some restraint one can have the glorious days without either of the other dire results.

To dine well in New Orleans one doesn't have to patronize all the big-name, nationally-known restaurants. In fact, too often in these you pay for atmosphere and reputation with something lacking in the quality of food.

Try these restaurants, which in my opinion, are as fine as are available — the Rib Room of the Royal Orleans, Caribbean Room of the Poncechartrain, Kolb's great German restaurant, Tortorici, Manale's and Mosca's three fine Italian places, and beautiful Elmwood Plantation.

Every good chef in New Orleans, it seems, can work wonders with all kinds of seafood, especially oysters, shrimp and crab which come in daily from the Gulf. In this and other current columns, we'll give you recipes for some excellent dishes we had on a recent trip to the City of the Saints.

Crab Remick is a specialty in the Caribbean Room and may be served either as an appetizer or for a light luncheon. You'll need 1 pound of lump crabmeat, fresh or frozen. If frozen, be sure it's completely thawed and well drained.

Fry 6 strips of bacon until crisp. Divide crabmeat into 6 equal portions and pile the crab into individual ramekins.

Heat the crabmeat in a 400 degree oven, then top with the bacon strips. Blend together 1 level teaspoon dry mustard, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, 1/2 teaspoon celery salt and 1/2 teaspoon Tabasco.

To this blend add 1/2 cup chili sauce, 1 teaspoon tarragon vinegar, and 1 1/2 cups mayonnaise. Stir. Spread the sauce over warm crabmeat in each ramekin and broil until the sauce glazes. Serves 6.

Turtle soup is a great delicacy at Kolb's Restaurant. Cut 1/2 pound of turtle meat into small cubes and sauté in 1/2 cup shortening until well browned. Add 1/2 cup diced onions, 1/2 cup diced celery, 3 chopped garlic cloves and cook 10 minutes. Blend in 1/2 cup flour and cook 5 minutes.

Add 8 ounces of tomato sauce, 1 1/2 quarts of water, 1 ounce of beef extract, 1 teaspoon celery salt, 2 bay leaves, 3 whole cloves, 1/2 teaspoon thyme, 1/4 cup chopped parsley, 1/4 cup Lea & Perrins sauce, salt and pepper to taste. Bring to boil then simmer 2 hours when meat should be very tender.

Serve in heated cups or bowls, garnishing each serving with chopped hard-boiled egg, thin slices of lemon and a little sherry. Recipe makes 2 quarts of soup.

Billy goat cookies look gruff, taste great

Animal lovers and cookie lovers alike will greet "Billy Goats" with enthusiasm. For these delicious cookies combine the taste-tempting textures and flavors of chocolate, coconut, rice cereal and imported dates.

Called "Billy Goats" because of their ragged, scraggly, whisker-y shape, these cookies were developed by the Importers of Bordo pitted and diced dates particularly to appeal to youngsters' sweet tooth.

But though their unique, fanciful name appeals to the "kids" in the family, Billy Goats' special rich taste is sure to make them a cookie jar favorite with adults as well.

BILLY GOATS
1 cup butter
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 cup cocoa
2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda

1 8-oz. package imported diced dates or whole dates, cut up
1 cup shredded coconut
1 cup crisp rice cereal

Cream butter and brown sugar, then add egg and vanilla and beat well. Add cocoa gradually and mix until blended.

Sift flour and soda into the mixture and beat well. Blend in Bordo imported dates, coconut and rice cereal and mix until all are coated and well dispersed. Drop batter by spoonful onto an ungreased baking sheet.

Bake cookies at 350 degrees for 13 to 15 minutes. Yield: approximately 5 dozen.

Precut frozen beef could lower price

by GAYNOR MADDOX

The cost of beef is a major national concern. The price will continue up despite the fact that the supply this year increased by 600 million pounds. The demand for the better cuts continues to go up. As long as people have money they figure they have the right to enjoy beef.

The cost of getting beef to the retail market is high. Is there any way of cutting costs in this area? Most of the beef is shipped in carcass form, side and quarters. That means paying for freight on a lot of inedible bone and fat.

Another method is for the packer to pre-cut meat at the packing house, removing the bones and most of the fat. The final trimming is done at the supermarket. This method saves on freight, therefore cuts some costs.

Another method of cutting shipping costs on meat to the retail market is to freeze it at the packer's, bone and fat removed, and ship frozen. Many marketing experts believe this method will become more accepted and that sales figures will climb.

Selling some meat in frozen form would definitely help reduce costs to consumers. As transportation costs continue to climb retailers find this method economical.

Homemakers, however, are still opposed to buying raw frozen meat at the market. Yet they freeze fresh meat for their home freezers. But these same customers say they would not buy raw meat already frozen.

Why? They have doubts about how long the meat has been frozen. They also are not sure about its quality. Yet they buy frozen beef in other forms — as pot roast in frozen dinners, beef stroganoff and chopped with vegetables, etc. Still their aversion to raw frozen meat persists.

One major reason for this is the color of frozen beef. It takes on a gray look far different from the bright red of raw meat. Wrapped in the display cases in the retail stores, discoloration takes place. The taste and quality remain, but the color changes and discourages customers.

TO OVERCOME this objection to raw frozen meats, several meat processors have combined cryogenic freezing of red meat at temperatures as low as minus 150 degrees to minus 250 degrees with new packaging. The new package film enables the meat to retain its bloom rather than darkening. This holds true even when displayed at retail for several months at 0 degrees or below.

This new process may be the breakthrough to wider consumer acceptance of frozen red meat.

A discussion with various processors indicates that fresh frozen beef is not a new idea. It has been tried several times. It is an expensive operation and will take backing of the industry. It cannot profitably be done for a few customers.

But if enough people want it and their local markets know about their desire and pass this information along to the processors, the cost of beef may come down a peg or two.

Use bags correctly

Over roasting bags came under the scrutiny of the Food and Drug Administration's (FDA) Bureau of Foods after a report by the New York State Health Department citing 60 incidents of bags exploding. That was last January. Since that time, makers of the plastic cooking bags met with FDA and agreed to provide additional package instructions to insure safe use of the bags.

Hearty dish merits stars

Eggplant remains a decorative rather than edible table item in many regions of North America, even among those who enjoy growing this succulent vegetable. However, it is the culinary heart of much Spanish and Mediterranean cookery and can be eaten with much pleasure in hot or cold dishes. Eggplant actually is native to the East Indies and was introduced into Spain during the Middle Ages by the conquering Moors. A favored dish is similar to the Greek Moussaka in which the ingredients are mixed and baked in the eggplant shell.

MEDITERRANEAN EGGPLANT

- 2 medium eggplants
- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 1/2 pounds ground beef chuck
- 2 cups chopped onion
- 1 cup diced green pepper
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1/3 cup pine nuts or blanched slivered almonds, toasted
- 1/3 cup dark seedless raisins
- 1 tablespoon capers
- 2/3 cup sliced pimiento-stuffed olives
- 1/3 cup chopped parsley
- 1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste

Cut eggplants in half lengthwise. Carefully remove the pulp with a small sharp knife, leaving a 1/2-inch thick shell. Chop eggplant pulp. (There should be about 4 cups.) Melt 2 tablespoons of the butter in large skillet. Add beef and saute until browned, stirring frequently. Remove beef with slotted spoon to large bowl. Sauté onion in drippings in same skillet until golden. Add remaining butter to skillet. Stir in green pepper and chopped eggplant. Sauté 1 minute, stirring constantly. (If necessary, add more butter to prevent sticking.)

Cover and cook eggplant mixture 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add sautéed vegetable mixture with all remaining ingredients to beef, toss until well combined. Fill eggplant shells with meat mixture. Bake in 350-degree oven 30 minutes in large shallow baking pan. Garnish eggplants with additional olive slices and parsley sprigs. (Makes 4 main dish servings.)

* Note: Eggplant may be frozen at this point. To serve, thaw in refrigerator for 24 hours. Bake in 375-degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes or until hot throughout. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Mrs. Richard Donatoni

Her parties feature finger foods

by LOIS SEILER

"Finger-lickin' good" describes Yvonne Donatoni's specialty — an authentic Italian dinner which is eaten completely with the fingers. She recommends it for casual entertaining — especially with good friends who enjoy a fun-filled evening and experimenting with foods.

Guests are seated at the Donatonis' round table, where the food is easily accessible to all. Bagna Calda, an Italian fondue, simmers over a low flame surrounded by an array of vegetables for dipping. Mock chicken legs serve as the entree, and there is an ample supply of crisp, thinly-sliced Italian bread plus a gross of napkins for sticky fingers!

The recipes for this meal are indigenous to the Northern part of Italy, birthplace of both Rich and Yvonne Donatoni's mothers, and Yvonne credits them with being the best cooks in the world. She claims they taught her everything she knows, including the recipes featured today.

Sauces in Northern Italy are much lighter than those in the Southern section, made primarily from pan drippings or chicken broth. The spicy tomato sauces are common in Southern Italy.

THE Bagna Calda calls for a pound of butter (NOT margarine) which is simmered in a chafing dish with 8 garlic cloves and 8 cans of anchovies.

"The garlic and anchovies will disintegrate and the odor will be very pungent, but don't let this frighten you,"

Yvonne cautioned. Vegetables such as cabbage, celery, green onions, green pepper and canned mushrooms are used for dipping. Only the mushrooms require a fork.

Armed with a vegetable in one hand a piece of bread in the other, the vegetables are dipped into the fondue and the drippings are caught in the bread.

"It's very hot, so watch that you don't burn your mouth," Yvonne warned. "The cabbage leaves seem to make the biggest hit," she added, "and because the anchovies give the bagna calda such a salty flavor, you will need big pitchers of beer or red wine to quench everyone's thirst!"

With such a variety of vegetables plus the bread, all you need to serve with this dish is another finger food such as mock chicken legs. Yvonne uses cubed pork and veal for these, seasoning them with parsley and garlic. After skewering the meat, the mock chicken legs are coated with flour, egg and bread crumbs, browned and then baked until tender.

TO COMPLETE this appealing meal, she suggests coffee, fresh fruit and Crusties, a delicious Italian cookie. The Crusties are a fried cookie, a delicious Italian cookie. The Crusties are a fried cookie, very light and crispy. A sprinkling of sugar gives them a sparkley appearance.

The recipe makes a large quantity — about 9 dozen, but the cookies will keep well up to two weeks. Yvonne stores them in plastic bags, in a cool place, not the refrigerator. They can be frozen successfully, too, and need only be defrosted before serving.

This Arlington Heights homemaker loves to cook and experiment with recipes and has attended Pope's cooking school. Yet the most important thing to her about food is that it brings people together. She cherishes mealtime in her family when her children, Richard, 14, Joey, 13, Andrea, 10, and Maria, 8, are all gathered round the table and they, too, enjoy their mother's Italian dishes and American-style cooking.

Yvonne also likes to sew, and now that her children are all in school, she has returned to the classroom herself and is taking courses at Harper College.

BAGNA CALDA

8 large cloves garlic
8 small cans anchovies, including oil in cans
1 pound butter
(not margarine)

Slice garlic thin or put through a press. Put all ingredients into a chafing dish and simmer slowly, never letting the mixture heat beyond a slow simmer. The garlic and anchovies will disintegrate and the odor will be pungent.

Have ready cleaned, fresh vegetables such as cabbage, celery, green onions, green pepper and canned mushrooms. Also have available thinly-sliced crisp Italian bread and a gross of napkins. Dip the vegetables into the hot mixture with one hand, and catch the drippings on the bread with the other. Let cool momentarily before eating; it's hot! Serves 6.

MOCK CHICKEN LEGS

2 pounds pork, cut in one-inch cubes
2 pounds veal, cut in one-inch cubes
¼ cup fresh parsley, finely-chopped
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
1 tablespoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper

Combine all ingredients in a bowl, coating the meat well. Place on skewers, making mock chicken legs. Roll in flour, then beaten egg and bread crumbs. Fry in half Crisco and half butter until brown and then place in baking dish.

Pour off fat from pan and add ¼ cup water. Scrape up pan drippings and pour over meat. Bake for one hour at 325 degrees. Serves 6.

CRUSTIES

6 whole large eggs
½ teaspoon salt
1/3 cup sugar
5 tablespoons sour cream
1 tablespoon brandy extract
1 teaspoon vanilla
5 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder

Beat eggs with salt until lemon-colored. Add sugar, sour cream and flavorings. Slowly mix in sifted flour and baking powder. Knead on a floured board, adding more flour if necessary.

On a floured surface, roll out as thin as possible. With a pizza cutter, cut rectangles 1½ by 3 inches and make a slash in the middle. In a deep fat fryer, fry in about 4 inches of Crisco until golden brown. It takes about 10 seconds on the first side, 5 seconds on the second. Place on paper towels to drain. Sprinkle with granulated sugar or colored sugar while hot. Makes at least 9 dozen. These may be frozen.

Chinese New Year feast has best of East 'n West

Deck the halls — with boughs of scallion and pine. Put a pair of narcissus, forced into early bloom, on your mantel. It's time to decorate your home for Chinese New Year — and that's the traditional way.

Saturday will be the first day of the year 4671 (in the ancient Chinese calendar), which is also the Year of the Ox. On that day, you must avoid unlucky words — such as "weather" or "taxes."

And don't forget the feast. In China, the New Year is the occasion for the biggest and best eating of the year. An especially festive, elegant party dish for the big day is Emperor's Beef Roll which combines marinated round steak with a stuffing of either bread or rice, plus an easy-to-make sauce.

EMPEROR'S BEEF ROLL

1 beef round steak, about 2½ pounds

Marinade:

¼ cup each: soy sauce, water, and dry sherry
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 tablespoons each: lemon juice and salad oil

1 teaspoon liquid hot pepper sauce

1 clove garlic, crushed

1 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

1 tablespoon cornstarch

Trim meat. Cover it with plastic wrap and flatten with flat side of meat pounder or rolling pin to about 1/8-inch thickness, taking care not to tear meat. Peel off plastic wrap.

Combine the ingredients for marinade

(except cornstarch) and pour over meat in a shallow dish. Marinate, covered, in the refrigerator for at least two hours, basting occasionally with marinade. Before stuffing, remove meat from mari-nade and pat dry on paper towels. Reserve marinade.

While meat is marinating, make your choice of stuffing:

Bread Stuffing

1½ cup chopped onion

1½ cup thinly sliced celery

2/3 cup each: water chestnuts bamboo shoots

1½ cup chopped canned mushrooms

1/3 cup butter

2 tablespoons chopped parsley

2/3 cup chicken broth

¼ cup light cream

1 teaspoon salt

1½ teaspoon freshly ground

black pepper

1½ teaspoon sage

1½ teaspoon each: marjoram leaves and ground thyme

6 cups toasted white bread cubes

Cook onion, celery, water chestnuts, bamboo shoots, and mushrooms in butter for 3 minutes; add remaining ingredients.

Rice Stuffing

1½ cup each: chopped water chestnuts, mushrooms, and celery

1½ cup chopped green onions

1 cup (½ stick) butter

2 tablespoons chopped pimiento

1 cup drained and rinsed bean sprouts

1½ cup chicken broth

2 tablespoons chopped parsley

2½ cups cooked instant rice

1 teaspoon salt

1/8 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

1/2 teaspoon ground ginger

Cook water chestnuts, mushrooms, celery, and green onions in butter for 3 minutes; add remaining ingredients.

Spoon stuffing, either bread or rice, onto meat, spreading to within ½-inch of edges. Roll up the meat lengthwise; secure with skewers or toothpicks and string. Place in a baking dish with reserved marinade. Cover; bake at 350 degrees for 1½ hours or until tender, bas-tling occasionally. Place meat onto a cutting board; remove skewers and string.

Cut into thick slices.

In a small saucepan, blend cornstarch with a small amount of marinade; add remaining marinade. Cook on low heat until marinade is slightly thickened.

Serve as a sauce with sliced beef roll.

Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Discover How to Look As Young As You Live

Often a woman who feels and acts young is most likely to look older than her true age. In her lively life, pursuing active, exciting outside interests, she may overlook her own skin care.

If you are one of these women, you probably yearn to ease away skin dryness and help restore smoothness and suppleness, so aging lines and wrinkles can become less noticeable. Now discover the lovely secret shared by younger-looking women around the world, the secret of Oil of Olay moisturizing lotion.

This unique blend, created by beauty researchers, quickly brings you a radiant, more youthful look. Soothe on Oil of Olay morning and night. The fluid penetrates the surface layer of the skin, bringing tropical oils, emollients and the moisture needed for a youthful, glowing complexion. The natural ingredients set up a barrier to help retain your skin's own needed fluids, an added benefit as the years pass.

Discover how young you can look. With Oil of Olay® twice a day. You will find Oil of Olay (and a younger look) at your drugstore.

Trustees agree on most key elements

Master plan may be adopted Monday; two changes OKd

by JILL BETTNER

A decision on the proposed Buffalo Grove master plan may come at next Monday's village board meeting. After nearly 10 hours of discussion this week at public hearings Monday and Tuesday, the trustees agreed on most of the key elements in the suggested land use guide.

Two changes were made in the plan Tuesday. Land around the Buffalo Grove Golf Course, formerly designated open space, is now indicated a low density single-family use. The trustees also changed the land use east of an industrial area along the Soo Line R.R. tracks from low density single-family to low density (average six units per acre) planned unit development (PUD).

The board must still decide whether to limit future commercial development on Dundee Road and Rte. 23 and whether or not to provide for an industrial area within School Dist. 9 boundaries.

TRUSTEE TOM Mahoney recommended reclassifying the property around the golf course because of a proposition submitted by Harold Friedman, owner of the course, and the Phoenix Construction Co. They plan to build three multi-family developments in the area. Mahoney said the restrictive low density designation will give the board a "bargaining tool" in negotiating with the developers.

Friedman has offered to sell the golf course to the village as part of the agreement to build the projects. Ray Mahoney, president of the Concerned Citizens of Buffalo Grove (CCBG) asked if adoption of the master plan would mean that the board would approve the Phoenix developments in order to buy the golf course.

"We don't need a golf course," Mahoney said. "I hope you're not planning to buy it."

developments in order to buy the golf course.

Village Pres. Gary Armstrong said there was no connection between approving the master plan and the Phoenix proposal.

Discussing the economics of the plan, most of the trustees gave their support to village plan consultant Robert Grossman's recommendation to shift commercial development from the main roads surrounding the village to a "downtown center" at the intersection of Buffalo Grove Road and Rte. 83.

THE PROPOSED downtown center is envisioned as an open mall with several types of shops, plus recreation facilities and public buildings such as a library and a community center.

Armstrong said that if the plan is approved, the board will attempt to persuade land owners in the area to develop the mall cooperatively.

Village trustees Randall Rathjen and Ed Omon object to plans for the downtown center. The local Chamber of Commerce supports their argument that it is unwise to restrict commercial development along main traffic arteries.

LIMITING commercial uses on Rte. 83 would also limit tax revenue to financially troubled School Dist. 96. Trustee Jim Shirley has suggested designating some land in the school district for light industrial use — perhaps offices and research facilities — to help the tax base.

Offering his comments on the proposed parks and open space in the master plan, Park Board Pres. William Kiddle said he was generally satisfied with the plan.

However, Kiddle said he is worried about the amount of open space (included in the plan) that is owned and controlled by developers.

Shirley added that he is also concerned that most of the open space in the plan lies in floodplain.

"All we seem to leave for the public is that which nobody else can use," Shirley said.

The master plan will be considered again at next week's board meeting.

Area-wide meet seeks way to preserve environment

Representatives from several Northwest suburban communities are attempting to find a common solution to their major environmental problems.

Solid waste disposal ranked as the number one common problem among the villages represented at an informal idea session. Environmental board members from Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove, Palatine, Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Park Ridge formed the group Tuesday night in Arlington Heights.

Although the recent meeting was limited to an exchange of ideas and programs in the various communities, bigger things may be in the works if the local governments begin coordinating their environmental efforts.

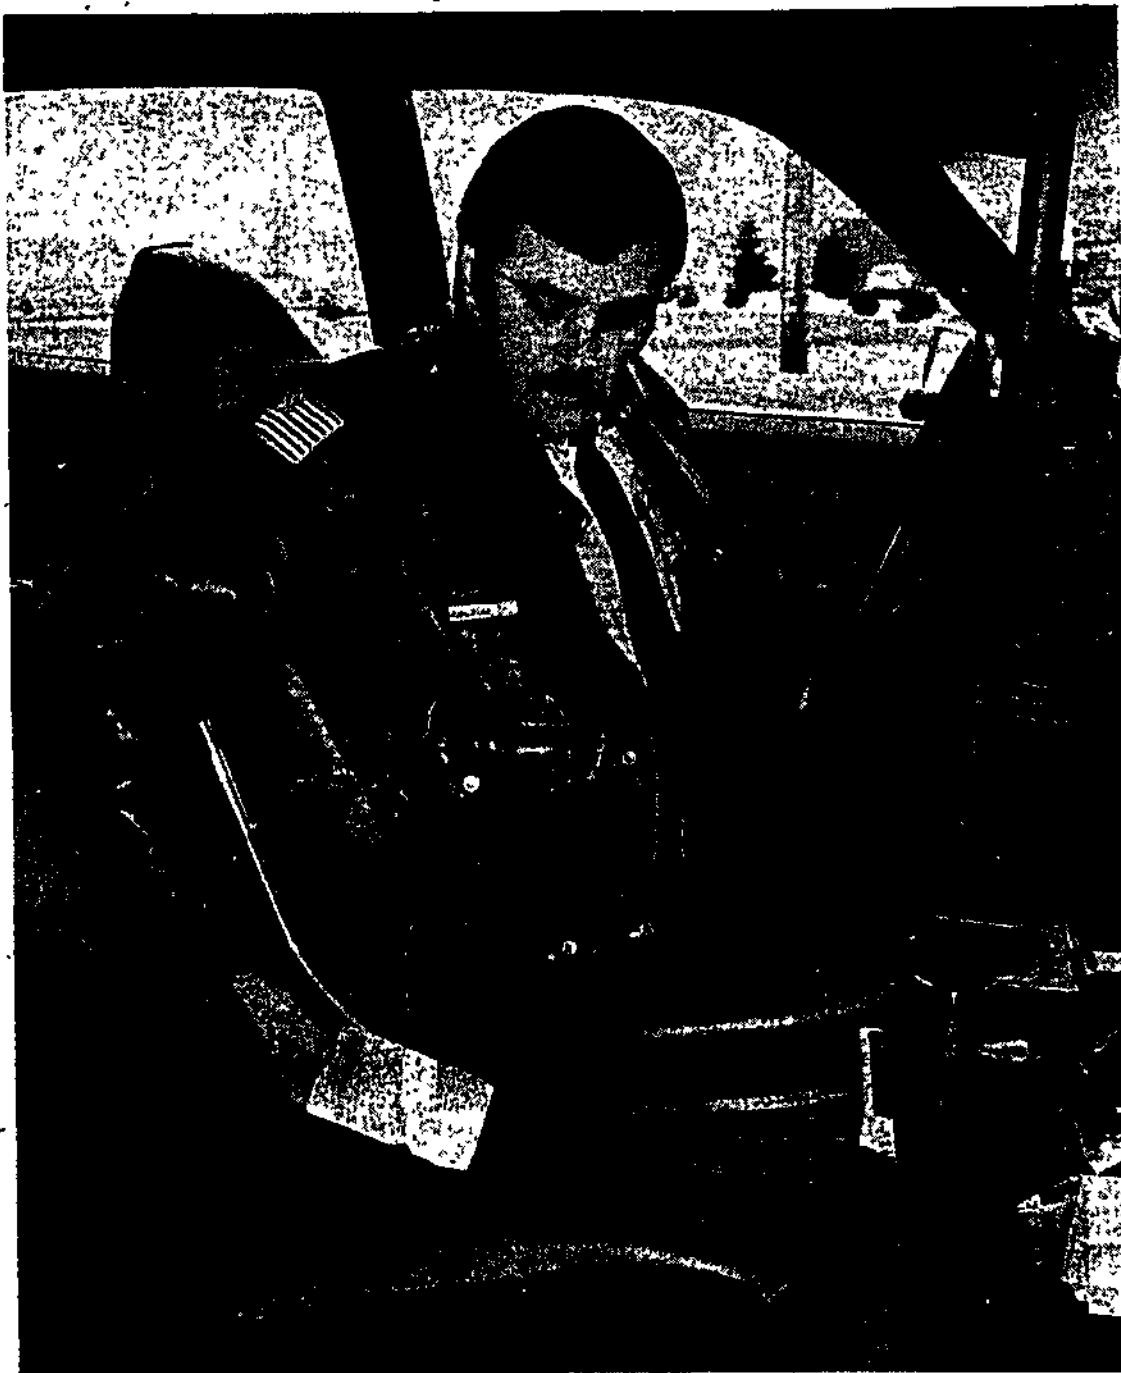

Incinerators and landfills, projects frequently considered too costly for individual municipalities to attempt alone could be prime targets of the young environment coalition.

"Everybody's landfill seems to be filling up faster than they thought it would. It would behoove all villages to get together and consider a joint project on solid waste," said Shirley Gibbons of Hoffman Estates.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS recently dropped plans for an incinerator north of the village due to high cost and potential pollution. While such an incinerator would have eased Arlington Heights' problem, Buffalo Grove residents protested that it would have created a critical air pollution problem for that village.

The formation of the area-wide committee may help ease tensions between villages when one town's solution turns into another town's problem. And repetitive research could be avoided when the governments share the results of their own special research committees with neighboring villages.

MAKING THE POLICE CAR into a classroom is the idea of Sgt. Frank Harth of the Buffalo Grove Police Department. Harth has developed a way of teaching policemen while they patrol the village streets, with the help of an eight-track tape recorder. The policemen listen to the tapes to supplement their classroom training, and then take quizzes on the lessons. They also have the option of listening to music when not using the tape deck for training.

Car tape players keep village police on right (8) track

by RICH HONACK

Imagine riding in a police car and listening to the latest in eight-track stereo tapes.

Impossible? Not really — as long as the cars belong to the Buffalo Grove police. All four of the village's police cars are being equipped with tape decks and speakers.

But the real reason is not for the enjoyment of listening to stereo music while riding around the village looking for crime. The main purpose is training.

THE BUFFALO GROVE Police Department is the first in the Midwest to have its policemen learn various aspects of law enforcement by listening to lectures on tape. The lectures cover subjects in all areas of the police profession.

Police Chief Harry Walsh first saw the idea in a magazine article about the Beaumont, Tex., Police Department, using a separate radio frequency to broadcast training messages to its men.

Walsh gave the article to Sgt. Frank Harth, who thought the same idea could be modified to work with tapes that policemen could play while on patrol. Harth is the department's training officer.

The chief bought the idea and the department ordered the tape decks mounted in the squad cars. Harth, meanwhile was busy getting a Northwestern University professor to tape lectures on "Disturbance Calls" and "Police Vehicle Operations."

"RIGHT NOW these are the only lectures we have. However, we have several dozen more ready to run off," explained Harth. "We also have plans to change the format a little to break up the boring nature of the tapes."

As the tapes are now, they contain anywhere from 30 minutes to an hour of straight lecture. In the future they will contain 10 minutes of lecture, followed by music and then more lecture.

Harth said several tapes will have skills recorded so all the training is not just plain, dry instruction. He added that policemen will be quizzed on certain tapes after they have listened to them for a week.

"The shift commander will determine which tapes will be distributed to the men on his shift and will issue a pretest and post-test. It will be his duty to see that each man is given all tapes and then enter the test results in his personnel file," Harth explained.

THE SERGEANT was quick to point out that the new training method is only a supplement to regular classroom training and school courses.

"It will be used to keep policemen refreshed on things they learn in class as well as keeping them up on local policies," Harth said.

As training officer, Harth credited the program to Walsh. "Without a progressive police chief this program would not get off the ground. Since he has taken over as chief the training has improved greatly," he said.

The men of the Buffalo Grove Police Department have reportedly taken to the new system very favorably. However, one policeman said, "We haven't taken any quizzes yet, and that could change the opinion."

THE POLICEMEN don't feel that the new system will interfere with their work, and compared listening to the tapes to listening to a car radio. Also, with the speakers mounted in the back, the tape doesn't interfere with normal radio communications heard from the front.

Harth said several Northwest suburban police departments have contacted Walsh and asked for more information on the program. Harth said he feels the reason

Geiger may be new Aeronautics Board chairman

John Geiger of Des Plaines was named yesterday as a possible successor to Civil Aeronautics Board Chairman Secor Browne. Geiger, 738 Laurel Ave., a United Air Lines legislative affairs assistant, is nationally known as a past president of the American Legion. Browne, who reappointed CAB chairman by President Nixon in December, is expected to resign by March 1. Maine Township GOP Committeeman Floyd Fulle, who started the drive to name Geiger to CAB, called his chances of appointment "50-50. He's an outstanding man. He has all the qualifications."

John Geiger

Trade journals in Washington, D.C., recently have mentioned several men as possible successors to Browne, including CAB board member Robert D. Timm; Webster B. Todd Jr., deputy Federal Aviation Administration administrator; Chicago lawyer Bert Rein; and two CAB bureau directors. FIVE CAB BOARD members, including a chairman and vice chairman, serve staggered, six-year terms and are appointed by the President with Senate confirmation. The chairman earns $40,000 a year. Board members receive $38,000. "Many congressional people, many people in the American Society of Travel Agents (ASTA) and the American Legion are getting behind him," said Fulle, a Laurel Avenue neighbor of Geiger. Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., and U.S. Reps. Harold H. Collier, R-Ill., and Sam Young, R-Ill., have pledged to support the nomination, Fulle claimed. "I've been in the travel industry for 15 years," said Fulle, owner of a Des Plaines travel agency. "We have close association with the CAB which has complete, life and death control of airlines — their rate and schedules. What I have seen has not excited me."

Donkey basketball Tuesday at Maine

The Maine West High School lettermen's club will sponsor a donkey basketball game Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the school's spectator gymnasium. Admission is $1.50 for adults, $1.25 for high school students, and $1 for grade school students if purchased at the door. Tickets bought in the Maine West bookstore prior to the game will be 25 cents less.

Sale-o-rama begins today

Sale-o-rama begins today in downtown Des Plaines with local stores offering bargains in a wide variety of merchandise. Free parking will be available in downtown shopper lots for the sale, which will continue through Saturday.

SEVENTH GRADE TEACHER Terry Schwab is the author of a U.S. history textbook that includes a section on the use of games as a teaching technique. The games, which simulate events in history, help students understand the issues as they existed at the time. Here, Schwab directs a simulation game in his class at Iroquois Junior High School in Des Plaines.

Author of a text on conflict simulation

He teaches the fun-and-games way

Teachers are salesmen, says Terry Schwab, seventh grade teacher at Iroquois Junior High School in Des Plaines. If you want to sell learning, he says, you have to make it interesting. One way to make it interesting is the simulation game and Schwab wrote a book on it. The book, "United States History Simulation Text," can be used by students as a text covering American history from the colonial period to the Vietnam War. And by teachers as a guide to simulation games on topics in American history. The 300-page volume took a year to write, says Schwab and several publishing houses so far have offered to print it. The simulation game allows students to act out events in history by playing the roles of leading characters. In studying the colonial period, they assumed the roles of rebels and Schwab became King George III. The patriots were taxed by the king, they revolted, and formed a Constitutional Convention. Students were then faced with the problem of writing the United States Constitution in contemporary terms. IN STUDYING THE stock market crash of 1929 class members are given a fixed amount of play money and are allowed to speculate on a stock market. The students bought stocks listed on a chart of investments which were then plotted on a graph showing fluctuations in the stock market. They invested, overproduced and caused their own crash.

Class discussion following the simulation centered on the question, "Should the government control the economy?" Sometimes the results of the simulation don't match actual history but students discuss the difference in a "debriefing session" following the simulation game, said Schwab. For instance, in reenacting the War of 1812, students allowed Washington D. C. to be taken by the British three times, when it was taken only once during the actual war. In some situations, the students must know the historical background of an event before it can be simulated, says Schwab. Hitler's invasion of Europe in World War II is an example. Class members study Hitler's ideas, the economy and military strength of Germany before they simulate battles. Materials used in the World War II simulation include a game board and dice. The board is a map of Europe and the United States, and students assuming the roles of military generals move markers across the map indicating troop advances and naval blockades. The generals roll the dice to determine the number of casualties incurred in battle. "It's like a war room in the movies," says Schwab. Other students in the class act as military advisors to the generals and ambassadors who try to negotiate with allies. A "radio announcer" describes the latest treaties, and troop movements. SIMULATION GAMES help some stu-

Dorothy Oliver

I knew from the moment I accepted the invitation I'd made a mistake. I went to a party this weekend and it was one of those...

You know. One of those parties where you are the only one there who doesn't know anyone but the hostess and she's taken the time to tell her guests all about you and they're dying to meet you and you really want to make a good impression and have them all like you and think you're a model of sophistication and class as well as a terrific human being.

It never works. Three of the largest mistakes I've made in my life were going to parties of that type.

I'm basically insecure around new people. In fact, I'm also paranoid and terrified and shy beyond belief.

THE REAL ME really comes out in these lonely situations.

The first mistake, or "I don't know anyone" party, was several years ago. The hostess had written "casual dress" on the invitation and I walked casually through the door in one of my better pairs of jeans and a sweater (carefully selected because it didn't have holes in the armpits). I knew I'd blown my sophistication when the hostess answered the door wearing a neckline down to her navel. I just pulled up my kneesocks and died inside.

Then there was the second mistake that will not be remembered as one of my favorite parties. It was in one of those "everybody who's fun lives here" buildings tucked in with the brownstones on the north side of Chicago and I still can't figure out how I got invited, much less who invited me.

AT LEAST I was almost dressed right. But then anyone who had gone to the trouble of putting on their bathrobe would have been almost dressed right for this party. It was my first exposure to what rich, neat, cool, groovy, in people wore to have fun. All I needed to do was burn a hole in my coat, tear out the cuffs of my pants, cut off the bottom half of my sweater and burn my bra and I would have fit right in.

For such in, neat, groovy, cool people they sure weren't sociable. I spent most of the evening standing on one side of the rubber tree plant, well hidden from the sloshed individual who was carrying on a very interesting conversation with the plant.

Another fun, fun, fun party was thrown in the concrete basement of a large office building by friends I'd known about a year. They acquired the unusual setting from another friend's father, owner of the building, by convincing him it was the perfect place and promising to clean up afterwards.

THEY PROCEEDED to invite everyone they knew — most of whom knew each other. I wound up knowing practically no one. But I went, assured it was going to be a weird party and something I shouldn't miss.

I walked in the basement door dressed impeccably and ready to impress. These people, the young of suburbia, were all there to have a good time and drifted around from person to person asking relevant things like, "Who are you and why are you here?"

My insecurity hit full force. Twice I forgot who I was, and frequently forgot the name of the host and hostess, thereby having no valid reason for being there.

I was almost able to ignore the three times I was bumped from behind and spilled my drink down my dress because it was dark in the basement and I presumed no one would notice.

ONE OF MY insecure party tricks is to walk across the room holding my pack of cigarettes (a definite party crutch) upside-down — leaving a trail that always winds up at my feet. I did that at this party too. People love to tell you that you've just lost a half pack but don't worry because they've followed you and picked them up.

After that I'm usually so shaken I don't smoke because I know — from experience — that if I do I'll either: a) light the wrong end sending billows of smelly filter smoke into someone's face; b) have such a wobbly hand I won't be able to connect cigarette with flame, or, c) burn myself.

Having made these three previous mistakes, you'd think I wouldn't have accepted the invitation for Saturday. I did so with the resolve that I'd get over my insecurity once and for all. I'd show them I'd do everything right and be the model of sophistication and class as well as a terrific person.

I FOUND OUT exactly what the hostess was wearing — right down to length, material, color and size — and became very secure just knowing I'd be dressed like everyone else. Then I bought a flip top box of cigarettes so I wouldn't be spilling them even if I held the pack upside-down.

I was feeling pretty good. I left the house fashionably late and rehearsed conversational tidbits all the way over there.

Then it started. I pulled up in front of the house, put one bare-toed shoe out of the car and into mud. With no tissue in my purse I had the choice of walking into the house with a muddy big toe or wiping it off on the inside of my hem. I was looking at my hem when I noticed the two streaks of green paint on the lower front of my dress. Child No. 2 must have done that as he kissed me goodbye while fingerpainting.

I COULD HAVE always driven home and changed, but that amounted to two hours traveling and changing time and I didn't have anything else appropriate to wear anyway... and if you come in late you're more likely to be noticed... and I promised I'd come... and — oh the hell with it, I walked in, insecure to the teeth.

The evening wasn't half bad once I'd snuck out of the bathroom after repairing my damage and joined the party. I was almost sophisticated and classy at times. In fact the only bad experience I had was when I forgot my buffet dinner was resting on my knee and crossed my legs.

If you're planning a party — don't invite me.

School officials await details

Nixon budget may halt grants here

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Local school officials are anxiously awaiting further information about President Nixon's proposed budget, which would reorganize the federal education grant system and could jeopardize handicapped and job training programs here.

Under the President's proposed budget, according to officials contacted yesterday at the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, (HEW), present federal programs that provide grants earmarked for local schools would be eliminated.

The direct-aid system would be replaced by lump sum revenue sharing grants to state education departments, which would then establish their own statewide programs and set spending priorities.

Both the HEW officials and spokesmen for state education agencies contacted yesterday said they do not know if the funds Illinois would receive under the Nixon budget would be greater or less than the present total of federal grants to Illinois schools.

HOPEFULLY, the states will reevaluate their educational programs and make them more efficient, said Myron Becker, HEW public information officer. "Local people will have more control over funds" under Nixon's budget, said Becker. Federally funded education programs are now designed in Washington, he said, but under the new budget, local school officials and state officials will design their own programs and emphasize those that fit their particular needs.

"All the red tape is going to be wiped out," he said.

The budget is "a proposal before Congress," said Becker, and is "open to negotiation and change." Review of the budget by Congress will probably start this week.

Elementary School Dist. 62 in Des Plaines and 63 in East Maine Township and Maine Township High School Dist. 207 all receive federal funds for specialized education programs.

THE LARGEST is the Maine Township Special Education Program, a cooperative organization made up of districts 62, 63, 207 and Elementary School Dist. 64 in Park Ridge.

This year's budget for the special education cooperative totals $188,575 and is composed entirely of federal funds. Besides a number of special education projects in local schools, the program provides a township-wide program for preschool children. About 600 children are tested for physical and mental handicaps each year through the preschool program and those children with severe handicaps are placed in special education preschools run by the cooperative.

Four federally-funded programs are being operated at Des Plaines Elementary School Dist. 62. A program for economically disadvantaged and handicapped children receives $23,000 from the federal government each year and reaches 125 Dist. 62 students.

A program for children of migratory workers receives $14,000 a year for 80 children. Dist. 62 receives $20,000 a year for 30 children enrolled in a program for children who do not speak English. A redemptively-funded library program serves all the children at Dist. 62 and operates on $9,000 a year.

At Maine Township High School Dist. 207 a federally-funded program for non-English speaking students operates on $13,000 a year and at East Maine Elementary School Dist. 63 $18,104 in federal funds for a language program for non-English speaking children.

'Economic interest' filing demanded

Another dimension has been added to city elections this year — filing of state-required "economic interest" forms by nonincumbent candidates.

Four candidates for city office apparently missed a little-known section of Illinois Government Ethics Act that requires filing of the financial forms, prompting a warning letter from City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach Tuesday.

"The Illinois Government Ethics Act requires that you must file a statement of economic interest with the county clerk when filing for nomination to a public office," Mrs. Rohrbach stated.

The letters were mailed to candidates Rafael A. Del Campo and Mrs. Irene Birchfield, 5th Ward; George Olen, 2nd Ward, and former Ald. Corvin Wagner, 6th Ward.

MRS. ROHRBACH included copies of the state form with her letter and also requested return of an "affidavit" certifying that a statement was filed.

"Everything is a madhouse here," a spokesman for Cook County Clerk Edward J. Barrett's ethics office said. "We've received over a thousand forms."

The Des Plaines candidates were not filed, the spokesman said.

The ethics act, approved Jan. 24, 1972, requires "verified written statements of economic interest" from "persons... and candidates for nomination or election... in a school district or in a unit of local government."

THE LAW REQUIRES that candidates "shall file his statement at the time he takes the action necessary... to attempt to qualify for nomination" (filing of nominating petitions).

The four candidates filed petitions since opening Jan. 8. The law is expected to affect other candidates here. At least six other candidates have announced plans to file petitions. Closing date is Feb. 13.

Penalty for non-compliance could be a $1,000 fine and/or imprisonment up to one year.

Del Campo, an attorney, said he "has some knowledge of the law" by talking with a colleague seeking political office in another town. "I just haven't picked up the forms yet. I don't even know where to get them," he said, calling the filing "an essential."

The three other candidates were unavailable for comment.

MRS. ROHRBACH mailed the letters and affidavits after conferring with City Atty. Robert DiLeonardi. "He said 'I'm not required to notify the candidates of the law but that it might be a good idea,'" she said.

"This is the first time around," DiLeonardi said. "It's a new law and these are new candidates."

A check of forms filed at Barrett's office showed that 19 city officials completed forms last year. Richard Ward, a candidate for election in the 8th Ward, also filed petitions last year because he is a member of the Mount Prospect Park Board.

Deadline for refiling statements each year is April 30.

ABOUT 88 per cent of ethic statement questions received a "none" answer from city officials in 1972.

Architect hired for Maryville school

Fields, Goldman and Magee, an Oak Brook, Ill., firm, has been selected as architect for the new school facility to house students at Maryville Academy.

The school board and representatives of the Illinois Capital Development Board still have not come to any decision on the site for the new school, though, "we've pretty well nailed it down to a couple," said River Trails Dist. 26 Pres. Lloyd Demel. He said the site should be decided on by the Feb. 20 board meeting. The Oak Brook firm was recommended to the board by the Illinois Capital Development Board. According to Supt. Tom Warden there were only two architectural firms that met the two qualifications set up by the ICDB. The qualifications set up by the board were, first, that the architect should have done some research on the needs of the children who would use this type of school and second, that the architect have experience in building a special education facility of this type.

"The Capital Development Board seemed to feel stronger about this architect than the other one for several reasons," said Demel. "They felt that they were somewhat better qualified. Probably another strong reason was that this firm has built another special education facility like this in Naperville (called the School Association for Special Education in DuPage County). That was probably a very convincing kind of factor," said Demel.

Oakton to delay annexation

Oakton Community College will delay its efforts to annex Northfield Township to the college district until late spring, according to Raymond Nelson, chairman of the college citizens' advisory committee to select a permanent campus site.

School districts in Northfield, New Trier and Evanston townships are conducting a study of area junior colleges which will affect Northfield township's annexation plans. The study will be completed in the spring and the Oakton committee has decided to wait for the results and a decision from Northfield residents.

The college has had trouble acquiring a permanent campus site in its densely populated district made up of Maine and Niles Townships. The citizen's committee reviewed possible sites in the district but decided last month to persuade Northfield Township residents to join the college district. Unlike Oakton's district, Northfield is sparsely-populated and has an abundance of open land suitable for a permanent campus.

Northfield, New Trier, and Evanston townships are not part of a junior college district but will be forced by the state to join a district or form their own by January, 1974.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS in the three townships have hired Gerald Smith, professor of higher education at Illinois State University and former executive secretary of the Illinois Junior College Board conduct a study of the junior college options open to them. If any of the townships decides to join Oakton's district, they must do so by July 1, 1973. If they decide to form their own district, the deadline is Dec. 30, 1973.

Smith's research will include an evaluation of Oakton Community College and Harper College in Palatine. Enrollment projections, assessed valuations of property in the area and the educational needs and goals of residents will also be researched.

Nelson said Northfield Township residents would benefit from annexing to Oakton because the number of tax dollars per student is high in the college district. Nelson said the citizens' committee plans to give Smith and his researchers their full cooperation. "We can't twist their arm," he said, but Oakton will provide them with all the information it has available.

THE COMMITTEE has recently been concentrating its efforts on a few sites in the district, said Nelson. Architect's drawings are being made of the college's temporary campus at 7900 N. Nagle, which may become the school's permanent campus if land can be purchased adjacent to the present site.

Two other sites considered by the committee are located in the northwest corner of the college district. Both sites are owned by the Chicago Catholic Archdiocese and have been offered for sale to the college.

GOP to run alone in Maine Township

A slate of Republicans will run unopposed in the April 3 Maine Township elections.

Filing deadline for township offices passed Monday without township Democrats or independent candidates seeking ballot positions.

Write-in candidates can seek a township position, said a spokesman for Township Clerk Philip Raffe but "there's definitely no way they can get on the ballot."

Republican candidates include former Des Plaines city attorney James J. Dowd, for supervisor; Raffe, for clerk; incumbent James A. Parks of Park Ridge, for assessor; incumbent Edward Koehler of Des Plaines, for highway commissioner; incumbent Harvey Frindt of Niles, for auditor, and incumbent Mrs. Katherine D. Korff of Des Plaines, for auditor.

Other GOP candidates include Roy H. Berquist of Niles, for collector; Paul K. Halverson of Des Plaines for auditor, and Mrs. Margaret Wirsan of Park Ridge, for auditor.

Radio gear stolen from parked autos

Some $700 worth of radio equipment including three citizen band radios and one AM-FM unit were stolen yesterday when thieves broke into four cars outside the ITT Telecom Corp., 2000 S. Wolf Rd., Des Plaines, police said.

The items taken included one citizen's band radio worth $350 from the car of Daniel Baker, Mount Prospect, a second valued at $170 from the car of Raymond DeFreese of Villa Park and another valued at $150 from the car of James Bonomo, of Hickory Hills. Baker, DeFreese and Bonomo are company employees, police said.

The AM-FM unit valued at $30 was taken from the car of Donald Sheldon, also a Telecom employee, police said.

Dad-daughter night set at Maine West

The Maine West High School Girls' Recreation Association will host its annual Father-Daughter Playnight on Thursday Feb. 8 from 6:45 to 9 p.m. All Maine West girls are invited to bring their fathers.

The evening will start with entertainment by the G.R.A. board members. That will be followed by a blind volleyball tournament and crab soccer. Prizes will be awarded to the winning volleyball team. Refreshments will be served.

Merger of unit school district studies urged?

by FRED GACA

The Citizens' Reorganization Study Committee for School Dist. 59 may get a recommendation to drop its unit district feasibility study and join a similar study being done by High School Dist. 214.

Reportedly the recommendation will come from the citizen's group state and legal aspects subcommittee. The recommendation is expected to be contained in the subcommittee's report to be given at a general committee meeting at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

George Coney, chairman of both the citizens group and the subcommittee, refused to comment on the report that a recommendation will be made to join the Dist. 214 survey.

Coney would only say that the subcommittee has completed a report and that it would be presented to the general committee tonight.

WHEN ASKED how he thought the general committee would react to a recommendation to stop its work and join the Dist. 214 study, Coney said he "had no idea."

Last week, Coney said that at tonight's meeting the general committee will be polled on the question of whether or not to continue studying a unit district for Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59. If the general committee agrees to continue its study, four boundary alternatives will be presented to the group.

The committee will then be asked to decide which of the four is feasible, and a final report will be submitted to the school board on the possibility of forming a unit district.

The school board had set a March 1 deadline for the final report to be submitted from both the citizens' committee and a professional consultant service also studying unit districting for Dist. 59. THE FOUR alternatives that will be considered for a unit district if the committee votes to continue study are:

• Elk Grove Village unit, formed by splitting the present Dist. 59 along the Northwest Tollway.

• A unit of the present boundaries of Dist. 59.
• A unit of the attendance boundaries of the four southern high schools in Dist. 214; Elk Grove, Forest View, Rolling Meadows and Prospect High schools.

• Making Dist. 214 a unit district.

Gill opposes unit school district plan 'if it hurts us'

by WANDALYN RICE

Supt. Kenneth Gill of Wheeling-Elk Grove Dist. 21 has vowed he will stop Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 from forming a unit school district if it would result in financial harm to High School Dist. 214.

At a meeting of the Walt Whitman PTA in Wheeling Monday Gill said, "I'm damn well biased against a unit district under the present system," and added that he will oppose Dist. 59 if it tries to take more tax base than it takes students from Dist. 214.

Dist. 59 is now in the midst of a feasibility study on forming a unit district, which would combine all elementary and high schools under a single school board in that area.

Preliminary figures have indicated that a unit district composed of all of Dist. 59 and including Elk Grove and Forest View high schools from Dist. 214 would take about 28 per cent of the students from Dist. 214 and would also take about 37 per cent of the tax base.

AREA SCHOOL districts now are organized as "dual districts," and the elementary and high schools are under separate school boards.

"I don't care what Dist. 59 does," Gill said. "I dare them to try to form a unit district that would take that much assessed value from Dist. 214. If Dist. 214 doesn't take them to court, we will."

However, Gill added that if Dist. 59 proposed a unit district that would not hurt Dist. 214 "that's fine with me. I'm tired of fooling around with those people. I think the move to a unit district down there is based on their parochialism and desire to go their own way."

In the remarks made in conjunction with a panel discussion on the subject of unit districts, Gill also attacked the assumption that unit school districts can improve the quality of education by providing a continuous program.

Gill said he worked in a downstate unit school district as an assistant superintendent and communication between elementary and high schools was worse than it is under the dual school system in the Northwest suburbs.

"In that unit district, kindergarten and first grade kids didn't get any attention or money. It was the high schools, with their bands and football teams, that got everything. You'd be amazed at the fanaticism that built up. The only way we got a new junior high school was because they built a new high school and gave the younger kids the old one," he said.

GILL ALSO TOOK a swipe at a proposal by Schaumburg Mayor Robert Atcher that a unit district be formed within the village limits of Schaumburg, removing that area from Elementary Dist. 54 and High School Dist. 211. The proposal, he said, will only help Atcher in "becoming a pseudo-Mayor Daley."

Gill also said he will oppose any move to make High School Dist. 214 a unit district by absorbing all the feeder elementary school districts. The 214-wide unit would have more than 50,000 students and, Gill said, "Any district that would go over 50,000 student population takes on all the characteristics of a centralized state with no communication with its people."

Gill admitted that under present Illinois law unit school districts are entitled to more state aid than dual districts, but said he believes that inequity will be ended either by legislation or by court decisions.

DEAN MACK, a representative of State School Supt. Michael Bakalis's office of school reorganization, another participant on the panel, cautioned Gill about being too confident of defeating a unit district try in Dist. 59.

Under the law, Mack said, persons who petition to have a unit district formed can go to court if their petition is denied by the county and state school superintendents. However, he said, the law does not provide for a judicial review for opponents of a unit district if a petition is approved and a referendum held.

Mack said the law is currently being challenged in a case involving the Bensenville schools, but added, "The way the law is written, dual districts are definitely vulnerable."

The Herald incorrectly reported yesterday that 1,700 persons had been served by the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows this fiscal year. The article should have stated 1,700 families.

The numbers served from each municipality were also the number of families and not of persons. Bruce Newton, center director, said there are an average of five persons in each family served by the center.

Plant faces hearing on '71 oil spill

Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. could face a state pollution board fine of up to $10,000 plus $1,000 per day if found guilty of violating state pollution laws through a 1971 oil spill into Weller Creek.

Some 200 gallons of fuel oil spilled into storm sewers underneath the Multigraphs plant parking lot, at 1800 W. Central Rd. in Mount Prospect, on Oct. 11, 1971 and made its way into the creek two days later.

The complaint, signed by the Environmental Protection Agency, states that the firm "caused or allowed oil to spill . . . so as to cause or tend to cause water pollution in Weller Creek" allegedly in violation of a section of the Environmental Protection Act. A public hearing before the state pollution control board will be held at 10 a.m. Feb. 13 at the Arlington Heights Village Hall, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

AT THE TIME of the incident, Edward Bruning, vice president and general manager of the firm, said the original spill took place when an oil company was filling one of the plant's storage tanks.

"A defective gauge indicated the tank could hold more oil than it actually could hold," Bruning said. "The tank was around the corner and out of sight of the operator."

According to Bruning, the firm immediately took action to collect the spilled oil. He said eight employees used some 2,000 pounds of oil absorbent material to collect and barrel the spilled oil. They then flushed the area.

"We were not aware any oil had gotten into the storm sewer system," Bruning said then. But the oil appeared in the creek, and both Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights public works crews went to work to prevent most of the oil from reaching the Des Plaines River, of which the creek is a tributary.

The day after the spill was discovered in the creek, Multigraphs officials announced a five-point program designed to prevent future oil spills. None has been reported since that time.

cents who have trouble visualizing historical events. By acting out a situation, they begin to understand how people thought and reacted at the time.

Simulation is learning by doing, says Schwab. When students are tested, they aren't asked what they memorized out of the book but what happened in the simulation. They enjoy the simulation games, and find them more interesting than lectures, and understand their assignments better, says Schwab.

Simulation also helps the quiet student who is afraid to speak out in class. If he assumes the role of a leader, say Ulysses S. Grant in the Civil War, he often loses his shyness, says Schwab.

Schwab's book is an aid to teachers by providing a number of possible simulation games that can be used throughout the school year. Simulation games can be purchased from manufacturers, says Schwab, but they are often very expensive. Teachers can usually make their own game, and Schwab's book lists suggested materials for making a classroom simulation.

4 of 5 independents file petitions

Four of five candidates on the "Independent slate" for Elk Grove Township offices filed their nominating petitions Monday. The fifth, Joseph Cesario, has decided not to run.

The four candidates running for office are Paul Rettberg, auditor; Julie Sass, auditor; Steven Mackdock, auditor; and Lawrence Pahl, highway commissioner. Rettberg and Pahl live in Elk Grove Village. Mrs. Sass and Mackdock live in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

RETTBERG SAID the group would announce a detailed platform "in a week to 10 days." He said the four had the same general opinions on township issues, though "probably not the exact same views."

Rettberg said the group's platform will be based on:

- Considering the possible abolishment of the township form of government.
- Removing waste in the present township budget.
- Stopping the Republican patronage system.

According to Rettberg, all the independent candidates would make a full disclosure of income, assets and liabilities. He said the group will call for the Republican candidates to do the same.

THE REGULAR township Republican organization has filed a full slate of candidates for township offices: supervisor, four auditors, clerk, assessor, collector and highway commissioner.

Monday was the last day for filing for township offices. Apparently the race for supervisor, one auditor post, collector and assessor will be uncontested.

Bernard Lee, incumbent auditor and Republican candidate for reelection, said he was "pleased to see people have entered the race. It will stimulate interest in township government."

Health care problem may become acute in future

(Editor's Note: With the completion last October of the "Comprehensive Health Survey" for Elk Grove Village, the community became one of a very few in the nation to have a detailed widespread survey of community and personal health facilities, conditions and staff. Part of the survey is a health plan that if enacted would anticipate the health needs of the village's citizenry for years to come. Today begins a four-part series on the survey's findings and its recommendations.)

by FRED GACA

As a resident of Elk Grove Village, you now live in a place where health standards are high and health care services are good, but what of the future?

Will you be able to get a doctor when you need one? Will the doctor be able to get you into a hospital for treatment? Will the environment remain clean enough so that it will not be a health hazard?

Maybe not.

The "Comprehensive Health Survey" for Elk Grove Village, compiled by a special committee of the village board of health, warns the village may have problems meeting future health needs.

THE SURVEY COMMITTEE found that Elk Grove Village is now a young, moderately affluent community with a population profile that "connotes vigorous good health." However, as village residents grow older, the demand for extended health care services will increase.

"Thus if we are now 'just barely' meeting the need for extended care facilities, the problem will become more acute with the passing years."

If good health for village residents is to be maintained, the survey found the need for more medical personnel, better utilization of existing personnel, more facilities, greater awareness of the environment as a health factor and increased cooperation among all levels of government.

TO ENABLE THE village to meet future demands for health care, the survey calls for the development of a "comprehensive health plan." Such a plan would:

- Identify health problems and needs.
- Recommend solutions and services to meet those needs.
- Encourage coordination of all health-related services available to the village.

The survey contains a summary of the committee's investigative work and a series of recommendations for each area of study. These recommendations, if implemented, would constitute a comprehensive health plan for Elk Grove Village.

The plan would have a goal of not only treating the ill, but obtaining the highest level of good health possible for all residents of the village.

Five recommendations are mentioned under the heading, "General Implementation Recommendations." These five are, "the top priority recommendations of the survey, in that it (the committee) considers the implementation of them to be necessary before consideration of more specific recommendations in the report can be accomplished effectively."

THE FIVE ARE:

- Duties of the present board of health and health department should be expanded to encompass the idea of a community health plan. To reflect more accurately the new duties, the name of the board of health should be changed to "Commission for Community Health." The health department should be changed to "Department of Community Health."

- The commission would be a policy-making and advisory body. The department would report to the commission and the village manager.

- Using the recommendations listed in the survey, the commission would develop a comprehensive health plan, with the department serving as the agency to implement the plan.

- Both the commission and the department should establish contact with other local, regional, state and federal agencies which are concerned with community health.

- A broad-based, continuing program of health education should be developed.

- A random sampling of village families should be interviewed to verify the survey.

High school district conducting similar review

Grade schools may be asked to join new unit study

by FRED GACA

The Citizens' Reorganization Study Committee for School Dist. 59 may get a recommendation to drop its unit district feasibility study and join a similar study being done by High School Dist. 214.

Reportedly the recommendation will come from the citizen's group state and legal aspects subcommittee. The recommendation is expected to be contained in the subcommittee's report to be given at a general committee meeting at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

George Coney, chairman of both the citizens group and the subcommittee, refused to comment on the report that a recommendation will be made to join the Dist. 214 survey.

Coney would only say that the subcommittee has completed a report and that it would be presented to the general committee tonight.

WHEN ASKED how he thought the general committee would react to a recommendation to stop its work and join the Dist. 214 study, Coney said he "had no idea."

Library's film documentary will depict village history

The Elk Grove Village Public Library plans to make a film documentary on the history of the village.

Mary Clark, administrative librarian, said the library board approved the project at its special meeting last week.

Miss Clark estimated that the film would take a year to make and would cost about $5,200. The cost is divided between $1,200 for materials and about $4,000 worth of library staff time. She would seek funding from local businesses for the project.

The documentary will be about 30 minutes long and will be shot on 16 mm color film. The actual filming, editing and splicing will be done by the newly formed filmmakers club at the library.

Miss Clark will solicit materials for the film, write the narration and coordinate activities. She said she hoped to get one or more members of local theater groups to do the narration.

When the film is completed, it will be available to any school, civic organization or business. An 8 mm copy of the film will be made available for use in private homes.

Miss Clark said she preferred putting the history of the village on film rather than in book form because film was more flexible. As the village developed, additions or deletions can be done by simply by splicing the original film.

2 expected to join GOP slate

Edward J. Hennessy, slated as candidate for township collector, and Brian E. Carey, slated as a township trustee candidate, are two new candidates expected to run under the Republican banner in April's township election.

They will join a slate of incumbents that include Vern Laubenstein, supervisor; Kathleen Wojcik, clerk; Scott MacEachron, assessor; Ralph E. Wilkening, road commissioner; and John Jensen, Daniel Stowe and Walter Wing, trustees.

The slate was selected by the Republican Party's central committee this week and will be up for confirmation Sunday during a caucus at Robert Frost Junior High School on west Wise Road, Schaumburg.

Hennessy, currently a Hoffman Estates trustee, said he's running for the defunct tax collector's position "because I wasn't running for anything else." Collections are currently done under the county government's authority and are controlled by the Democratic Party. It is a job township officials, traditionally Republicans, want reactivated.

"They (Republicans) asked me to run and said if it became active they would like to have somebody who could fill it," Hennessy said.

HE DOES NOT expect the reactivation, however, and said, "Knowing the courts and how closely they are tied into the Democratic Party, I hardly think they'll give back to the townships what now belongs to the county."

Carey, an Elk Grove Village resident from the township's southeast corner, is a corporation compensation specialist for Montgomery Ward and has been active in Junior Achievement and the Cabrini Green remedial reading program. He holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Illinois and has done post-graduate work at George Washington University.

Wilkening has lived in the township all his life and has been road commissioner for 12 years. Mrs. Wojcik and MacEachron, both of Schaumburg, have held their posts for five years. Laubenstein, an 11-year resident of the township, has been supervisor for four years, along with auditors Jensen of Hoffman Estates, Wing of Schaumburg and Stowe of Hanover Park. Title of their position is to change to "trustee" once new office-holders take their posts.

3 Independents unaffiliated

Three of the four independents running for office in Schaumburg Township government are part of a slate, but it is not affiliated with any established organization, two of them said yesterday.

Charles R. (Dick) English, 1916 Cloverdale Ct., Schaumburg, has combined forces with Frank Domenico, 236 Salem Dr., Schaumburg, and Timothy O'Brien, 1401 Elmhurst Ln., Schaumburg, in a try for three of the nine township positions. The three are preparing a platform, which they hope to have ready for presentation by the end of the week, said English.

While English and O'Brien are members of Schaumburg United Party, and English confirmed he is "very active in SUP," both said there is no formal link between their group and the village political organization. Domenico is not an SUP member.

"We would hope to work with SUP, with the Civic Party in Hoffman Estates and with all other interested persons," said English. "This is truly an independent slate," he emphasized.

ENGLISH is facing incumbent Vernon Laubenstein in a race for township supervisor. O'Brien and Domenico are competing against a full Republican slate for two of the four open trustee seats.

Northwest Opportunity unit requests help

Trustees consider Center gift

Elk Grove Village trustees will meet with representatives of the Northwest Opportunity Center at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the village hall, 901 Wellington Ave., to discuss a possible village contribution to the center.

The center, based in Rolling Meadows, is seeking a total of $32,000 in contributions from 14 local municipalities including the village, to support its services in operation nutrition, emergency food, adult education, legal assistance, family planning and income tax aid.

Elk Grove Village is being asked to donate $1,238.90 based on the number of village residents who the center claims utilized their services last year.

"The Northwest Opportunity Center is a fine organization, and many people benefit from their services," Village Pres. Charles Zettek said yesterday. "The center provides a needed function in this area."

WHEN ASKED whether he recommended village funding for the center, Zettek said, "I'm withholding my comments on funding until the time of the meeting when I can talk to the trustees and the Northwest Opportunity Center representatives."

Jane Broten, 601 Walnut Ln., said yesterday she will present the center's request to the trustees Tuesday. Mrs. Broten is Zettek's representative on the governing board of the organization.

Some trustees have expressed doubts as to whether the village should help fund the Northwest Opportunity Center.

"My feeling is it (the center) is a welfare operation, and the state legislature delegates that responsibility to the state, county and townships," Trustee Ed Kenna said yesterday. "Welfare is not a municipal function. I would be hard-pressed to take taxpayers' money and give it to the center while there are state, county and township funds for that purpose."

LAST YEAR, representatives from the Northwest Opportunity Center approached the village for money, but no commitment was made. Zettek said at that time the trustees had some doubts as to the number of persons in the village who actually received help from the organization.

Zettek said the representatives were asked to compile more information on how many residents were benefiting from the center, but the representatives never got back to the board and the matter died.

Kenna said he thought the people supposedly receiving help from the center lived in Elk Grove Township and not Elk Grove Village.

"There was no overwhelming movement last year to give money to the center, and I don't see such a movement this year," Kenna said.

Camera gear stolen from parked car

Camera equipment worth $600 was stolen Tuesday from a car owned by William Slover, of Evanston, while it was parked in a lot at Ampex Corp., 2201 Lunt Ave., Elk Grove Village. Slover is vice president of Ampex Music Division located in the village. Police said the car was locked at the time of the theft.

Health care problem could become acute in future

 The survey was officially presented to the village board at a special meeting in October.

ALSO ATTENDING the meeting were Dr. Paul Gallagher, executive director of Comprehensive Health Planning, Inc., the official planning agency for Cook County, and Thomas Vick, local administrator for the Northwest Illinois Planning Commission.

Dr. Gallagher called the survey, "good enough to be reported in the national journals." He said if the village adopted the survey recommendations, it would become one of the first communities to "address itself to what will become the chief problem in the country, providing better health care."

Vick called the survey, "a planner's dream."

Both Dr. Gallagher and Vick said they believed their organizations would probably contribute funds to the start of a comprehensive health plan for the village.

SURVEY COMMITTEE members estimated that the first-year cost of developing the plan would be $48,700.

Village officials are enthusiastic about the plan. At the special meeting, Charles Zettek, village president, and Trustee Ed Kenna said the village board would consider the plan and the survey committee members "could be very optimistic" about favorable consideration.

Zettek has said the federal revenue sharing monies could provide funds to support some of the recommendations of the health board. However he said a decision on implementing the plan probably would not be made until the village budget is drawn up later this year.

PISTON IN HAND, Larry Latta works on the engine of one of his hydroplanes, while his wife Frances supervises his effort. The engines, Latta said, are specially crafted, with a capacity of 175 hp and 9,000 revolutions per minute, although they are only 60 cubic inches. The Lattas repair and assemble the engines in their Schaumburg home, but they store their boats in a barn.

Judge quashes racing date review plea

by KURT BAER

Circuit Court Judge Robert J. Downing yesterday threw out requests by the Illinois attorney general and Arlington Park Race Track for a review of 1973 racing dates.

The judge's decision puts the crucial question of dates in the hands of the Illinois Racing Board, which is scheduled to meet this morning.

Under the racing schedule upheld by Judge Downing, Arlington Park will open the Chicago thoroughbred racing season on April 19 and will close July 24.

Arlington Park had sought to get both more racing days and earlier summer dates. But track spokesman Tom Rivera said yesterday the track's only hope now lies with the racing board.

"IT'S ALL up to the new board. If it doesn't change the dates we'll be open April 19," Rivera said.

Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Sciarano has said he will seek to revoke dates awarded to racing associations controlled by William S. Miller, a former racing board chairman now under federal indictment in a race track conspiracy case.

But any revocation would require action by the full racing board and could not be accomplished solely by the chairman.

Sciarano is expected to ask the board this morning to take that action.

Even though dates have been awarded to Miller's associations, the racing interests still cannot conduct a horse race without first securing a license from the racing board.

IN UPHOLDING the 1973 racing schedule as awarded by a 4 to 3 vote of the old racing board, Judge Downing said the court had authority to look only at the testimony presented before the racing board and could not consider outside evidence.

Sciarano on Monday had cited Miller's confession in the conspiracy trial and testimony before the Illinois Legislative Investigating Committee as grounds for revoking his racing dates.

Miller has received immunity in the conspiracy trial in exchange for his testimony.

Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott and Arlington Park charged in their suits that the racing board violated state law in granting the dates, but Downing said yesterday he found the board's action neither "arbitrary, unconscionable or capricious and not contrary to the statutes."

Scott had contended that state law prohibited anyone under indictment from receiving racing dates.

He further alleged that the dates as they stand would cost the state $3 million in tax revenue.

DOWNING, however, discounted the argument.

The judge also denied a request by Arlington Park and Washington Park Race Tracks Corp. for separate racing licenses for the Arlington and Washington divisions.

Two separate licenses were sought as a tax saver to the racing corporation.

Race tracks pay a progressive tax based on the total betting handle. By dividing, for example, 77 days of racing at Arlington Park in two separate meets, the corporation would be able to break up the betting total, and thus pay a smaller tax.

A separate suit is now pending before the Illinois Supreme Court seeking $5 million in back taxes and interest the attorney general claims is due the state because of the track's dual license operation from 1967 through 1971.

LITERALLY FLYING aptly describes Larry Latta racing more than 100 miles an hour in one of his seven hydroplanes. A one-inch layer of air separates the boat from the water. Latta and his wife Frances race competitively, and also pursue the sport as a hobby. A typical race course is about five miles in length and lasts five minutes.

The hydroplane truth

100 m.p.h. by boat is a 'Latta' speed

by MARILYN HEISER

Larry and Frances Latta don't look like people who race hydroplanes at speeds in excess of 100 miles per hour.

But as soon as they start talking about their hobby, which consumes much time, effort, and money, it is obvious hydroplaning is as much a part of their lives as breathing.

Latta, gesturing with his hands, quick in speech and almost impatient with those confused by technical engine and boating terms, is more than a mere enthusiast.

Judging from the trophies decorating his Schaumburg home, Latta excels at his hobby, and has communicated his absorbing interest to his wife.

THEIR HOME is a workshop for the care and repairing of engines, propellers and the boats themselves. They own seven hydroplanes and 10 motors, which they store with a huge trailer in a Naperville barn.

But the parts and pieces compete for space in their house, as the engines require continual attention due to the extreme heat and stress of racing, Latta said.

Playing Mr. Fixit is not limited to the male in this family. Mrs. Latta, a secretary for Motorola Corp., said she too can take an engine apart and put it back together.

Wet from the boat's spray, Mrs. Latta is in there pitching while other wives look on from the dry shore. She readies an engine for Latta who's out in another cruising gracefully at 110 m.p.h.

When they first met, Mrs. Latta said, she didn't know anything about the sport. "At the first race I went to, Larry didn't do so well. I asked what I could do." She now says about the sport, "I love it."

While she has raced with her husband, Mrs. Latta said she has yet to race alone. "Larry built me an engine for my birthday, but I haven't gone alone yet."

"It's frightening to simply touch the throttle and be doing 80 to 90 m.p.h. The sensation of speed is really great, because you are kneeling, not sitting in the boat, which makes it seem like you're going twice as fast," Latta said.

THE LATTAS, with their trailer laden with boats about 14 feet long and weighing almost 200 pounds each, enter competition in various parts of the Midwest. Each contest, which generally covers five miles or lasts roughly five minutes, requires a different boat, different motor and different propeller, Latta said.

While the couple races for money prizes, "You barely break even on expenses," Latta said. And his proficiency at the sport won him second place in national races held last year in DePue, Ill.

The prize money averages around $100 a race, he said, but the boats, which run on a mixture of alcohol and castor oil, consume a great deal of fuel, a gallon a minute, at $1 a gallon.

At an average cost of $700 to $1,000, the hydroplanes are outfitted with expensive, hand-crafted engines, which require maintenance after every race. A recent mishap with four pistons ended up costing Latta close to $200, he said.

THE LATTAS met almost six years ago on the Mississippi River which separates their home towns of Keokuk, Iowa, and Warsaw, Ill. The river was the scene of a hydroplane race, naturally.

Now they are looking forward to winning first place at the August nationals and receiving their new boat, presently on order.

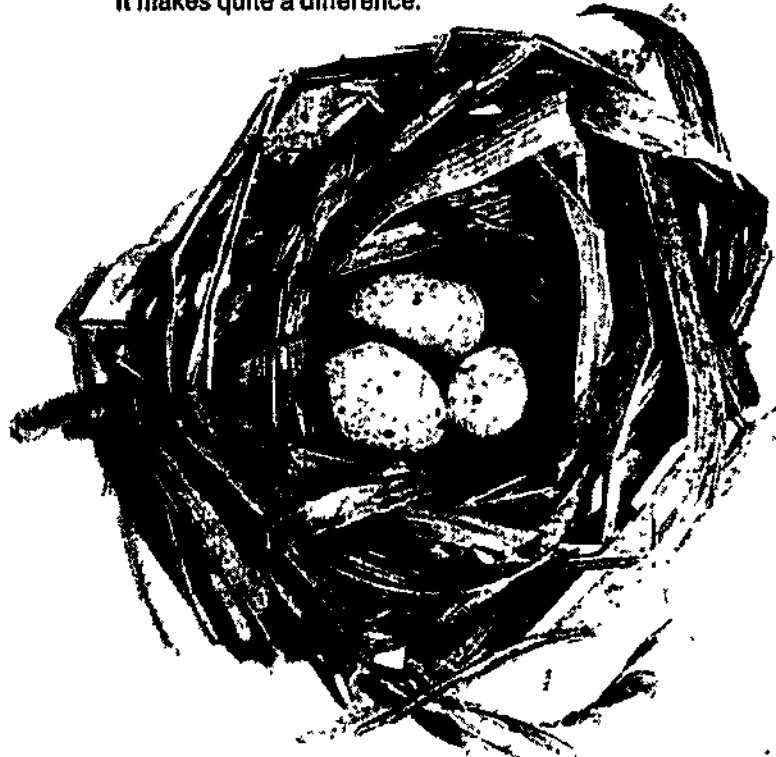

The huge "Mayor Daley" trophy which Latta won for overall high points in the 1971 Chicago Lakefront Festival overshadows several other large awards decorating their mantel.

But Latta, an electrical engineer for Hallcrafters, Rolling Meadows, says modestly of his frequent wins, "It's a combination of lots of nitro (nitromethane, a fuel additive to increase speed) and dumb luck."

Moodie opposes village funds for NW Center

Palatine Mayor Jack Moodie will not support using village funds to help the financially ailing Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

Moodie said yesterday he opposes the use of village funds to support "various welfare groups."

"We've gotten a lot of requests," he said, "and to my knowledge, we've never given these groups anything. If you start this, where do you stop?"

Palatine Township government, however, may be more receptive to the center's request for funds.

PALATINE VILLAGE trustees last year turned down a request for funds from the opportunity center, instead setting up a trust fund in a local bank. About $700 was raised.

Bruce Newton, director of the center, said he is hopeful that this year the trustees would appropriate money from the budget. He set the number of Palatine families served by the opportunity center last year at 274. Based on that figure, Newton indicated he will ask Palatine officials for $3,222.44.

Moodie said the village would evaluate the center programs, to decide whether to support the center, but added that in general: "I don't think villages should get into this sort of thing."

BESIDES, Moodie said, most of the "Palatine residents" served by the center actually live in unincorporated areas of the township, not in the village. The aid recipients are listed as living in Palatine because the unincorporated areas have a Palatine mailing address.

Newton said that in recognition of that factor, the center also would seek "a fair share" of funds from Palatine Township. Township Supervisor Howard I. Olsen said yesterday "it's something that could be considered by the township."

Rather than simply turning over general assistance or federal revenue sharing funds, however, Olsen said the township would "put our own guidelines on it to see that the funds are used for Palatine Township purposes."

OPPORTUNITY CENTER officials are expected to speak before both the village and township boards later this month to formally request funds.

The center's usual federal grant is to be reduced considerably during the fiscal year beginning April 1 in light of President Nixon's federal budget cuts.

The center plans to seek some $68,000 from area municipalities to continue its programs. The center offers adult education, legal assistance, nutritional programs, emergency food, family planning and income tax aid to underprivileged families.

Just a peaceful afternoon stroll out on a limb — it's the getting down that's tough.

Issue now in hands of Racing Board

by KURT BAER

Circuit Court Judge Robert J. Downing yesterday threw out requests by the Illinois attorney general and Arlington Park Race Track for a review of 1973 racing dates.

Merchants sponsor Valentine contest

Do it yourself Valentines will be the target of a contest sponsored for Palatine youths between now and Feb. 12.

Entries will be on display at the Palatine Mall K-Mart through Feb. 12, then judges will award prizes for the Valentines the following day. All entries will be distributed to area convalescent and child-care homes on Valentine's Day, Feb. 14.

The contest is being sponsored by the Palatine Mall Merchants' Association. Homemade Valentines should be brought to the Mall.

Arlington Park had sought to get both more racing days and choicer summer dates. But track spokesman Tom Rivera said yesterday the track's only hope now lies with the racing board.

"IT'S ALL up to the new board. If it doesn't change the dates we'll be open April 19," Rivera said.

Training for tutors to be held at church

Training for English tutors will be offered in a second session of the Laubach Literacy School operating out of Christ Lutheran Church, Palatine.

New volunteer tutors will start training March 14 at the church. Sessions will involve 14 hours of training on Sunday afternoons and Monday evenings for two consecutive weeks.

Actual classes are in progress for people with low English language ability. Morning and evening tutoring is now being offered twice a week, with a waiting list for the evening sessions.

Marty Lane will be the trainer for the Laubach tutor classes. The national organization started after a missionary named Laubach developed a program for teaching English as a second language. The Christ Lutheran Church Women in Palatine is sponsoring the area sessions at the church, 41 S. Rohlwing Rd.

More details are available by calling Mrs. Curt Dahlstrom at 339-5669.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., shot twice during a holdup, remained in critical condition in Walter Reed Army Medical Center. Surgery disclosed no apparent permanent damage.

British Prime Minister Edward Heath and President Nixon meet this morning to discuss a possible trade conflict.

Admiral Elmo Zumwalt, citing a 20 per cent increase in the cost of Navy food, ordered hamburger substituted for steak on the menus.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader, appearing before the Senate Commerce Committee, urged that automakers buy back cars with unreparable safety defects.

President Nixon will send Henry Kissinger to Hanoi this month to discuss the future of war-torn Vietnam. Nixon will also meet in spring with South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu.

The state

Senate President William Harris, R-Pontiac, announced plans for public hearings on property tax relief, but said he expects taxes to rise during Gov. Daniel Walker's administration.

Tuley High School on Chicago's West side was closed at noon yesterday after a disturbance in the school cafeteria. Two factions were at odds over principal, Dr. Herbert Fink.

State Sen. Bradley Glass, R-Northfield, has introduced legislation which would prohibit strikes by public employees and establish collective bargaining for them.

IRS agent Oliver P. Stufflebeam told the court that when former Gov. Otto Kerner was indicted in 1971, the government had no witnesses to testify about a crucial racetrack stock offer made to Kerner at a meeting in 1962.

The world

Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev has signaled that the end of the Vietnam War opens the possibility of improved U.S.-Soviet relations, and of peace in the Middle East.

The bodies of two Catholic teenagers were found in Belfast yesterday — each with a single bullet in the head.

Mexico was spared major damage and casualties in the earthquake that shook a large section of that country. The force was greater than that which destroyed Managua, Nicaragua.

The war

Vietnam battling continued to tone down, but political bickering kept cease-fire supervisory teams from monitoring reported violations. In Laos, meanwhile, negotiations on a cease-fire there opened between the government and Pathet Lao negotiators.

Complaint on '71 oil spill

Addressograph may face fine

WORKMEN built a straw dam across Weller Creek at Central Road in Mount Prospect to collect the spilled oil.

Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. could face a state pollution board fine of up to $10,000 plus $1,000 per day if found guilty of violating state pollution laws through a 1971 oil spill into Weller Creek.

Some 200 gallons of fuel oil spilled into storm sewers underneath the Multigraphics plant parking lot, at 1800 W. Central Rd. in Mount Prospect, on Oct. 11, 1971 and made its way into the creek two days later.

The complaint, signed by the Environmental Protection Agency, states that the firm "caused or allowed oil to spill . . . so as to cause or tend to cause water pollution in Weller Creek" allegedly in violation of a section of the Environmental Protection Act. A public hearing before the state pollution control board will be held at 10 a.m. Feb. 13 at the Arlington Heights Village Hall, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

AT THE TIME of the incident, Edward Bruning, vice president and general manager of the firm, said the original spill took place when an oil company was filling one of the plant's storage tanks. "A defective gauge indicated the tank could hold more oil than it actually could hold," Bruning said. "The tank was around the corner and out of sight of the operator."

According to Bruning, the firm immediately took action to collect the spilled oil. He said eight employees used some 2,000 pounds of oil absorbent material to collect and barrel the spilled oil. They then flushed the area.

"We were not aware any oil had gotten into the storm sewer system," Bruning said then. But the oil appeared in the creek, and both Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights public works crews went to work to prevent most of the oil from reaching the Des Plaines River, of which the creek is a tributary.

The day after the spill was discovered in the creek, Multigraphics officials announced a five-point program designed to prevent future oil spills. None has been reported since that time.

Correction

The Herald incorrectly reported yesterday that 1,700 persons had been served by the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows this fiscal year. The article should have stated 1,700 families.

The numbers served from each municipality were also the number of families and not of persons. Bruce Newton, center director, said there are an average of five persons in each family served by the center.

Speaker from SBA to address Chamber

Joe Meek of the Small Business Administration will be guest speaker at a business meeting sponsored by the Palatine Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Inc.

Meek, former president of the Illinois Retail Merchants Assn. and former state representative, will discuss how the SBA can help businessmen.

The meeting will be held Feb. 21 at Uncle Andy's Cow Palace, Northwest Highway and Quentin Road in unincorporated Palatine Township.

The social hour is to begin at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7:30, then the program.

The meeting is the first in the chamber of commerce's renewed series of monthly business meetings.

The chamber is accepting reservations, at $4.50 a person, at 235 N. Northwest Hwy.

Women's Club plans annual antique show

The Palatine Junior Women's Club will hold its fifth annual antique show and sale Friday and Saturday at the Plum Grove Club, 400 Park Dr., unincorporated Palatine Township.

The show will be from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday.

Tickets can be purchased for $1.25 a person from Mrs. Richard Batts, 358-5036, or for $1.50 at the door. Hot lunches will be served from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. each day, for $2 a person.

Arson called cause of Tuesday blaze

Arson was blamed for a house fire in the Howie-in-the-Hills region near Hoffman Estates late Tuesday night.

The Palatine Rural Fire Department extinguished the blaze in the abandoned house in 20 minutes. The home is located on Palatine Road west of Elm Road. One section of the home was destroyed, according to Palatine firemen.

Arrest woman trying to pass forged check

The sister of a man currently being held for forgery and theft was apprehended while trying to pass a forged check in Palatine bank Tuesday.

Alice Cano, 21, of Chicago, was charged with forging a check for $183.42 at Palatine's 1st Bank and Trust.

Mrs. Cano was released on a $5,000 personal recognizance bond and a Feb. 8 court date was set in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

The hydroplane truth

100 m.p.h. by boat is a 'Latta' speed

by MARILYN HEISER

Larry and Frances Latta don't look like people who race hydroplanes at speeds in excess of 100 miles per hour.

But as soon as they start talking about their hobby, which consumes much time, effort, and money, it is obvious hydroplaning is as much a part of their lives as breathing.

Latta, gesturing with his hands, quick in speech and almost impatient with those confused by technical engine and boating terms, is more than a mere enthusiast.

Judging from the trophies decorating his Schaumburg home, Latta excels at his hobby, and has communicated his absorbing interest to his wife.

THEIR HOME is a workshop for the care and repairing of engines, propellers and the boats themselves. They own seven hydroplanes and 10 motors, which they store with a huge trailer in a Naperville barn.

But the parts and pieces compete for space in their house, as the engines require continual attention due to the extreme heat and stress of racing, Latta said.

Playing Mr. Fixit is not limited to the male in this family. Mrs. Latta, a secretary for Motorola Corp., said she too can take an engine apart and put it back together.

Wet from the boat's spray, Mrs. Latta is in there pitching while other wives look on from the dry shore. She readsies an engine for Latta who's out in another cruising gracefully at 110 m.p.h.

When they first met, Mrs. Latta said, she didn't know anything about the sport. "At the first race I went to, Larry didn't do so well. I asked what I could do." She now says about the sport, "I love it."

While she has raced with her husband, Mrs. Latta said she has yet to race alone. "Larry built me an engine for my birthday, but I haven't gone alone yet."

"It's frightening to simply touch the throttle and be doing 80 to 90 m.p.h. The sensation of speed is really great, because you are kneeling, not sitting in the boat, which makes it seem like you're going twice as fast," Latta said.

THE LATTAS, with their trailer laden with boats about 14 feet long and weighing almost 200 pounds each, enter competition in various parts of the Midwest. Each contest, which generally covers five miles or lasts roughly five minutes, requires a different boat, different motor and different propeller, Latta said.

While the couple races for money prizes, "You barely break even on expenses," Latta said. And his proficiency at the sport won him second place in national races held last year in DePue, Ill.

The prize money averages around $100 a race, he said, but the boats, which run on a mixture of alcohol and castor oil, consume a great deal of fuel, a gallon a minute, at $1 a gallon.

At an average cost of $700 to $1,000, the hydroplanes are outfitted with expensive, hand-crafted engines, which require maintenance after every race. A recent mishap with four pistons ended up costing Latta close to $200, he said.

THE LATTAS met almost six years ago on the Mississippi River which separates their home towns of Keokuk, Iowa, and Warsaw, Ill. The river was the scene of a hydroplane race, naturally.

Now they are looking forward to winning first place at the August nationals and receiving their new boat, presently on order.

The huge "Mayor Daley" trophy which Latta won for overall high points in the 1971 Chicago Lakefront Festival overshadows several other large awards decorating their mantle.

But Latta, an electrical engineer for Hallcrafters, Rolling Meadows, says modestly of his frequent wins, "It's a combination of lots of nitro (nitromethane, a fuel additive to increase speed) and dumb luck."

Merger of unit school district studies suggested

by FRED GACA

The Citizens' Reorganization Study Committee for School Dist. 59 may get a recommendation to drop its unit district feasibility study and join a similar study being done by High School Dist. 214.

Reportedly the recommendation will come from the citizen's group state and legal aspects subcommittee. The recommendation is expected to be contained in the subcommittee's report to be given at a general committee meeting at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

George Coney, chairman of both the citizens group and the subcommittee, refused to comment on the report that a recommendation will be made to join the Dist. 214 survey.

Coney would only say that the subcommittee has completed a report and that it would be presented to the general committee tonight.

WHEN ASKED how he thought the general committee would react to a recommendation to stop its work and join the Dist. 214 study, Coney said he "had no idea."

Last week, Coney said that at tonight's meeting the general committee will be polled on the question of whether or not to continue studying a unit district for Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59. If the general committee agrees to continue its study, four boundary alternatives will be presented to the group.

The committee will then be asked to decide which of the four is feasible, and a final report will be submitted to the school board on the possibility of forming a unit district.

The school board had set a March 1 deadline for the final report to be submitted from both the citizens' committee and a professional consultant service also studying unit districting for Dist. 59.

THE FOUR alternatives that will be considered for a unit district if the committee votes to continue study are:

- Elk Grove Village unit, formed by splitting the present Dist. 59 along the Northwest Tollway.

- A unit of the present boundaries of Dist. 59.

- A unit of the attendance boundaries of the four southern high schools in Dist. 214: Elk Grove, Forest View, Rolling Meadows and Prospect High schools.

- Making Dist. 214 a unit district.

Fire district audit complete

An audit of assets of the former Rolling Meadows Fire District has been completed and its results will be sent to the city within a week, a spokesman for Webster and McDermitt Des Plaines auditing firm said yesterday.

The audit was done at the request of the fire district as part of the requirements of the annexation of the district by the city. The annexation, authorized by a referendum vote in August, took effect Jan. 1.

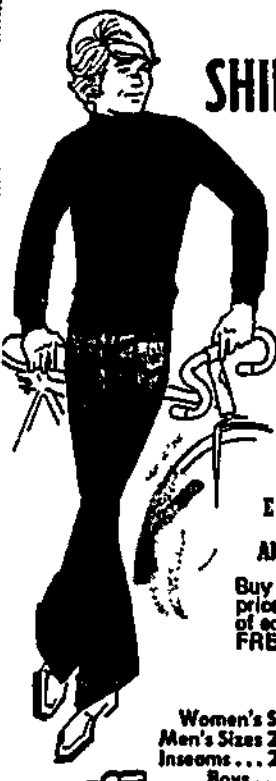

The spokesman said the audit had "just been completed." Cost of the audit has not been determined, but City Treasurer Robert Cole, a member of the city's fire committee, has said the cost should not be excessive.

John Doyle, attorney for the fire district, said the audit was included in the annexation agreement at the fire district's request to provide the city with an accounting of the district's assets. Webster and McDermitt is the same firm that has done audit work for the district in the past, Doyle said.

Total cost of the fire district transfer has not been determined, according to City Mgr. James Watson. Costs will include the audit, legal fees for Doyle and City Atty. Don Rose, and election costs for the August referendum.

No revenue funds to Center

Rolling Meadows won't help opportunity center: Meyer

Rolling Meadows has no plans to contribute a portion of its revenue sharing allotment to the Northwest Opportunity Center, according to Mayor Roland Meyer.

Meyer's statement came after a special meeting of the city council to discuss uses for the $177,000 from the federal government.

Meyer said he has not been contacted by the center requesting money but would be opposed to contributing any portion of the revenue sharing or other city funds if a formal request is made.

"If the federal government does not see fit to fund it any longer, then why should the city turn around and give our federal money to them?" Meyer said. He referred to President Richard Nixon's proposal to end as of July 1 all funding for the Office of Economic Opportunity, of which the center is a branch.

THE BUDGET cut in OEO funding was justified by the White House on the assumption that federal revenue sharing funds would be used to support local assistance programs such as those provided by the center. Funding in this manner was seen as a way to return local control of assistance agencies to municipalities.

"We would certainly take care of our own if OEO folds," he said. "We would do it through our welfare officer and with money appropriated in the general assistance fund."

Although he emphasized that the city council will decide what kind of appropriations are to be made with the money, Meyer said he would not favor turning money over to the center to aid poverty families in the city. He said he would prefer to see the city establish its own department to administer assistance if aid is necessary.

A similar program was started in this way for youth services several years ago, Meyer said, when Palatine Township requested a contribution of $10,000 from the city to begin a youth program. Rather than join the program, the city began its own, he said.

BECAUSE OF the expected curtailment of federal funding for OEO center, director Bruce Newton has said $32,000 will be needed from other sources. The center plans to contact municipalities served by the center to ask for funding.

Arlington Heights trustees have already agreed to contribute $1,600 to the center. A letter from that village's board recommending similar contributions from other towns is being sent to surrounding communities, including Rolling Meadows.

Funding help may also come from Palatine Township, according to township supervisor Howard I. Olsen. "It's something that could be considered by the township," Olsen said yesterday.

However, rather than simply turning over general assistance or federal revenue sharing funds, Olsen said the township would "put our own guidelines on it to see that the funds are used for Palatine Township purposes."

IN MAKING requests for funds, the center has determined that about $10.06 per family served by the organization is needed from communities. Since 129 families in Rolling Meadows were assisted by the center to date in the current fiscal year, the center will seek $2,458.74 from the city.

Meyer and the city have opposed aiding the center in the past because they thought the center, as a branch of the federal government, should be funded totally from Washington.

Meyer has also said an agreement was made with the center at the time it came into Rolling Meadows that funds would never be sought from the city for the center's operation.

One third of total sought

Revenue funds asked for flood control

Nearly one-third of the $177,000 Rolling Meadows revenue-sharing bonanza has been requested by the city's public works department for flood control.

The request calls specifically for $64,850 for the purchase of three pieces of equipment to monitor and maintain the city's sewer system. The equipment includes a videotape television monitoring system, a sealer that would repair underground cracks and leaks internally, and a jet spray and vacuum system to flush out and eliminate debris and grease from sewers.

Action on the proposal will not be taken until city officials review the plan.

In presenting the request at a special meeting of the city council Tuesday, Ald. Daniel Weber (4th), chairman of the streets, alleys, and utilities committee, said the request was made after Supt. of Public Works John Hennessy and the committee reviewed major flooding problems in the city.

In addition to flood control use, several other projects to be funded with revenue sharing money were suggested at the meeting. They included a recommendation from Mayor Roland Meyer for an inter-city transportation system to provide shuttle service to the main areas of the city such as the high school, the library, the shopping center, city hall, and possibly the new Chicago and North Western train station.

FINANCE committee chairman Ald. Fred Jacobson (5th) also suggested an expenditure of $15,000 to $20,000 to convert the city's IBM programming to include records of dog, vehicle, and other city licenses issued. Jacobson said with such a recording system, residents could be notified when licenses have expired as the state does with expiring driver's licenses and license plates.

In making the request for flood control funds, Weber stressed the need for preventative detection to deal with potential flooding conditions.

"We are running into problems because the system is getting old," Weber told the council. He said in particular there is a need for the televising equipment for the Bluebird Lane area and for trouble occurring at the city's lift station 2 also near Cardinal Drive Park.

"What we are suggesting is a television sewer inspection system," Weber said. "In essence we can find where illegal hookups are, where grease buildups are and so on," he said. The system could also maintain a record of inspection since TV videotapes could be stored. The mobile system would be ordered in the mini-trailer variety rather than the truck type, Weber suggested, since that unit would be more practical for the city's use.

THE SEALER equipment would be an underground system which would find leaks or cracks in sewer lines and automatically insert a permanent sealing solution, Weber said. "You could literally seal a crack in a junction in 15 minutes and eliminate the need to break up streets to repair leaks."

The equipment, which would be used to catch debris flushed out of sewers, could also be used for leaf pickups, although that would not be its primary purpose, Weber said.

"All three pieces of equipment are integral," Weber said. "You really can't do the right thing without all three." He said the system would also be less expensive for the city to operate on its own because rental is more costly and is not always available to the city when needed.

Two years ago it would have cost the city $156,000 to make all necessary sewer system repairs, but today that cost would be tripled, Weber told the council. "The advantage of having our own equipment is very simple; we can't rent the TV equipment fast enough because it's not available when we need it. Also, we'd have fewer emergencies because we

1972 building permits bring city record $66,190.01

Funds derived from permits issued by the Rolling Meadows Building Department last year hit a record high of $66,190.01, figures show. The amount represents the money collected on the basis of the assessed valuation of construction begun in the city last year.

The figure includes permits issued for all kinds of construction, from single-family home improvements to major industrial construction.

Of the total, the largest sum was received in September when $10,082.99 was collected. Building department spokesman Mrs. Betty Black said permits for the multi-million dollar J. C. Penney Treasury discount store and for additions to Fairfax Village were issued in that month.

However, she said even without the large sum collected from the J. C. Penney store, September would still have been among the top money-producing months.

REVENUE COLLECTED by the department has increased steadily each year, Mrs. Black said, because construction in the city has continued at a progressively growing pace.

That pace continued this year despite the adverse weather that dominated the spring and summer, the peak building times during the year, according to Building Officer Sverre Haug.

"It (the rainy weather) could have held up work some," Haug said. Strikes by the building trade unions in the spring and early summer also affected construction, Haug said, but the slowdown was not substantial.

THE INCREASE in the revenue generated by building permit fees is expected to continue into this year, Mrs. Black said, since a number of planned construction projects will be started this year. They include the Kenroy hotel-office complex site on Algonquin Road near Rte. 53, the Zale apartment complex which calls for more than 200 units to be developed, the Valley Lake Villas condominium project, and the Levitz Furniture store to be built on Rohlwing Road near the Arlington Park Race Track.

Industrial firms in the northern part of the city are also planning additions to plants and office areas which will produce money for the department, Mrs. Black said. Several restaurant interests have also made plans to come into the city, she said, adding that the total prospects for construction indicate 1973 "will be gangbusters."

would spot problems before they become serious."

"This equipment would help eliminate Metropolitan Sanitary District storm water backups into basements which we normally don't have any control over," City Engr. James Muldowney added.

INSTALLATION OF the television equipment throughout the city would take about a year, Weber estimated. Three new full-time employees to operate the equipment would have to be hired, but their salaries need not come from revenue sharing funds, he added.

Although aldermen seemed receptive to the request, Ald. Merrill Wuerch (1st) said he felt the equipment alone was not enough to eliminate the flooding problem. "I would hope that along with this type of thing we would earmark some of these funds for sewer construction, too, because this is vitally needed."

Wuerch said such construction would "alleviate, shall we say, some of the sore spots as far as the residents are concerned."

Flooding has been a particular problem in Wuerch's 1st Ward area, especially in the vicinity of Flicker Lane.

Agreeing with Wuerch was Ald. Thomas Scanlan (1st) who said he would support Weber's request but felt the sewer construction was still needed.

"I think that just acquiring the equipment alone is not going to do the job," Scanlan said. "I think it's going to take some good preventative maintenance."

Judge quashes racing date review plea

by KURT BAER

Circuit Court Judge Robert J. Downing yesterday threw out requests by the Illinois attorney general and Arlington Park Race Track for a review of 1973 racing dates.

The judge's decision puts the crucial question of dates in the hands of the Illinois Racing Board, which is scheduled to meet this morning.

Under the racing schedule upheld by Judge Downing, Arlington Park will open the Chicago thoroughbred racing season on April 19 and will close July 24.

Arlington Park had sought to get both more racing days and choicer summer dates. But track spokesman Tom Rivera said yesterday the track's only hope now lies with the racing board.

"IT'S ALL up to the new board. If it doesn't change the dates we'll be open April 19," Rivera said.

Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scariano has said he will seek to revoke dates awarded to racing associations controlled by William S. Miller, a former racing board chairman now under federal indictment in a race track conspiracy case.

But any revocation would require action by the full racing board and could not be accomplished solely by the chairman.

Scariano is expected to ask the board this morning to take that action.

Even though dates have been awarded to Miller's associations, the racing interests still cannot conduct a horse race without first securing a license from the racing board.

IN UPHOLDING the 1973 racing schedule as awarded by a 4 to 3 vote of the old racing board, Judge Downing said the court had authority to look only at the testimony presented before the racing board and could not consider outside evidence.

Scariano on Monday had cited Miller's confession in the conspiracy trial and testimony before the Illinois Legislative Investigating Committee as grounds for revoking his racing dates.

Miller has received immunity in the conspiracy trial in exchange for his testimony.

Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott and Arlington Park charged in their suits that the racing board violated state law in granting the dates, but Downing said yesterday he found the board's action neither "arbitrary, unconscionable or capricious and not contrary to the statutes."

Scott had contended that state law prohibited anyone under indictment from receiving racing dates.

He further alleged that the dates as they stand would cost the state $3 million in tax revenue.

DOWNING, however, discounted the argument.

The judge also denied a request by Arlington Park and Washington Park Race Tracks Corp. for separate racing licenses for the Arlington and Washington divisions.

School board nominating petitions ready

Nominating petitions for two three-year terms on the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education are available at the E. S. Castor Administration Building, 503 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine.

Walter Sundling and Leland Gibbs, the two incumbents whose terms are expiring, have both announced they will seek reelection in the April 14 election.

Petitions can be filed at the administration building between Feb. 28 and March 23.

Persons can file for absentee ballots at the administration building starting March 13. The last day to apply for an absentee ballot by mail is April 9 and the last day to apply in person is April 11. March 17 is the deadline for voters in the district to establish residency.

School board candidates must be 21 years old and a resident of the district. All candidates must file a statement of economic interest with the Cook County clerk.

Correction

The Herald incorrectly reported yesterday that 1,700 persons had been served by the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows this fiscal year. The article should have stated 1,700 families.

The numbers served from each municipality were also the number of families and not of persons. Bruce Newton, center director, said there are an average of five persons in each family served by the center.

Two separate licenses were sought as a tax saver to the racing corporation.

Race tracks pay a progressive tax based on the total betting handle. By dividing, for example, 77 days of racing at Arlington Park in two separate meets, the corporation would be able to break up the betting total, and thus pay a smaller tax.

A separate suit is now pending before the Illinois Supreme Court seeking $5 million in back taxes and interest the attorney general claims is due the state because of the track's dual license operation from 1967 through 1971.

School board panel to discuss boundary remap

HERA continues discussion on tension wires

Members of Hoffman Estates Residents Association talked about school boundaries and continued discussion of proposed installation of high tension wires along the Northwest Tollroad at their meeting Tuesday night.

The organization also expanded its activities into concern for apartment dwellers.

HERA is a recently formed citizens lobby group, open to residents of Hoffman Estates, whether they own or rent property. Tuesday's session in the Hoffman Estates Village Hall was its second meeting.

A HERA representative will attend a meeting tonight of the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 building and sites committee, in which proposed school boundaries for 1973-74 will be open to public discussion.

The representative, Mrs. Ruth Howle, is to report back to the association on proposed boundary lines. HERA members voted Tuesday to seek expansion of the Dist. 54 bus service program, which now is available only to students living more than a mile from school, said a HERA spokesman.

STUDENTS living within the mile radius must pay $60 per year for bus service, said Mel Budish, one of HERA's founders. As more schools open, families have more children attending different schools, Budish noted. This makes it difficult for parents to drive their children to school, or to participate in car pools.

The organization also voted to support Tom Jones, 400 Bode Rd., in his efforts to obtain a solution to alleged sewage back up problems in his unit in the Prairie Ridge Apartment complex, said Budish.

Hal Hubert, an association member, was delegated to check with other complex residents to substantiate Jones' allegations, and to examine a report by the village building department on the charges by Jones the complex is not properly maintained. HERA "will want to see what action the (village) board will take on his (Jones') behalf," said Budish.

Concern over the Commonwealth Edison plan to install high tension wires on 90-foot poles along the tollroad was the issue around which HERA was formed. Milt Kosner reported he believes there is a discrepancy in figures made public by Commonwealth Edison on the comparative costs of installing the lines on the poles or underground. He is to report to HERA again when he has obtained more substantial information.

HERA members were told Com-

Proposed revisions in boundaries for Schaumburg Township Elementary Dist. 54 schools for the 1973-74 school year will be discussed by the district's building and site committee at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Helen Keller Junior High School, 820 Bode Rd.

District officials have announced that parents are welcome to attend the meeting to discuss the possible boundary revisions.

Several of the district's 24 schools will have the same boundaries. Some revisions will take place with the opening of Eisenhower Junior High School in Hoffman Estates and the Link Elementary School in Elk Grove Village.

Kindergarten will be offered at all schools except Blackhawk, where students will go to Hoffman; Campanelli, where students will go to Schaumburg and Collins; Twinbrook and Muir, where students will attend Hillcrest.

OTHER PROPOSED revisions include sixth graders from Aldrin School will attend Frost Junior High School.

Sixth graders from Armstrong School will attend Eisenhower Junior High except those from Hanover Park and Levitt developments who will be transferred to Keller.

Students from the new Campanelli development north of Schaumburg Road will attend Blackhawk School.

Two sixth grade classes from Campanelli School will be assigned to Addams Junior High School.

STUDENTS from Timbercrest, Town Square Apartments and Sheffield Park East will attend Dirksen School. About 10 sixth grade students from Dooley School will attend Addams Junior High School. About 50 sixth grade students from Fox School will attend Addams. About 70 sixth grade students from Hale School will attend Frost Junior High School.

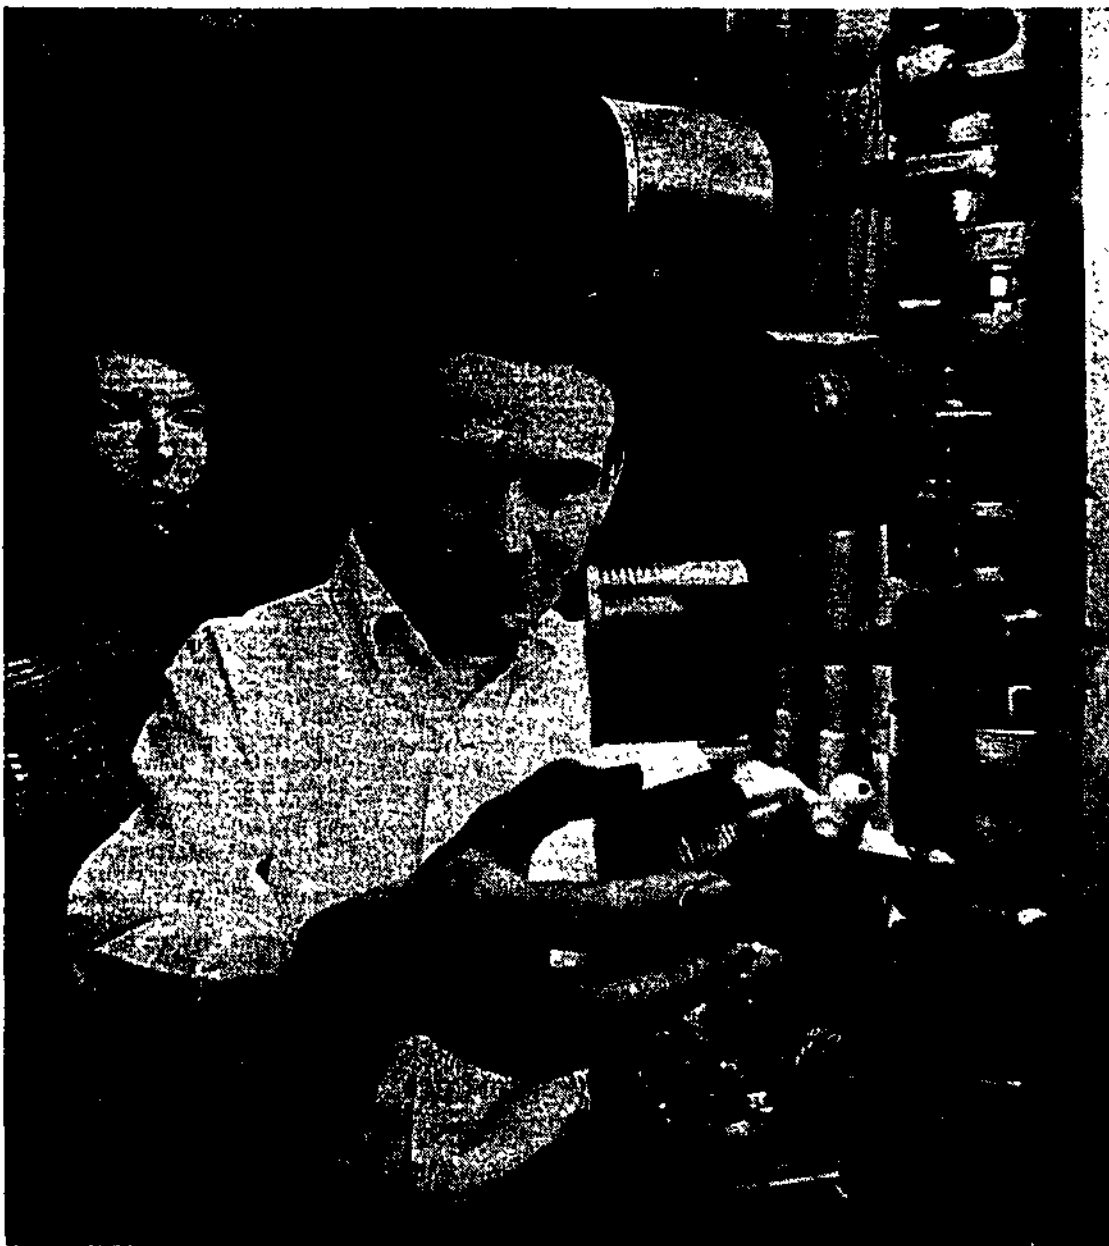

Hanover School boundaries will include students who reside in the Old Salem area and the area north of Irving Park Road, west of Carlisle to Barrington Road and south to 1985 Yorkshire.

Students from the Village in the Park Apartments will attend Hillcrest School. Students from Levitt developments and Larkspur in Hanover Park will attend Hoffman School.

ABOUT 17 sixth grade students from MacArthur School will be assigned to Eisenhower School.

Schaumburg School will include students from Sunset Hills, Kennedy development, Del Lago Villas, new Campanelli are, south of Schaumburg Road and east of Salem Drive.

The boundaries for Churchill, Collins, Fairview, Lakeview, Muir and Twinbrook schools will remain the same.

PISTON IN HAND, Larry Latta works on the engine of one of his hydroplanes, while his wife Frances supervises his effort. The engines, Latta said, are specially crafted, with a capacity of 175 hp and 9,000 revolutions per minute, although they are only 60 cubic inches. The Lattas repair and assemble the engines in their Schaumburg home, but they store their boats in a barn.

The hydroplane truth

100 m.p.h. by boat is a 'Latta' speed

by MARILYN HEISER
Larry and Frances Latta don't look like people who race hydroplanes at speeds in excess of 100 miles per hour.

But as soon as they start talking about their hobby, which consumes much time, effort, and money, it is obvious hydroplaning is as much a part of their lives as breathing.

Latta, gesturing with his hands, quick in speech and almost impatient with those confused by technical engine and boating terms, is more than a mere enthusiast.

Judging from the trophies decorating his Schaumburg home, Latta excels at his hobby, and has communicated his absorbing interest to his wife.

THEIR HOME is a workshop for the care and repairing of engines, propellers and the boats themselves. They own seven hydroplanes and 10 motors, which they store with a huge trailer in a Naperville barn.

But the parts and pieces compete for space in their house, as the engines require continual attention due to the extreme heat and stress of racing, Latta said.

Playing Mr. Fixit is not limited to the male in this family. Mrs. Latta, a secretary for Motorola Corp., said she too can take an engine apart and put it back together.

Wet from the boat's spray, Mrs. Latta is in there pitching while other wives look on from the dry shore. She readies an engine for Latta who's out in another cruising gracefully at 110 m.p.h.

When they first met, Mrs. Latta said, she didn't know anything about the sport. "At the first race I went to, Larry didn't do so well. I asked what I could do." She now says about the sport, "I love it."

While she has raced with her husband, Mrs. Latta said she has yet to race alone. "Larry built me an engine for my birthday, but I haven't gone alone yet."

"It's frightening to simply touch the throttle and be doing 80 to 90 m.p.h. The sensation of speed is really great, because you are kneeling, not sitting in the boat, which makes it seem like you're going twice as fast," Latta said.

THE LATTAS, with their trailer laden with boats about 14 feet long and weighing almost 200 pounds each, enter competition in various parts of the Midwest. Each contest, which generally covers five miles or lasts roughly five minutes, requires a different boat, different motor and different propeller, Latta said.

While the couple races for money prizes, "You barely break even on expenses," Latta said. And his proficiency at the sport won him second place in national races held last year in DePue, Ill.

The prize money averages around $100 a race, he said, but the boats, which run on a mixture of alcohol and castor oil, consume a great deal of fuel, a gallon a minute, at $1 a gallon.

At an average cost of $700 to $1,000, the hydroplanes are outfitted with expensive, hand-crafted engines, which require maintenance after every race. A recent mishap with four pistons ended up costing Latta close to $200, he said.

THE LATTAS met almost six years ago on the Mississippi River which separates their home towns of Keokuk, Iowa, and Warsaw, Ill. The river was the scene

Esthetics, environment panels set joint meet

Landscaping and proposed repainting of an Athena Court water reservoir and other areas of mutual concern will be discussed Tuesday at a joint meeting of Schaumburg's Clean Environment Committee and the newly formed esthetics committee.

Members of both groups will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Melneke Community Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way.

The meeting is open to the public.

Inverness feeling suburbia's crunch

(A News Analyst)

Inverness, the village of spacious estates for the wealthy, is feeling the crunch of taking root too near a commuter railroad.

Rapid population growth, particularly in and around Palatine Township, is infringing on the rolling countryside of the village. As a result, Inverness trustees adopted their infant comprehensive plan this month to stall higher-density development near the village.

But some residents apparently feel even that plan is too liberal. What may be the real problem is Inverness' proximity to the Chicago and North Western Ry. The Finger Plan, a 1967 proposal adopted by the North-eastern Illinois Planning Commission, predicted the growth of Chicago's suburbs along commuter rail lines.

CALLED corridors, land within 1 1/2 miles on either side of a commuter train or expressway system was pinpointed for higher-density development, such as apartments, townhouses or small lot single-family homes. Between these "fingers" of development, the original plan urged that land be purchased for parks, low density housing, or forest preserves to prevent the entire region from being overdeveloped.

Inverness is experiencing a slightly different twist in the corridor concept. That portion of the village within the Chicago and North Western Ry. 10 minutes' drive from the nearest train station, was already developed at a very low density. Homes in this northern segment of Inverness were built on one to five acres of land each. But the undeveloped portion of the village, which is also most susceptible to high density housing, lies in the area recommended for open space.

In reality, the NIPC corridor system has had very little direct effect on land in or out of the imaginary fingers in the Finger Plan. Local governments have control of zoning within their boundaries, and according to land planner Robert B. Teska, most local agencies are not adhering to the plan.

Teska authorized the master plan for Inverness by Barton Aschman Associates, the firm that also helped write the Finger Plan.

THE CHICAGO and North Western Ry. and the Milwaukee Road Ry. form the two corridors nearest Inverness. The basic intent of the NIPC plan was to steer commuters toward using the public transportation by concentrating construction along railways rather than highways.

A review of the Finger Plan, particularly as it affects the Barrington area, is scheduled by NIPC for sometime in the coming two weeks. In the meantime, a Feb. 6 public hearing will involve Inverness residents as they look over their own recently-approved comprehensive plan. That plan as it stands now recommends the first development within the village on less than one acre per home.

The highest density allowed in the plan is two to six units per acre. Other small portions would have one to two units per acre, and the rest of the village would remain at its one unit or less per acre standard.

One reason the density has to stay relatively low is the poor soil for Inverness' septic system. Unless the village joins the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) for its sewers, Teska said the land couldn't support development at much more than one unit per acre.

BUT THE REASON Inverness is likely to become landlocked by other homes, townhouses and apartments shows up in NIPC's population projections released a few months ago.

Palatine Township, which includes Palatine, Inverness, Rolling Meadows, unincorporated areas and portions of neighboring villages, currently has 55,000 people. In two years, NIPC projects that the township will total 68,000.

And by 1985, the township's population will more than double its current size. If such a boom becomes a reality, Inverness, the "village with a heritage," is likely to find itself a tiny outpost of country homes in an urban environment.

LITERALLY FLYING aptly describes Larry Latta rates the boat from the water. Latta and his wife sport as a hobby. A typical race course is about racing more than 100 miles an hour in one of his Frances race competitively, and also pursue the five miles in length and lasts five minutes. seven hydroplanes. A one-inch layer of air separates the boat from the water.

Judge quashes racing date review plea

by KURT BAER
Circuit Court Judge Robert J. Downing yesterday threw out requests by the Illinois attorney general and Arlington Park Race Track for a review of 1973 racing dates.

The judge's decision puts the crucial question of dates in the hands of the Illinois Racing Board, which is scheduled to meet this morning.

Under the racing schedule upheld by Judge Downing, Arlington Park will open the Chicago thoroughbred racing season on April 19 and will close July 24.

Arlington Park had sought to get both more racing days and choicer summer dates. But track spokesman Tom Rivera said yesterday the track's only hope now lies with the racing board.

"IT'S ALL up to the new board. If it doesn't change the dates we'll be open April 19," Rivera said.

Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Sciarano has said he will seek to revoke dates awarded to racing associations controlled by William S. Miller, a former racing board chairman now under federal indictment in a race track conspiracy case.

But any revocation would require action by the full racing board and could not be accomplished solely by the chairman.

Sciarano is expected to ask the board this morning to take that action.

Even though dates have been awarded to Miller's associations, the racing interests still cannot conduct a horse race without first securing a license from the racing board.

IN UPHOLDING the 1973 racing schedule as awarded by a 4 to 3 vote of the old racing board, Judge Downing said the court had authority to look only at the testimony presented before the racing board and could not consider outside evidence.

Sciarano on Monday had cited Miller's confession in the conspiracy trial and testimony before the Illinois Legislative Investigating Committee as grounds for revoking his racing dates.

Miller has received immunity in the conspiracy trial in exchange for his testimony.

Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott and Arlington Park charged in their suits that the racing board violated state law in granting the dates, but Downing said yesterday he found the board's action neither "arbitrary, unreasonable or capricious and not contrary to the statutes."

Scott had contended that state law prohibited anyone under indictment from receiving racing dates.

He further alleged that the dates as they stand would cost the state $3 million in tax revenue.

DOWNING, however, discounted the argument.

The judge also denied a request by Arlington Park and Washington Park Race Tracks Corp. for separate racing licenses for the Arlington and Washington divisions.

Two separate licenses were sought as a tax saver to the racing corporation.

Race tracks pay a progressive tax based on the total betting handle. By dividing, for example, 77 days of racing at Arlington Park in two separate meets, the corporation would be able to break up the betting total, and thus pay a smaller tax.

The huge "Mayor Daley" trophy which Latta won for overall high points in the 1971 Chicago Lakefront Festival overshadowed several other large awards decorating their mantel.

But Latta, an electrical engineer for Hallcrafters, Rolling Meadows, says modestly of his frequent wins, "It's a combination of lots of nitro (nitromethane), a fuel additive to increase speed) and dumb luck."

A warning about airports

The controversy surrounding Schaumburg's airport was the subject of remarks by an expert in the noise pollution field recently — with a warning that although many communities have small airports nearby, some of them suffer from the increase in the use of private — and often noisy — private jets.

James C. Reid, manager of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency noise pollution control, traced the history of his knowledge of the local proposal and commented on planned expansion of two other Chicago-area general aviation airports.

tion posed during a joint session of Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates environmental committees Tuesday.

He said the EPA has had no complaints on small aircraft at Schaumburg Airport, including twin-piston planes, but other air fields have experienced problems with business jets. A runway slightly longer than the 3,000-foot strip at Schaumburg could accommodate small jets of the type Reid mentioned.

WITH THE IDA (Illinois Department of Aviation) now involved in the project, Reid said some state officials remain dubious about expansion approval due to air traffic patterns in the area. IDA association with the proposal has arisen from preliminary preparation of an application for a federal planning grant. However, Schaumburg officials have made it clear that they will not confine their investigation to the existing airport but will also survey sites in or annexable to the village.

But Reid urged environmental committee members to "stay on top" of the situation and referred to citizen opposition to proposed expansion at DuPage County Airport.

"You have to go and shoot your mouth off. Speak up and encourage others to do the same because it is your voices we (EPA) are reflecting," he said.

An environmental impact study, part of the feasibility investigation, will be submitted to the EPA and other agencies for review prior to fund approval.

"THIS IS AN area where we do have some power to prevent bushfires from starting," Reid commented. In the review EPA members try to remain unbiased "call the shots as we see them and state what we find," he said.

After EPA review and comment adverse remarks must be satisfied before the release of federal funds, he said.

Reid said his agency objected to expansion proposals at Waukegan and DuPage County airports "because we feel people in these areas will be subjected to intolerable noise levels."

While computerized analyses of noise profiles used in most airport expansion plans are "the best material available now," Reid considers the structure of these reports too lenient.

THOUGH THE report lays guidelines, it was originally designed at military air installations and later modified to include civilian areas, said Reid. He indicates however, that the modifications have never been satisfactorily explained to him.

"We judge our thinking on people like you in writing environmental impact statement reviews," Reid emphasized.

He commented generally on efforts to reduce noise pollution through improved technology, mentioned a NASA program for funding such research, and took note of recent fiscal tightening at the national level.

"In dealing with the aircraft industry, the history of legal action points up that the airlines have done as they pleased and the federal government has let this happen," Reid said.

He suggested that the Federal Aviation Administration has been historically directed by top executives of airlines and "has become a slave of the industry it tries to regulate."

Hoffman Estates GOP to adopt its platform

The platform for the Republican Party of Hoffman Estates will be adopted at an 8 p.m. Friday meeting in Campanelli School, 310 S. Springguth Rd., Schaumburg.

The party will reconvene its convention, which opened Dec. 10 and was adjourned indefinitely for platform development.

The second convention session will be chaired by Committeeman Donald L. Totten, Illinois representative. The platform will be put to a vote of delegates attending, in the same voting procedure as was used at the first session to choose a slate of candidates for the village race.

Chairman of the platform committee now is Trustee Edward Hennessy. Previously, the committee was headed by Ralph Lyerta, candidate for one of three trustee seats. Hennessy said he was named committee chairman two or three weeks ago.

FRIDAY'S MEETING will afford party members a chance to "decide what the party's candidates will run on and what the issues of the campaign will be," said Hennessy. "This year, like in the last two village campaigns, our platform was developed from testimony of citizens, civic leaders and the news media at open hearings," Hennessy added.

To vote on the platform, delegates must be village residents and registered voters; have voted Republican in primaries in 1970 or 1972 and not have voted Democratic in either primary, or if they did not vote at all in the primaries be members of Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township or Palatine Township Regular Republican Organization.

Other members of the platform committee are Mrs. Virginia Hayter, mayoral candidate; Glenn Hoffman, campaign chairman; Bruce Lind, incumbent trustee candidate; Lyerta; Carl Shoemaker, trustee candidate; Robert Lyons, campaign manager; Melvin Timmons, and Mrs. Helen Wozniak, clerk candidate.

Environment action month scheduled

The Dirksen School PTA is making plans to sponsor an environmental action month in April. A community paper drive will be one of the major projects during the month.

Area residents have been asked by the PTA coordinators to save old newspapers for the drive, which will be held April 7 and 8.

A recycling container will be placed at the school on Beach Drive in Schaumburg on that weekend to collect papers.

Other projects are being planned by the group.

Registration set for boys baseball

Registration for the Schaumburg Boys Baseball League Association will be Saturday and Feb. 10, at Schaumburg Great Hall, 231 S. Civic Dr.

Signup times for both dates is 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. In order to register boys must present verification that they will be 8 years old by Aug. 1, 1973 and that they will not be 18 years old by that date, said Jim Major, league secretary.

The fee schedule is $20 for the first boy of a family registering in the league, $15 for the second boy from the family and no additional cost for each boy after the first two, he added.

The league is affiliated with the Schaumburg Athletic Association.

Art Mart opens in Town Square Center

The Art Mart has joined the shops at Town Square Shopping Center, Roselle and Schaumburg roads, Schaumburg.

An art gallery, arts and crafts supplies, custom framing, portrait paintings, and classes in painting and crafts are available at the shop.

Classes in decoupage, tape painting, wood painting, stained glass, jewelry making, sculpture, silk screen painting, figurine painting, and rug hooking are planned.

According to the director, Vern Milem, former dean of students at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, the classes are the beginning of a complete art school.

Classes will begin in February with limitations on enrollment, so interested persons should register now.

Mrs. Downey to head dystrophy fund drive

Mrs. Frederick Downey of Hoffman Estates has been named area chairman of Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg for the Muscular Dystrophy Association fund drive March 4.

The association is seeking volunteers to work as district leaders or marchers in the fund drive. Marchers working in a two or three-block area would be asked to spend about half an hour, while district leaders would be required for the entire afternoon, and possibly for some follow-up time on the telephone later, said an association spokesman.

Persons wishing to volunteer may contact Mrs. Downey by telephone at 829-6834.

Central School property eyed for elderly housing

The Mount Prospect Community Services and Mental Health Commission has been told to study the possibility of locating housing for the elderly on the Central School property "as well as other locations, improved or vacant."

In a memorandum issued yesterday, Mayor Robert D. Telchert told the commission to come up with recommendations on the Central School plan, submitted by Kenroy Inc., and other sites in the village which might be suitable for senior citizen housing.

Any recommendations they develop are then to be given to the plan commission, which is soon to begin a comprehensive study of the downtown area with the aim of rehabilitation within the next few years. The recommended sites do not have to be in the downtown area.

UNDER THE Kenroy plan, the now vacant Central School building (Main Street and Central Road) would be replaced by a one or two-story, 13-story high-rise, containing 400 housing units.

However, funding for both this plan and federal housing grants have apparently been frozen for 18 months by presidential order. Kenroy Inc. had hoped to fund the project through the Illinois Housing Authority for a federal grant to build 250 units of low-income elderly housing. That application had gotten as far as a market study (which found 125 units would be justified) before the freeze was enacted.

As Telchert wrote, "The action of President Nixon imposing an 18-month moratorium on the use of federal funds for housing, and the indication that Gov. (Daniel) Walker intends to freeze all state funds for housing, should be noted by the commission."

"While I have no inside information on the subject, I find it difficult to believe that housing for the elderly will be pushed aside, except on a very temporary basis."

HE SAID HE based his opinion on the favorable public acceptance of senior citizen housing and the success of the existing programs. "In the belief that in this area of housing there will be a resumption of federal and state funding in the near future," he wrote, "I would request that the Community Services Commission direct their immediate efforts to a study related to housing for the elderly."

The village board as a committee-of-the-whole met once with Kenroy officials on their plan. Telchert said the board will consider the Kenroy plan no further until presentations have been made before the plan commission and the board of appeals.

Last week, Telchert said he was taking this step because the situation in regards to the Central School property was "never critical, this isn't an emergency situation." He said the Kenroy plan should be considered as another input in the plan commission's study of the downtown area.

Complaint on '71 oil spill

Addressograph may face fine

Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. could face a state pollution board fine of up to $10,000 plus $1,000 per day if found guilty of violating state pollution laws through a 1971 oil spill into Weller Creek.

Some 200 gallons of fuel oil spilled into storm sewers underneath the Multigraphics plant parking lot, at 1800 W. Central Rd. in Mount Prospect, on Oct. 11, 1971 and made its way into the creek two days later.

The complaint, signed by the Environmental Protection Agency, states that the firm "caused or allowed oil to spill . . . so as to cause or tend to cause water pollution in Weller Creek" allegedly in violation of a section of the Environmental Protection Act. A public hearing before the state pollution control board will be held at 10 a.m. Feb. 13 at the Arlington Heights Village Hall, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

AT THE TIME of the incident, Edward

Bruning, vice president and general manager of the firm, said the original spill took place when an oil company was filling one of the plant's storage tanks.

"A defective gauge indicated the tank could hold more oil than it actually could hold," Bruning said. "The tank was around the corner and out of sight of the operator."

According to Bruning, the firm immediately took action to collect the spilled oil. He said eight employees used some 2,000 pounds of oil absorbent material to collect and barrel the spilled oil. They then flushed the area.

"We were not aware any oil had gotten into the storm sewer system," Bruning said then. But the oil appeared in the creek, and both Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights public works crews went to work to prevent most of the oil from reaching the Des Plaines River, of which the creek is a tributary.

The day after the spill was discovered in the creek, Multigraphics officials announced a five-point program designed to prevent future oil spills. None has been reported since that time.

Stolen check passed at Dominick's Foods

A stolen check was passed Jan. 10 at Dominick's Finer Foods store at the Mount Prospect Plaza.

Store officials this week reported they had gotten the check, for $289.75, back from the Merchandise National Bank of Chicago. The bank said the check had been stolen from Open Kitchens Inc. account.

Mount Prospect police are looking for Davis DeTreville, of Chicago in connection with the bad check incident. The check was endorsed to him and his name was used by the person who cashed the check when that man filled out an information card at the store. The man had a check-cashing identification card from a Dominick's store in Skokie.

SWINGING IN THE PARK usually is for the spring or summer, when the weather is warm, but these two youngsters are having fun swinging in the winter. They just made sure they bundled up against the cold.

One candidate seeks Caucus backing

Only one candidate, incumbent Peter Oleson, has submitted his name to the Mount Prospect Dist. 57 General Caucus for endorsement consideration in the April, 1973 Dist. 57 School Board election.

Robert Fasick, chairman of the caucus nominating committee, said eight other persons whose names had been submitted to the caucus, declined to run for the election when contacted. "I think they just think everything is going so smoothly, they haven't got a problem," said Fasick in discussing the turnout.

Three school board posts will be open in April, those of Oleson, Peter Dudrow and George Foster. Both Foster and Dudrow have announced they do not plan to run for reelection.

IF NO ONE besides Oleson decides to run for reelection, it is doubtful how the remaining two seats will be filled. "The law is not clear," said Sue Sullivan, a legal researcher in the office of County Supt. Richard Martwick. Presumably, the present incumbents would remain in their jobs until two new board members were appointed by the new board or until another election is called. "You'd have to get a legal opinion on that," said Miss Sullivan.

Residents may run as independent candidates in the election without the support of the caucus. All candidates must obtain a petition with 50 signatures and submit it to the district no more than 45 or less than 22 days before the election.

The final date for requesting a screening by the caucus nominating committee is Feb. 11, Fasick said. Those approved by the committee will appear before the general caucus to seek endorsement on Feb. 27. Anyone who wishes to submit his own or someone else's name to the caucus for consideration should call Robert Fasick at 259-2895.

Materials used 'cheapest type'

School roof to be replaced

A report on the condition of the roofs at schools in River Trails Dist. 26 has revealed that materials used in the roofs when they originally were constructed were "of the cheapest type."

Because of this, "it is the consensus of everyone that the Feehanville roof will have to be taken off and replaced," said Board Pres. Lloyd Demel. Substantial repairs will also be needed on roofs in the district's five other schools.

The report, compiled by the Tremco Manufacturing Co. of Chicago, was made after an inspection of all the school roofs. In accompanying Tremco representatives on their inspection, Asst. Supt. James Retzlaff said they found that the material used between the top and bottom layer of the roofs was "just a felt that dries out and becomes almost like a blotter. There's no bitumen at all in there," said Retzlaff.

SUPT. TOM WARDEN said one of the reasons for the frequent repairs is that the district had "limited means" to work with when the buildings were first constructed. "What it seems to add up to is we used limited payment all along and now we have to pay the price," said Board Member Sylvia Lurie.

Since the school buildings were constructed, the architects have also made a change in specifications for roofing, Warden said. But it was not only the Dist. 26 architects who made the change.

The Illinois Capital Development Board has also made changes in roof specifications from the completely flat type of roof to some type of pitched roof, Warden said.

IN MAKING their report, Tremco Co. representatives listed the roof repair needs according to priorities. Recommendations for repairs for all six buildings that must be done this year range in the area of $30,000 to $40,000, said Retzlaff. Those that should be done by 1974 range from $25,000 to $35,000. Those repairs that can be delayed until 1975 range from $20,000 to $30,000.

"It was also recommended that after the roofs are brought up to par, there should be between $5,000 and $10,000 budgeted every year to keep the roofs in shape," Retzlaff said.

The school board has asked the administration to request representatives from Tremco Co. to get together with architect Wayne Fritch of K. E. Unteet & Assoc. to prepare specifications for the roof work.

The budget committee plans to consider how much money the board can spend on the repair work at a meeting on Feb. 15. "It's got to be done. It's just a question of when and how much. It has to be tied in with the whole budget, however," said Demel.

Merger of unit school studies urged?

by FRED GACA

The Citizens' Reorganization Study Committee for School Dist. 59 may get a recommendation to drop its unit district feasibility study and join a similar study being done by High School Dist. 214.

Reportedly the recommendation will come from the citizen's group state and legal aspects subcommittee. The recommendation is expected to be contained in the subcommittee's report to be given at a general committee meeting at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

George Coney, chairman of both the citizens group and the subcommittee, refused to comment on the report that a recommendation will be made to join the Dist. 214 survey.

Coney would only say that the subcommittee has completed a report and that it would be presented to the general committee tonight.

WHEN ASKED how he thought the general committee would react to a recommendation to stop its work and join the Dist. 214 study, Coney said he "had no idea."

Last week, Coney said that at tonight's meeting the general committee will be polled on the question of whether or not to continue studying a unit district for Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59. If the general committee agrees to continue its study, four boundary alternatives will be presented to the group.

The committee will then be asked to decide which of the four is feasible, and a final report will be submitted to the school board on the possibility of forming a unit district.

The school board had set a March 1 deadline for the final report to be submitted from both the citizens' committee and a professional consultant service also studying unit districting for Dist. 59.

THE FOUR alternatives that will be considered for a unit district if the committee vote to continue study are:

- Elk Grove Village unit, formed by splitting the present Dist. 59 along the Northwest Tollway.
- A unit of the present boundaries of Dist. 59.
- A unit of the attendance boundaries of the four southern high schools in Dist. 214: Elk Grove, Forest View, Rolling Meadows and Prospect High schools.
- Making Dist. 214 a unit district.

School to celebrate Latin American day

Students at Busse School, 101 N. Owen St., Mount Prospect, will celebrate Latin American day tomorrow.

Students will dress in the native Latin American costumes and present a play in honor of four exchange teachers from Latin America who will visit the bilingual center at the school.

The program will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the multi-purpose room. Parents and interested visitors are invited.

Registration opens Saturday for Little League baseball

Registration opens Saturday for boys who plan to take part in Little League baseball sponsored by Mount Prospect Boys Baseball Inc.

Boys 9 to 16 years old are eligible. Registration will be held 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday. Other registrations are set for Feb. 10 and 17. All three will be at the Mount Prospect County Club, 600 S. See Gwan Ave., Mount Prospect.

The association sponsors three leagues: Bronco for boys 9-12 years old; Pony for boys 13-14; and Colt for boys 15-16.

Registration fees are $20 for one boy in the Colt program and $10 for each additional person from the same family. For the Pony and Bronco leagues the registration costs are $17 for an individual with a maximum of $27 per family.

THE BIRTHDATES of Bronco league applicants must fall between Aug. 1, 1960 and Dec. 1, 1964. Birthdates of Pony league players must fall between Aug. 1, 1958 and Aug. 1, 1960. The birthdates of Colt league players must be between Aug. 1, 1956 and Aug. 1, 1958.

All boys must be accompanied by parents or guardians at the registration. No boy will be accepted unless his registration card is signed by his parent. Boys who are applying for the first time must show proof of age at the registration.

League officials also need adult coaches, managers and umpires. For more information on volunteering to help the league, call Earl Mueller at 392-0028 or John Bongiorno at 439-2695.

More than 750 boys take part in the local program annually. The league finances its program through registration fees, decal sales, a dance and outside contributions.

LITERALLY FLYING aptly describes Larry Latta racing more than 100 miles an hour in one of his seven hydroplanes. A one-inch layer of air separates the boat from the water. Latta and his wife Frances race competitively, and also pursue the sport as a hobby. A typical race course is about five miles in length and lasts five minutes.

St. Mark Church announces its spring activities

A spring schedule of activities that includes, among other things a "Shrove Tuesday Pancake Race," has been announced at the St. Mark Lutheran Church Center, 205 S. Wille St., Mount Prospect.

Registration for all the programs is open to all local residents, not only members of St. Mark church. However, in cases where registration is limited, preference will be given to members of St. Mark's. For more information on programs, call Lili Floros, center director, at 253-2333.

Leading the list of spring activities is the pancake race set for March 6. The race recreates a legend concerning the making of pancakes on Shrove Tuesday, the day before Lent begins.

ACCORDING TO a center bulletin, pancakes were traditionally baked the day before Lent to use up milks, eggs and fat not allowed during Lent.

"Legend has it that one woman was making pancakes when the church bell rang calling the parishioners to services. Grabbing her frypan, she ran out to the street toward the church flipping pancakes as she went. Soon there developed an annual race to the church with women flipping pancakes all the way." According to the bulletin, the races have been held since 1445 in England.

Most of the other spring activities at the center have been held before. They include boys boxing, guitar, pottery, a bike trip, roller skating, croquet, hooked rugs, women's exercises, stamp club, family nights, dog care, youth leadership, Gavel Club, ladies volleyball, adult volleyball, needlework, men's basketball, a senior citizens program, paper tole, Toastmaster's Club, macrame, girls sports, tie-making, photography, bridge club, golf, bridge lessons, ceramics, ladies bowling, mixed bowling, and darts.

Issue now in hands of Racing Board

by KURT BAEIL
Circuit Court Judge Robert J. Downing yesterday threw out requests by the Illinois attorney general and Arlington Park Race Track for a review of 1973 racing dates.

The judge's decision puts the crucial question of dates in the hands of the Illinois Racing Board, which is scheduled to meet this morning.

Under the racing schedule upheld by Judge Downing, Arlington Park will open the Chicago thoroughbred racing season on April 19 and will close July 21.

Arlington Park had sought to get both more racing days and choicer summer

PISTON IN HAND, Larry Latta works on the engine of one of his hydroplanes, while his wife Frances supervises his effort. The engines, Latta said, are specially crafted, with a capacity of 175 hp and 9,000 revolutions per minutes. But track spokesman Tom Rivera said yesterday the track's only hope now lies with the racing board.

"IT'S ALL up to the new board. If it doesn't change the dates we'll be open April 19," Rivera said.

Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scariano has said he will seek to revoke dates awarded to racing associations controlled by William S. Miller, a former racing board chairman now under federal indictment in a race track conspiracy case.

But any revocation would require action by the full racing board and could not be accomplished solely by the chairman. Scariano is expected to ask the board this morning to take that action.

Even though dates have been awarded to Miller's associations, the racing interests still cannot conduct a horse race without first securing a license from the racing board.

IN UPHOLDING the 1973 racing schedule as awarded by a 4 to 3 vote of the old racing board, Judge Downing said the court had authority to look only at the testimony presented before the racing board and could not consider outside evidence.

Scariano on Monday had cited Miller's confession's in the conspiracy trial and testimony before the Illinois Legislative Investigating Committee as grounds for revoking his racing dates.

Miller has received immunity in the conspiracy trial in exchange for his testimony.

Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott and Arlington Park charged in their suits that the racing board violated state law in granting the dates, but Downing said yesterday he found the board's action neither "arbitrary, unconscionable or capricious and not contrary to the statutes."

Scott had contended that state law prohibited anyone under indictment from receiving racing dates.

He further alleged that the dates as they stand would cost the state $3 million in tax revenue.

DOWNING, however, discounted the argument.

The judge also denied a request by Arlington Park and Washington Park Race Tracks Corp. for separate racing licenses for the Arlington and Washington divisions.

Two separate licenses were sought as a tax saver to the racing corporation. Race tracks pay a progressive tax based on the total betting handle. By dividing, for example, 77 days of racing at Arlington Park in two separate meets, the corporation would be able to break up the betting total, and thus pay a smaller tax.

A separate suit is now pending before the Illinois Supreme Court seeking $5 million in back taxes and interest the attorney general claims is due the state because of the track's dual license operation from 1967 through 1971.

The hydroplane truth

100 m.p.h. by boat is a 'Latta' speed

by MARILYN HEISER
Larry and Frances Latta don't look like people who race hydroplanes at speeds in excess of 100 miles per hour.

But as soon as they start talking about their hobby, which consumes much time, effort, and money, it is obvious hydroplaning is as much a part of their lives as breathing.

Latta, gesturing with his hands, quick in speech and almost impatient with those confused by technical engine and boating terms, is more than a mere enthusiast.

Judging from the trophies decorating his Schaumburg home, Latta excels at his hobby, and has communicated his absorbing interest to his wife.

THEIR HOME is a workshop for the care and repairing of engines, propellers and the boats themselves. They own seven hydroplanes and 10 motors, which they store with a huge trailer in a Naperville barn.

But the parts and pieces compete for space in their house, as the engines require continual attention due to the extreme heat and stress of racing, Latta said.

Playing Mr. Fixit is not limited to the male in this family. Mrs. Latta, a secretary for Motorola Corp., said she too can take an engine apart and put it back together.

Wet from the boat's spray, Mrs. Latta is in there pitching while other wives look on from the dry shore. She reads an engine for Latta who's out in another cruising gracefully at 110 m.p.h.

When they first met, Mrs. Latta said, she didn't know anything about the sport. "At the first race I went to, Larry didn't do so well. I asked what I could do." She now says about the sport, "I love it."

While she has raced with her husband, Mrs. Latta said she has yet to race alone. "Larry built me an engine for my birthday, but I haven't gone alone yet."

"It's frightening to simply touch the throttle and be doing 80 to 90 m.p.h. The sensation of speed is really great, because you are kneeling, not sitting in the boat, which makes it seem like you're going twice as fast," Latta said.

THE LATTAS, with their trailer laden with boats about 14 feet long and weighing almost 200 pounds each, enter competition in various parts of the Midwest. Each contest, which generally covers five miles or lasts roughly five minutes, requires a different boat, different motor and different propeller, Latta said.

While the couple races for money prizes, "You barely break even on expenses," Latta said. And his proficiency at the sport won him second place in national races held last year in DePue, Ill.

The prize money averages around $100 a race, he said, but the boats, which run on a mixture of alcohol and castor oil, consume a great deal of fuel, a gallon a minute, at $1 a gallon.

At an average cost of $700 to $1,000, the hydroplanes are outfitted with expensive, hand-crafted engines, which require maintenance after every race. A recent mishap with four pistons ended up costing Latta close to $200, he said.

THE LATTAS met almost six years ago on the Mississippi River which separates their home towns of Keokuk, Iowa, and Warsaw, Ill. The river was the scene of a hydroplane race, naturally.

Now they are looking forward to winning first place at the August nationals and receiving their new boat, presently on order.

The huge "Mayor Daley" trophy which Latta won for overall high points in the 1971 Chicago Lakefront Festival overshadowed several other large awards decorating their mantel.

But Latta, an electrical engineer for Hallcrafters, Rolling Meadows, says modestly of his frequent wins, "It's a combination of lots of nitro (nitromethane, a fuel additive to increase speed) and dumb luck."

U.S. students 'more free' than Latin counterparts

by FRED GACA

There is more freedom for American children in school and at home than for their Mexican or Argentine counterparts, in the opinion of two foreign exchange teachers.

The two Latin American teachers have been observing the educational programs at Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59 the past few weeks.

Eduardo Cardenas Larios of Mexico and Maria Mercedes A. de Coronel of Argentina teach English as a foreign language in their native countries. They were selected to tour the United States as part of a group of more than 60 English language teachers from throughout the world. The tour, which began in August, was organized under the International Educational Development Program.

The six-month tour was designed to give foreign English teachers an opportunity to be students and observers of the American educational process. Members of the tour attended the University of Texas and observed school systems in San Antonio, Houston, New Orleans, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Las Vegas and Chicago.

CARDENAS AND Mrs. A. de Coronel will be at Dist. 59 until Tuesday. They will then join other members of the group in Springfield. The tour will end in mid-February with a visit to Washington, D.C.

In their native countries, Cardenas and Mrs. A. de Coronel teach at what would be the equivalent of high school in America.

Comparing students in Mexico with those he has seen here, Cardenas said Mexican students, "listen to the teacher more carefully. They (Mexican students) are more respectful." He said American students, "are not disrespectful, but they have more freedom of action. They have a different attitude."

Mrs. A. de Coronel said she thought American children, "grew up too fast, became too serious and too responsible. They don't seem as happy and gay as children in Argentina."

Cardenas said he did not think American children were more serious, but he said some younger children were afraid to talk to him because they did not understand the idea of someone coming from another country. "You just tell them you're a visitor from outer space and they will talk with you," said Cardenas.

ONE THING THAT impressed the teachers about American education was the facilities available in the schools. "I don't know if students know how to appreciate all that is given to them. They seem to take it for granted, but the government and the teachers give them the best."

Both Cardenas and Mrs. A. de Coronel said they thought they could teach in America. Mrs. A. de Coronel said that teaching, like anything else, reflects the culture of the country. "Once you adjust to the culture of the country, then you can adjust to the teaching."

Both the foreign exchange teachers found it unique to have a school board, composed of parents as head of the schools. They were amazed that parents have so much power in the American education system.

During the tour, the teachers were housed with private families to give them a chance to observe American family life.

Cardenas said he found American parents, "give more freedom to the children. The children are not disrespectful, but they have more freedom to investigate. In Mexico, children are more dependent on the family."

Mrs. A. de Coronel said that in Argentina, "we are more economically and emotionally dependent on our parents. We never break the link with our parents."

AFTER BEING on the tour, Cardenas said some of the misconceptions he had about the United States were cleared up. "I thought people here were very cold. I thought everything was mechanical, with huge machines and computers doing everything. If you wanted something, all you had to do was press a button."

Mrs. A. de Coronel said she was "quite thankful for the people in charge of the program and the warm welcome we have received. We feel at home here. I didn't think I would feel so at home."

Architect hired for Maryville

Fields, Goldman and Magee, an Oak Brook, Ill., firm, has been selected as architect for the new school facility to house students at Maryville Academy.

The school board and representatives of the Illinois Capital Development Board still have not come to any decision on the site for the new school, though, "we've pretty well nailed it down to a couple," said River Trails Dist. 26 Pres. Lloyd Demel. He said the site should be decided on by the Feb. 20 board meeting.

The Oak Brook firm was recommended to the board by the Illinois Capital Development Board. According to Supt. Tom Warden there were only two architectural firms that met the two qualifications set up by the ICDB. The qualifications set up by the board were, first, that the architect should have done some research on the needs of the children who would use this type of school and second, that the architect have experience in building a special education facility of this type.

"The Capital Development Board seemed to feel stronger about this architect than the other one for several reasons," said Demel. "They felt that they were somewhat better qualified. Probably another strong reason was that this firm has built another special education facility like this in Naperville (called the School Association for Special Education in DuPage County). That was probably a very convincing kind of factor," said Demel.

Village may weigh Center request in March

The Mount Prospect Village Board probably will consider a request by the Northwest Opportunity Center for a $2,001.30 village donation in March. However, a similar request for funding last year met with no success.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert said yesterday he has received a letter from the center, but that the letter mentioned no specific amount — only the fact the group would like to speak before the village board.

"I'll set it up in some fashion," Teichert said, "if the village board wants to hear them. I think the board should consider all requests but the timing would be inappropriate until the board gets the village manager's proposed budget."

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppeley has promised to give the village trustees copies of that proposed budget by March 1. The budget has to be passed in April.

LAST YEAR, a spokesman for the Northwest Opportunity Center asked the village board for similar funds. The amount was considerably less. It was based on 46 persons in the community served by the center while this year's figure is based on 106 persons. The center has figured a cost of $19.06 per person.

However, the board did not vote to include any funds for the center in this year's budget.

This is the second consecutive year that officials of the center have sought contributions from local communities to help finance the center's activities for the coming year. Bruce Newton, center director, hopes to obtain a total of $32,000 from over 14 communities, in addition to another $36,000 from the annual "Hike For Hunger," and from churches and local organizations.

The center will have a 1973-74 budget of $130,000, of which $82,000 is supposed to be obtained through federal grants. The center serves as a multi-service agency in the Northwest suburban area and offers counseling, legal aid, employment and medical referrals, a supplemental food program, and various training classes.

In all last year, the center received only about $5,000 out of a total $25,000 officials had hoped to receive as donations from the local communities. Arlington Heights and Hoffman Estates gave directly and Palatine officials set up a fund for the center.

So far this year, Arlington Heights has agreed to give $4,600.

Flood program could cut land at local parks

by CINDY TEW

The Village of Arlington Heights proposed flood prevention program could cut land by 25 per cent at three parks, according to Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation at the Arlington Heights Park District.

The $18.5 million plan to eliminate flooding in the village, shows that Pioneer and Volz Parks would have retention basins installed. The basin at Hasbrook would be enlarged.

Though the report says the basins would be dry most of the time, Thornton says they probably wouldn't if they're like other basins in the village.

Five of the eight major projects included in the proposed flood control program will involve current or proposed park land.

"THIS IS ALL going to have to be discussed by the board. Even if all the facilities were restored after flood control measures were installed, we'd still lose about 25 per cent usage of the facilities because they'd be under water," said Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation.

Thornton said no one from the village has contacted the park district yet about the flood control proposal which was made public nearly a week ago. Thornton also said he asked Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson for a copy of the report, which he has not yet received. The report, which cost the village $14,000, was completed by R. J. Peterson & Associates.

Pioneer Park would be the largest area affected by the installation of flood controls. About one quarter of the park, the northwest corner, would become a retention basin. "The basin will be seeded and provided with under drains. It will be drained completely after each rain storm and the areas will be available for baseball, football and similar activities during most of the year," according to the Peterson report.

THORNTON SAYS the playfields probably would be just as wet as the ones now at Hickory-Meadows retention basin.

"That basin was supposed to be dry most of the time too, but for the last two summers we haven't been able to use it," said Thornton.

The Peterson report also suggests that the "excavated material from the basin be used within the park for landscaping purposes, possibly in the southerly area." Thornton says, however, that there is no room at Pioneer Park, or any other park in the district, for any hills.

"We wouldn't mind having another sled hill, but I just can't think of any place to put it," said Thornton. "Excavation of that amount of land will create a lot of dirt though."

ANOTHER MAJOR project which would affect the park district is the Ridge Park project, which would put a basin in Volz Park. The project would mean the tearing up of two tennis courts, valued at about $14,000.

"I don't know if the park board would approve that type of thing unless the courts were completely restored," said Thornton. According to the report, "the existing recreational facilities could be reinstalled if desired and would be usable over much of the year." It does not specifically allocate money for the restoration, however.

The third park which would be affected by the proposed flood control project is Hasbrook Park. According to the report, the Hasbrook Retention Basin would be doubled in size, which would eliminate one of two ball diamonds there.

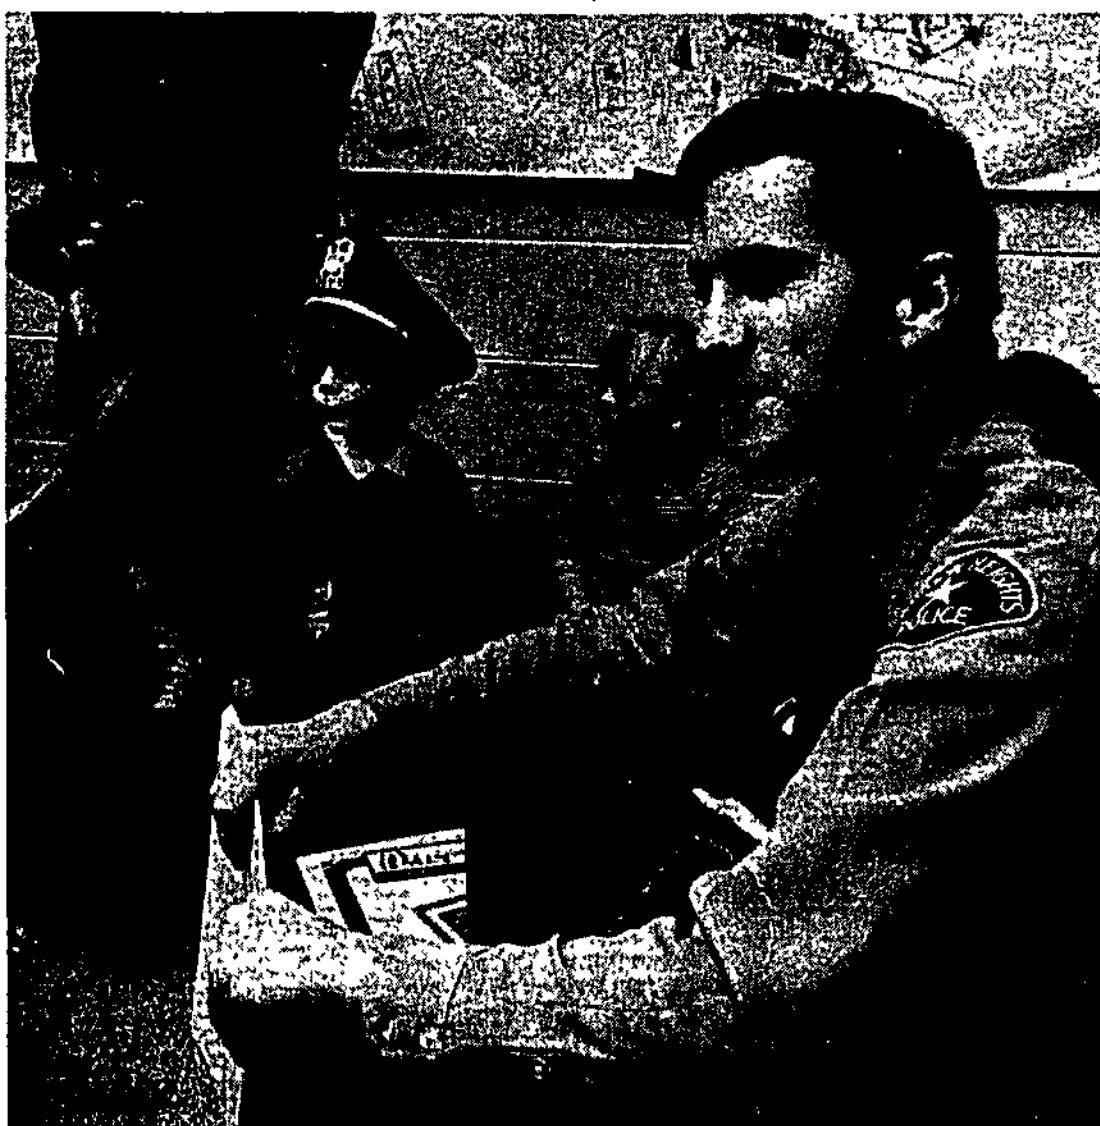

Though the Nike Base at Central and New Wilke roads is still owned by the military, the park district hopes to own it someday and turn it into a golf course and recreation area. One of the park proposals for the site is to have a lake for water recreation.

INCLUDED in the flood control report is a 2.5-acre basin at the south central portion of the base. According to Thornton the basin is not where the proposed park district lake would be.

"When we acquire the property, we'd have to relocate the basin," Thornton said.

One project that the park district goes along with wholeheartedly is the Lake Arlington proposal. The 60-acre lake is included in the park district's master plan. The lake, east of Windsor Drive and south of the Ivy Hill subdivision along McDonald Creek, would provide two miles of shore line.

"That project should have been done a long time ago," Thornton said.

KINDERGARTENERS AT Berkley School in Arlington Heights get to take turns playing "hatrack" for policeman Thomas Kopp's headgear. Kopp, a three-year veteran of the Arlington Heights Police Department, is the new "Officer Friendly" for the village and plans to talk to children in every village classroom before the end of the school year.

Top 'Kopp' 'friendly' to school kids

by CINDY TEW

Every child in Arlington Heights schools will soon meet Officer Tom Kopp of the Arlington Heights Police Department.

They may even be handcuffed by him if they're lucky. Most of the students will also be able to try on his hat.

Kopp was recently hired by the juvenile division of the police department to beef up the "Officer Friendly" program.

"The program is designed to make kids more apt to look to policemen when they need help," said Sgt. Paul Buckholz, head of the youth division.

Kopp has been setting up his presentation for two weeks and is now working at Berkley School. He plans to get to every classroom in the village by June.

"I DEEMPHASIZE violence," said Kopp. When students ask to see his gun, Kopp simply tells them he can't take it out of his holster because it's against the rules.

"I make sure a teacher is in the classroom at all times," said Kopp. "That way if the kids need disciplining, their teacher is the one to do it, not me."

So far, Kopp says the students receive him very well.

"They identify with the Disney characters and the posters I show them. They also enjoy putting together fake suspects with the identification kit I bring along."

The students are first asked what they think a policeman does and Kopp gets all kinds of answers from "direct traffic" to "give out tickets" to "shoot people."

"WHEN THE STUDENTS say things like 'shoot people' I try to explain that policemen on TV may shoot people, but real policemen try very hard not to shoot people," said Kopp.

During the past several years the "Officer Friendly" program has been mainly a means to teach children safety. An officer went around to schools, on a part-time basis, and gave a brief lecture to children in large assemblies.

"That method was fine for young children, but the older children didn't get much out of it," said Kopp. "We're trying to get in among the children, answer their questions and let them really get to know us."

While safety is still an aspect of the program, "Officer Friendly" is now a public relations man for the police department.

Kopp, who has been with the Arlington Heights Police Department for almost three years said the response from teachers and principals for the regenerated program is very good. Teachers, he said, often given him good suggestions about what their classroom would like to hear about.

KOPP SAYS he's also learning a lot about kids. Besides visiting schools daily, he is taking classes at Northeastern Illinois University where he is a junior majoring in psychology.

And between classroom appearances, Kopp tries to think of a new catchy name for the program. While it has loosely been termed "Officer Friendly," the name is patented, and not available for this particular program.

He's thinking about starting a contest among his new grade school friends.

Issue now in hands of Racing Board

by KURT BAER

Circuit Court Judge Robert J. Downing yesterday threw out requests by the Illinois attorney general and Arlington Park Race Track for a review of 1973 racing dates.

The judge's decision puts the crucial question of dates in the hands of the Illinois Racing Board, which is scheduled to meet this morning.

Under the racing schedule upheld by Judge Downing, Arlington Park will open the Chicago thoroughbred racing season on April 19 and will close July 24.

Arlington Park had sought to get both more racing days and choicer summer dates. But track spokesman Tom Rivera said yesterday the track's only hope now lies with the racing board.

"IT'S ALL up to the new board. If it doesn't change the dates we'll be open April 19," Rivera said.

Illinois Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scarlano has said he will seek to revoke dates awarded to racing associations controlled by William S. Miller, a former racing board chairman now under federal indictment in a race track conspiracy case.

But any revocation would require action by the full racing board and could not be accomplished solely by the chairman.

Scarlano is expected to ask the board this morning to take that action. Even though dates have been awarded to Miller's associations, the racing interests still cannot conduct a horse race without first securing a license from the racing board.

IN UPHOLDING the 1973 racing schedule as awarded by a 4 to 3 vote of the old racing board, Judge Downing said the court had authority to look only at the testimony presented before the racing board and could not consider outside evidence.

Scarlano on Monday had cited Miller's confession in the conspiracy trial and testimony before the Illinois Legislative Investigating Committee as grounds for revoking his racing dates.

Miller has received immunity in the conspiracy trial in exchange for his testimony.

Illinois Atty. Gen. William Scott and Arlington Park charged in their suits that the racing board violated state law in granting its dates, but Downing said yesterday he found the board's action neither "arbitrary, unconscionable or capricious and not contrary to the statutes."

Scott had contended that state law prohibited anyone under indictment from receiving racing dates.

He further alleged that the dates as they stand would cost the state $3 million in tax revenue.

DOWNING, however, discounted the argument.

The judge also denied a request by Arlington Park and Washington Park Race Tracks Corp. for separate racing licenses for the Arlington and Washington divisions.

Two separate licenses were sought as a tax saver to the racing corporation.

Race tracks pay a progressive tax based on the total betting handle. By dividing, for example, 77 days of racing at Arlington Park in two separate meets, the corporation would be able to break up the betting total, and thus pay a smaller tax.

A separate suit is now pending before the Illinois Supreme Court seeking $5 million in back taxes and interest the attorney general claims is due the state because of the track's dual license operation from 1967 through 1971.

Winter Carnival weekend postponed

Because of warm weather both the Arlington Heights Jaycee Winter Carnival and the Rotary Speed Skating contest have both been rescheduled for the weekend of Feb. 10.

If there is ice by then, the Jaycee Winter Carnival will be held on Saturday, Feb. 10. Carnival entrants are children who won preliminary speed skating contests at neighborhood centers in the Arlington Heights Park District in January.

The Rotary contest is tentatively scheduled for Sunday, Feb. 11. Anyone can enter this contest, and winners will go on to regional then state competition.

Both contests will be held at the Hickory-Meadows Retention Basin, on Douglas Street, just north of Olive Street.

Flatten cans for recycling station

Cans deposited at either of the two Arlington Heights recycling stations should be flattened, according to the village health department.

"The cans have been blowing onto neighboring property and creating a nuisance," said Frank Charleton, head of the health department. "If people would just crush them by taking off both lids and smashing them sideways it would help."

Charleton said if the cans were crushed before being deposited in the recycling bins more cans could be recycled cheaper. He said can recycling is just about a break-even proposition for the village at this time.

Recycling stations are located at two village fire stations, one at 2000 S. Arlington Heights Rd. and 3100 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

Gospel service series being held

A series of gospel services is being held Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. at Frontier Park, 1933 N. Kennicott, Arlington Heights.

The series is also being held in the Forest River Hall, 207 Lee St., Mount Prospect, on Wednesday and Friday nights at 7:30 p.m., except Feb. 16.

The services include Bible discussions concerning the life and teachings of Christ. No textbook, other than the Bible, will be used. Services are nondenominational, and the public is invited.

Complaint on '71 oil spill

Addressograph may face fine

WORKMEN built a straw dam across Weller Creek at Central Road in Mount Prospect to collect the spilled oil.

Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. could face a state pollution board fine of up to $10,000 plus $1,000 per day if found guilty of violating state pollution laws through a 1971 oil spill into Weller Creek.

Some 200 gallons of fuel oil spilled into storm sewers underneath the Multigraphs plant parking lot, at 1800 W. Central Rd. in Mount Prospect, on Oct. 11, 1971 and made its way into the creek two days later.

The complaint, signed by the Environmental Protection Agency, states that the firm "caused or allowed oil to spill . . . so as to cause or tend to cause water pollution in Weller Creek" allegedly in violation of a section of the Environmental Protection Act. A public hearing before the state pollution control board will be held at 10 a.m. Feb. 13 at the Arlington Heights Village Hall, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

AT THE TIME of the incident, Edward Bruning, vice president and general manager of the firm, said the original spill took place when an oil company was filling one of the plant's storage tanks.

"A defective gauge indicated the tank could hold more oil than it actually could hold," Bruning said. "The tank was around the corner and out of sight of the operator."

According to Bruning, the firm immediately took action to collect the spilled oil. He said eight employees used some 2,000 pounds of oil absorbent material to collect and barrel the spilled oil. They then flushed the area.

"We were not aware any oil had gotten into the storm sewer system," Bruning said then. But the oil appeared in the creek, and both Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights public works crews went to work to prevent most of the oil from reaching the Des Plaines River, of which the creek is a tributary.

The day after the spill was discovered in the creek, Multigraphs officials announced a five-point program designed to prevent future oil spills. None has been reported since that time.

Four flood control projects to be aired: $11.7 million

The four flood control projects set for public hearing at 8 Tuesday night in the Municipal Building represent a combined total cost of $11.7 million, including $9.8 million for a large retention lake along McDonald Creek.

It is proposed that the Metropolitan Sanitary District contribute $5.8 million to the Lake Arlington project, since the improvement would have a regional benefit.

It had been hoped that the federal government would contribute an estimated $1.7 million to the project but the announced elimination of federal money for open space land acquisition now makes this prospect appear remote.

As proposed, Lake Arlington would be three-quarters of a mile long, have about two miles of shoreline and a depth of six to eight feet.

The lake is designed to provide storage for storm water from the McDonald Creek watershed, regardless of the downstream condition of the creek. It is also expected to benefit downstream communities by holding back flood waters during severe storms.

THE McDONALD Creek watershed encompasses 516 square miles extending approximately a mile north of Hintz Road south to Olive Street, east about a mile past Windsor Drive and west nearly two miles beyond Arlington Heights Road.

Of the total 2,304 acres in the watershed, retention basins now exist for only 249 acres.

In order to build the lake, the village would have to acquire about 113 acres of unincorporated land east of Windsor Drive and south of the Ivy Hill subdivision. At an estimated cost of $15,000 an acre, land acquisition alone would amount to nearly $1.7 million.

If the MSD can be persuaded to pay the actual excavation cost of the lake, an estimated $5.77 million, as it did with the Wilke-Kirchoff retention basin, the total cost to the village would be $2.27 million.

Another project set for Tuesday night's hearing is the Hickory Meadows-Arlington Knolls Project, with a total estimated cost of $410,900.

The report proposes a new retention basin north of Olive Street between Belmont and Douglas avenues to work in tandem with the existing Hickory Meadows basin.

A third proposal is the Hasbrook Project which would expand the storage capacity of the Hasbrook retention pond from its current 12-acre-foot to 27-acre-foot of storage.

THE PROJECT is designed to prevent flooding from water which overflows the basin and floods homes to the south and east.

Total cost of the enlargement to the village would be $99,400.

The fourth improvement scheduled for discussion is the Sherwood Project, which would install a system of new storm sewers in the area bounded by Yale-Clarendon-Kennicott and Oakton streets.

This territory is served by a combined sewer which is inadequate during storm periods, the report states.

Cost of the new sewer system is estimated at $48,500.

The Sherwood Project could only be undertaken in conjunction with the Ridge Park Project which proposes a new storm sewer system and the construction of a retention basin at Volk Park.

Tuesday's hearing will begin at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd. Residents will have the opportunity to question and comment on the proposals.

Merger of unit school district studies urged?

by FRED GACA

The Citizens' Reorganization Study Committee for School Dist. 59 may get a recommendation to drop its unit district feasibility study and join a similar study being done by High School Dist. 214.

Reportedly the recommendation will come from the citizen's group state and legal aspects subcommittee. The recommendation is expected to be contained in the subcommittee's report to be given at a general committee meeting at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Dempster Junior High School, 420 W. Dempster St., Mount Prospect.

George Coney, chairman of both the citizens group and the subcommittee, refused to comment on the report that a recommendation will be made to join the Dist. 214 survey.

Coney would only say that the subcommittee has completed a report and that it would be presented to the general committee tonight.

WHEN ASKED how he thought the general committee would react to a recommendation to stop its work and join the Dist. 214 study, Coney said he "had no idea."

Last week, Coney said that at tonight's meeting the general committee will be polled on the question of whether or not to continue studying a unit district for Elk Grove Township School Dist. 59. If the general committee agrees to continue its study, four boundary alternatives will be presented to the group.

The committee will then be asked to decide which of the four is feasible, and a final report will be submitted to the school board on the possibility of forming a unit district.

The school board had set a March 1 deadline for the final report to be submitted from both the citizens' committee and a professional consultant service also studying unit districting for Dist. 59.

THE FOUR alternatives that will be considered for a unit district if the committee votes to continue study are:

- Elk Grove Village unit, formed by splitting the present Dist. 59 along the Northwest Tollway.

- A unit of the present boundaries of Dist. 59.
- A unit of the attendance boundaries of the four southern high schools in Dist. 214: Elk Grove, Forest View, Rolling Meadows and Prospect High schools.
- Making Dist. 214 a unit district.

New library service offered in Arlington Heights

The newest special service available at the Arlington Heights Memorial Library allows cardholders access to research

Airman assigned

Airman Sally A. Erbach, of Arlington Heights, has recently been assigned to Kessler Air Force Base, Miss., after completing her basic training. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Erbach, 311 S. Patton Ave.

Airman Erbach has been assigned to the Technical Training Center at Kessler for specialized training as a Morse code systems operator.

materials in more than 140 Chicago area libraries to help answer sophisticated research questions.

The new program is called "Infopass" — short for Information Passport and has just been started by members of the Illinois Regional Library Council. The program allows access not only to other public libraries, but to school, academic and special libraries.

Infopass works like this: If you are researching a specialized topic and the village library doesn't have what you need, just ask the reference librarian for an Infopass. The librarian will use a detailed Infopass directory to determine what library can best fill the bill. An infopass card will be filled out, and you're on your way.

JAY LARSON, adult services librarian, said that in most cases books used in the program cannot be borrowed, but must be used in the library to which they belong. In effect, then, the village library is only a referral agency for the "scholar," he said.

But Infopass is more than a quick way to find a library that contains the resources a researcher is looking for. The program is a key that opens the doors of private libraries which the general public normally would not be allowed to use. These include school libraries and collections owned by various companies.

The Illinois Regional Library Council, which is coordinating the Infopass was started less than two years ago to improve communications among the various types of libraries in the Chicago area. And even though it has more than 140 member libraries, only 10 per cent of the Chicago area libraries belong to the council.

The council has members throughout the six-county region of Cook, DuPage, Kane, Lake, McHenry and Will. The council's headquarters are located in southwest suburban Burr Ridge.

Millikin graduates

Three Arlington Heights residents were among 315 students at Millikin University, Decatur, to recently receive undergraduate degrees.

The three are Curt P. Kimball Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Frederick, 412 Banbury Dr.; David R. Lighthall, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Lighthall, 1256 S. Walnut Ave., and Claudia Sue Murphy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Murphy, 906 W. Grove St.

Student counselor

Kenneth G. Roschman, 2801 Briarwood Dr., Arlington Heights, has been named a student counselor for the current school year at one of Purdue University's 11 residence halls. It was recently announced.

As a counselor, Roschman will work with student organizations within the hall and represent the university at local floor levels. He will assist students living in the hall with their problems and help develop communications for academic achievement.

Village to give $4,600 to Opportunity Center

The village board finance committee has approved a $4,600 contribution to the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows.

The amount represents a $1,500 increase over the village's contribution this year and is based on the center's service to 241 families living in or just outside Arlington Heights.

The finance committee also recommended that Village Pres. John Woods send a letter to neighboring municipalities and townships urging that they contribute to the center.

Last year the center was unable to get support from only a few of the 14 villages it serves in the Northwest area.

THE CENTER also faces the loss in July of federal funding through the Office of Economic Opportunity. Nearly 50 per cent of the center's $130,000 budget is provided through federal funds.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson supported the money request, saying that the center is doing a service to the community which could not be duplicated for the money the center is asking.

Committee members also suggested that the Opportunity Center appeal to townships for financial support now that they have received large allotments of federal revenue sharing money.

Trustee Ralph Clabour, the one trustee on the finance committee to vote against the $4,600 donation, said he would support a village contribution if he knew the center had actively sought contributions from other governmental units.

Scouting news

Nine members of Arlington Heights Cub Scout Pack 169, sponsored by Olive School, recently won ribbons for outstanding cake decorating.

About 50 members of the pack, along with their fathers, entered the annual cake baking contest.

In the best decorated category, the first prize winner was Bill Andrews; John McMahon took second place and John MacArthur came in third. In the most novel cake category, Tom Gardner took first place while Ken Foster came in second and Scott Edmundson was third.

The general category winner was Dan Ullrich. Steve Marquis was second and John Reed took third place.
